College Profs Seek Halt On Novato Campus

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The College of Marin Academic Senate thinks college trustees should call a halt on planning a North Marin campus until they can determine what it will cost to operate.

This is part of the reason for faculty outrage at the sudden appointment of a president for the Kentfield campus to free Supt. William K. Ramstad for full-time planning of the second campus, according to Samuel Schwartz of Oakland, political science teacher and academic senate president.

The academic senate will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday to draw up a bill of particulars about the second campus issue, he said today.

Schwartz and James D. Donlon Jr. of Orinda, business education teacher who is chairman of the college administrative council, told the Independent-Journal their outrage over appointment of a Kentfield president was over the manner in which it was done, not the man chosen.

Both said Louis H. Herkhenhoff of Corte Madera, assistant dean of the evening school who was elevated to the presidency, is esteemed by the faculty.

"If the selection had been carried out in the proper manner, he might well have been the choice," said Schwartz.

The faculty contends, however, that the selection was not carried out in the proper manner.

First knowledge that a president was to be named to serve under Ramstad, who formerly was both president and superintendent, came when Irwin H. Diamond, dean of students, made inquiries following receipt of the agenda for the North Vietnam Accuses U.S. Of Stalling Talks

Squabble On Site Flayed

TOKYO (UPI) — North Vietnam Saturday warned the United States to "stop creating problems" if it wishes to discuss peace in Vietnam.

Hanoi accused the United States of intentionally delaying talks between the two countries by squabbling over a site.

The warning came in an official statement issued by the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry and broadcast by Radio Hanoi.

THANT PLEA

(U.N. Secretary General Thant today appealed "fervently" to both sides to reach speedy agreement on a site for the talks. It was his first public statement since he returned to New York last night from an eight-day visit to Europe during which he said he was in contact with both Hanoi and Washington.)

Earlier, the official newspaper Nhan Dan voiced similar charges. The Hanoi newspaper said the United States was trying to delay a meeting while continuing "bellicose acts," including the stepped up bombing of the southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

The newspaper commentary was broadcast in English. The Foreign Ministry statement was in Vietnamese.

The newspaper cited official statements by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk about American willingness to meet with Hanoi representatives anywhere in the world to talk peace.

U. S. OBJECTIONS

Yet, the newspaper said, Washington rejects both Phnom Penh and Warsaw as the site for such talks. It added, "now when it has become possible for talks to begin, the United States does not want to go, either to a neutralist country or to one where it has an embassy."

The United States objected to Cambodia because it does not have diplomatic relations with the Phnom Penh regime, and to Poland because it is a Communist bloc country.

"All the pretexts of the United States are unjustified and ill-founded and lead to the remark that the United States still shows no good will and that the United States does not want talks to begin promptly, contra-

SHOW IN MARIN'S SKY

Aided by clear weather, thousands of Marin County residents watched the lunar eclipse last night. Persons on San Rafael Hill had this view, as the earth's shadow partially obscured the moon's surface. Many Southern Californians missed the phenomenon because of cloudy skies. This kind of eclipse will not take place again until 1971.

Easter Eve Shots Flying In Holy Land

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

This year's world Easter scene, which comes to its joyous climax tomorrow in memory of Christ's resurrection, is dominated by traditional celebrations but flecked with unusual touches.

Thousands of pilgrims streamed into Rome for the Roman Catholic Easter vigil service tonight in St. Paul's Basilica, with a Mass concelebrated by Pope Paul VI and two Benedictine abbots. Thousands of Romans streamed out of the city, bound for the mountains and the shore over the long weekend.

On Good Friday the pontiff bore a cross through the heart of what once was pagan Rome. The 70-year-old Pope declared in a sermon that all men were "co-responsible" for the death of Christ, because He died to save all men from their sins.

The ancient holy city of Jerusalem was different this year: It was united under Israeli rule, and Christian Easter coincided with Jewish Passover.

Israeli and Jordanian forces fought gun duels across the Jordan River today shattering the holy holiday quiet along the truce line.

Each side blamed the other for starting the shooting.

The fighting erupted even as pilgrims of different faiths mingled in Jerusalem for solemn processions and prayers marking the Christian Easter and Jewish Passover.

This year is one of the rare occasions when the two religious holidays coincide.

COLLEGE BOARD CHIDES RAMSTAD

'Breakdown Of Communication' Decried; College Official Still Is 'Valuable'

The Marin Junior College District Board of Trustees, while indicating continued support of Supt. William K. Ramsted, criticized him today for "errors of judgment of considerable magnitude."

In a statement released by Elizabeth M. Deedy, board president, the trustees included themselves and the college faculty in the blame for the "breakdown of communication" which, they said, has resulted in "divisiveness and uncertainty throughout the faculty."

"The Board of Trustees is of the opinion that Dr. Ramstad is capable of making valuable contributions to the expansion and improvement of this college district and its educational program," the statement said.

The board directed Ramstad to immediately develop "better procedures" in his administration.

These procedures should include a policy of faculty involvement and administrative responsibility, written procedures for recruitment and assignment of professional personnel and a detailed organizational chart for both the Kentfield campus and the district operations, the trustees said.

Board meeting agendas are to be arranged so that major items can be debated the meeting prior to any formal decision, the board said.

They also indicated they would immediately undertake an extensive review of the present organizational structure of the Kentfield campus to "ensure that those areas requiring faculty consultation and recommendations are specifically set forth."

The board's statement came as a result of a closed session held Thursday night to hear faculty charges that Ramstad should resign.

B52s, Forest Fires Hurt Communists

SAIGON (UPI)—Eight-engine B52s flew rare missions in the densely populated Mekong Delta today to bomb Viet Cong hideouts already ravaged by weeklong forest fires, military spokesmen said.

The bombers, biggest in the U.S. Vietnam arsenal, first struck yesterday in a swampy area near Vinh Binh 74 miles southwest of Saigon and killed 200 Communists, the spokesmen said.

Today they flew deeper into the region to pour their massive bombloads on the foxholes and bunkers of a Viet Cong base at the edge of the U Minh forest.

At Khe Sanh today an Air Force C130 crashed on landing and the skidding wreckage narrowly missed hundreds of soldiers crowding the runway. The big transport burst into flames. Of approximately 20 men aboard, one, a civilian, died and five were injured.

The Viet Cong announced a three-day truce in four Mekong Delta provinces bordering Cambodia in observance of the Cambodian New Year but both the Saigon government and the American government, stung by the Viet Cong violation of the Tet truces, ignored the announcement.

The clandestine Liberation Radio said the truce would run

Little Leaguer, 9, Hit By Ball, Dies

A 9-year-old San Rafael boy died early today after being hit by a pitched ball in a Little League practice baseball game yesterday afternoon.

Thomas Francis Brunn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph C. Brunn of 1106 Grand Avenue, died at 7:25 a.m. in Marin General Hospital.

The game was a practice match at San Pedro School playground between Collins Buick and Green Realty in the San Rafoel National Leaguee.

Deputy County Coroner Keith C. Craig said the boy was batting for Collins Buick at 6:30 p.m. when he was hit in the back of the neck, below the batting helmet, by a pitch. He took two steps and collapsed, unconscious.

He was rushed to a nearby fire station for resuscitation efforts, then taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital for treatment. He was transferred to Marin General when his condition worsened last night.

Craig said the boy had no recorded history of brain damage or head injury. County Little League officials said it was the first recorded death in Marin Little League.

The boy, born in San Francisco, was a third grade pupil at Coleman School.

Besides his parents, Thomas is survived by four sisters, Linda, Laura, Denise and Patricia, all at home; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Brunn, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Becker, all of San Francisco.

A Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael Church, San Rafael. Burial will at be Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Mission Chapel of St. Raphael's Church.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Monsignor McAlister Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Easter Holiday Students Jailed

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) —Arrest of 130 vacationing college students during Easter week on narcotics charges was announced yesterday by acting Palm Springs Police Chief Robert White.

He said they are a small minority of the 7,000 persons under the age of 25 estimated to have descended on this resort community since the close of school.

All the violations except one involved marijuana possession, the police chief stated.

Troops Quit Race-Torn Big Cities

BY U.P. INTERNATIONAL

National Guard troops were withdrawn from the streets of Chicago today as were all but a few of the 13,000 GIs on duty in Washington. Racial calm prevailed over most of the nation and authorities were hopeful that Easter would bring a return to normalcy.

Kansas City, Mo., where 3,000 Guardsmen and police were protecting the peace, experienced scattered sniper fire and sporadic arson early today but the violence was not on a par with previous nights.

In Youngstown, Ohio, about 200 Guardsmen patroled the city's predominantly Negro South Side. In Cincinnati, however, guard units were withdrawn from the Negro section of Avondale and police returned to normal work shifts.

The last of about 6,900 federal troops were removed from Baltimore Saturday but another 5,700 Guardsmen were kept on duty. It was expected the Guardsmen would be pulled out Sunday if the city remains quiet.

Guardsmen in Chicago and nearby Joliet, Ill., were sent home Saturday. Officials allowed Jewish troops to depart early so they could be home for Passover by sundown.

Nerve Gas Was The Sheep Killer, Federal Health Agency Declares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Public Health Service has released evidence indicating the death of thousands of Utah sheep was caused by an Army nerve gas test.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said yesterday the services advised the Utah state director of health that a chemical agent taken from a dead sheep and forage in Utah's Skull Valley was "identical" to the nerve agent tested by the Army at Dugway Proving Grounds March 13.

The telegram said "tests have isolated a compound in snow, water, sheep blood, sheep liver tissue, and in grass taken from sheeps' stomachs which is identical to that agent supplied by the Army for comparative tests."

The first of 6,400 sheep in the valley began dying March 14—one day after the army tested the nerve agent from an aircraft some 27 miles west of the animals.

Meanwhile, a Tooele, Utah, surgeon wrote in the April 12 edition of the Medical World News that the testing at Dugway could have resulted in a "massive human disaster."

Dr. Kelly Gubler, chief of staff at Tooele Valley Hospital just east of Skull Valley, said doctors have treated cases of infection and nervous disorders which "made me wonder about Dugway."

Gubler said he did not consider Tooele immune from tests conducted at Dugway.

"We should bear in mind that with a slight amount of misdirected contaminant, there could be a massive human disaster," Gubler wrote in the New York publication.

Humphrey Not Going To Run In California?

COMBINED AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will enter the presidential race, probably on April 17, but will stay out of the June 4 California primary the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times said Humphrey aides announced the decision to run at a secret meeting with California supporters of the vice president.

Those at the meeting agreed that Humphrey wouldn't have enough time to prepare a full scale California campaign, the newspaper said.

At the meeting, the Times said, were Thomas L. Pitts, executive secretary of the California AFL-CIO; William Connell, Humphrey's chief executive assistant; Eugene Wyman, California's Democratic national committeeman; Al Barkan, head of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education; Don Bradley, manager of former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown's 1966 campaign; and Tom Saunders, Northern California manager of the primary delegation headed by State Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch.

The Lynch delegates, organized to back President Johnson, decided after the president said he wouldn't run that they would remain organized and for the time being uncommitted to a candidate.

KENNEDY BUSY

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy visited rural West Virginia after taking a Good Friday pause in his campaign for the Indiana presidential primary.

Retiring Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien joined Kennedy forces yesterday in their campaign for the May 7 Indiana presidential primary.

O'Brien met with top Kennedy strategists during the Good Friday recess in political campaigning for the Indiana primary where he faces Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., for the first time.

Kennedy planned to make a political swing through West Virginia today with stops at Welch, Madison, Pine Ridge and Charleston.

In other political developments yesterday:

McCarthy, campaigning in Boston, said the White House policy toward North Vietnam is unchanged and, as a result of Washington's rejection of Warsaw as a peace talk site, he was pessimistic negotiations would be successful.

Former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who has remained aloof from elective politics during seven years in Washington, is playing a modest role in the campaign of Senator Kennedy, appearing in two television tapes that will be used in Kennedy's drive to win the Democratic presidential nomination.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Noonan In Coma

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tommy Noonan, the comedian who turned movie producer, was in a coma today at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital in nearby Woodland Hills.

Noonan, who will be 47 April 29, has been hospitalized since he underwent surgery eight months ago for removal of a malignant brain tumor.

Noonan first attracted notice as a comedian teamed with Pete Marshall, and then launched a motion picture career as an actor-producer. He appeared opposite such screen beauties as Marilyn Monroe and Mamie Van Doren.

Baez Defies Taxes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Folksinger Joan Baez will withhold her entire income tax this year because "83 per cent of the tax money goes for armaments."

Miss Baez acknowledged at a news conference yesterday that the government will take the money from the bank and that she will wind up paying more because of penalties.

Miss Baez and her husband, David Harris, arrived here for a concert last night at Washington University and a lecture on draft resistance Easter Sunday at the university chapel.

Puzzling Violence

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A wave of violence—with no apparent motive—lashed Scotland's biggest city throughout the night.

An 18-year-old youth was stabbed to death. More than 20 injured lay in crowded hospitals today, suffering stab wounds, bottle cuts, razor slashes, kickings and beatings.

Youths, alone or in pairs, were attacked by gangs roaming the streets as crowds made their ways home from dance halls, theaters and pubs. Several were knifed when they refused demands for money. Others were beaten for no reason.

Singapore Ballot

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore held general elections today with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's Peoples' Action Party, PAP, assured of victory.

The party won 51 of the 58 Parliament seats by default on nominating day last Feb. 14, when only seven opposition candidates decided to contest the elections.

The PAP was given a good chance to sweep the seven contests and win 100 per cent control of the new Parliament.

Hippies Accused

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Despite complaints by Park Superintendent Frank Foehr, says Mayor Joseph Alioto, hippies have a right to frolic in Golden Gate Park.

"If the newspaper reports are correct," Alioto said yesterday, "the behavior of the hippies in the park is reprehensible.

"But we will see that everyone has access to the park, as we have seen that the streets will also be kept open."

Foehr said hippies throw rocks at dog catchers, "chase women and children, smoke pot, panhandle, dance in the nude," and destroy the flowers.

Lebanese golf players were so eager to have a course near hilly Beirut that they dynamited fairways out of solid rock, trucked soil from miles away and flew in special turf from abroad.

Woman Corporal Demoted, Fined

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attractive 21-year-old blonde Marine who refused further military service on grounds she opposes war and killing, has been ordered restricted to barracks for 45 days, fined $20 and demoted to private for disobeying orders.

Miss Burns

Cpl. Mary Elizabeth Burns was convicted yesterday in a summary court martial held in nearby Arlington, Va.

Execution of the sentence, which would confine her for 45 days, fine her $20 and reduce her rank from corporal to private, was stayed pending a review.

Miss Burns, who is from Grand Junction, Colo., testified that since March 19 she has refused to wear her uniform, accept her pay or perform her normal duties.

She said she came to her decision on refusing further service after three years in the Corps.

She has applied for discharge.

Volkswagen Leader Dies

Nordhoff

WOLFSBURG, Germany (UPI) — Heinz Nordhoff, who converted a bombed-out tank factory into a plant that produced one of the most popular automobiles in the world, died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 69.

Nordhoff, head of the Volkswagen Co. Since 1948, was to have retired at the end of the year.

The firm now produces more than two million cars a year.

Confessional March

CHICAGO (AP) — About 400 white persons staged a Good Friday march through four western Chicago suburbs to bear witness to white racism in America.

"We are simply confessing our white racism," said the Rev. George Hrbeck, director of the Lutheran Human Relations Commission which sponsored the march.

Power Window Kills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 2-year-old boy was strangled yesterday when his neck caught in the power window of his father's car.

Ann Cooper said her son, Gary, was playing in the car while his father, Jeremiah, worked on the engine. She said she left to answer the telephone and returned to find the child unconscious with his head wedged in the window.

German Struggle

BERLIN (UPI) — Militant student Socialists fought police today and strived to block distribution of newspapers they charged stifle nonconformity in a nationwide protest of the shooting of Rudi Dutschke.

The demonstrations also spread to other parts of Europe.

Dutschke, 28, leader of the German Socialist Students Federation, was shot in Berlin Thursday night.

Josef Bachmann, 23, a housepainter, told police he shot Dutschke because "I cannot stand Communists." Bachmann, who kept a painting of Hitler above his head, said he got the idea from the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Students concentrated their efforts against the Axel Springer Publishing Co., West Germany's largest newspaper publisher.

Railroads Hit For Proposals To End Trains

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Proposals to eliminate the last two passenger trains connecting San Francisco and Utah have run into stiff opposition from prominent Utah officials.

During the seventh and final hearing on the matter conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said yesterday the railroads owed the public adequate transportation whether or not the carriers made money on the operation.

In a statement read before ICC Examiner Edmund Fritz, Moss said the carriers owed the public continued adequate transportation as repayment for millions of acres of land given as rights of way in years past.

"These rights of way are now worth fortunes in real estate and mineral values and continue to provide revenue to the carriers," he said.

PROFITS CITED

Moss also noted that while the Southern Pacific Railroad contends it is losing money on its City of San Francisco passenger train, the company netted record overall profits of $106 million in 1966.

The railroad has applied to the ICC to discontinue the train which operates between Ogden, Utah, and the San Francisco Bay Area. The Western Pacific Railroad seeks to eliminate its California Zephyr which runs from the Bay Area to Salt Lake City.

Moss also said it was inconsistent that the carriers should be cutting back on passenger service at a time when western states were spending record amounts of money to promote tourism.

HARDSHIPS

Gov. Calvin Rampton declared the end of rail passenger service would work a severe hardship on Utah's plans to boost tourism and build the state's economy.

He also said that during periods of inclement weather rail service is often the "only completely reliable transportation for people who must travel."

Pope Paul's Fatigue Worrying The Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The effects of his fatiguing Holy Week schedule are causing new concern for the physical condition of Pope Paul VI.

At the Vatican and elsewhere special note was made today of how tired the Pope looked during Good Friday ceremonies and of the fact that he walked only part of the distance in the "Way of the Cross" procession last night.

All major Italian newspapers said he was overtired. The influential Milan daily Corriere della Sera said the Pope has been suffering for some time from a form of rheumatism that is causing him discomfort.

There was no official explanation of why this year he did not take part in the entire Way of the Cross procession as he had done in the past. Two years ago he did it in the rain.

But the curtailment was clearly a concession to the state of his health. The 70-year-old pontiff has not resumed the energetic life he enjoyed before his prostate operation of last November. He walks more slowly than he used to. He speaks less in public and more briefly.

Cahill Praises Negroes For Calm Of Last Week

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police Chief Thomas J. Cahill has praised San Francisco's 100,000 Negroes for the "calm restraint and dignified manner" in which they conducted themselves following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

But the ex-homicide inspector warned that while tensions are only "in the air" in San Francisco, they are "still running extremely high in Oakland."

Cahill refused to predict that violence would hit California cities this year, but he urged business and civic leaders at a Commonwealth Club luncheon yesterday to take the necessary steps to protect "vulnerable" businesses and employees from weapons such as rocks and firebombs.

Cahill, nationally known for his sophisticated approach to problems he described as "absolutely unbelievable in their number and complexity," established a Community Relations Unit six years ago.

He said the unit has had great success in opening up new lines of communication with the city's Negro and Spanish-speaking minorities.

In 1960, Cahill set up his first Tactical Unit consisting of "one big sergeant and six big men" during the visit of then Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. The unit now numbers 75 highly trained men broken into two-car teams of eight men under a sergeant.

"I can't tell you how many incidents have been avoided or broken up because of them," Cahill said.

Cahill also has an Intelligence Unit, which acts as an "early warning" service and spends 97 per cent of its time finding out about trouble before it breaks out.

Phone Union Voting On Strike Date

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Union officials have rejected a wage offer from Pacific Telephone Co. and called a strike vote this weekend to determine if California and Nevada workers will join a walkout set for Thursday against the nationwide Bell Telephone System.

The 400 members of Local No. 9404 in Marin County will be voting on the wage offer from 3 to 7 p.m. today at Painters Hall in San Rafael. Bernard Chiaravelle, local vice-president, said he expected the membership to support a strike.

Some 40,000 Communications Workers Union members would be affected in the two states, including about 10,000 in the Bay Area. The strike could idle up to 400,000 workers nationwide.

Pacific Telephone officials said a strike would probably delay telephone installation and repair, but would not have much effect on calls because of automatic equipment.

Pacific Telephone offered wage increases ranging from $4.50 to $21 weekly during bargaining sessions Friday. A company spokesman said it was the largest wage increase offer in PTT's history and would cost the company an annual $23 million.

But union leaders said they would ask their members to reject the offer and vote to strike.

Crowd Mourns Slain Teen-Age Black Panther

OAKLAND (AP)—A crowd of 2,000 attending an outdoor rally after the funeral of Bobby Hutton heard the 17-year-old Negro lauded as "a warrior for black liberation."

Hutton, treasurer of the militant Black Panthers, was shot by police in West Oakland last Saturday night. Another Black Panther and two police were wounded in the gun battle.

"Shot down like a common animal, he died a warrior for black liberation," said a telegram read at yesterday's rally. The wire was from the widow of Malcolm X, one-time Black Muslim leader who was assassinated.

BRANDO PRESENT

Actor Marlon Brando told the crowd, which included Negroes and Caucasians in about equal numbers, that he had just come from Hutton's funeral in nearby Berkeley.

"That could have been my son lying there," Brando said.

"The preacher said that the white man can't cool it because he has never dug it. I'm trying to dig it," Brando said. "That is why I am here."

Speakers at the emotion-packed rally used a microphone on a flatbed truck. No police were seen at the rally site, a grassy slope near the Alameda County courthouse.

'RACIST PIGS'

But Bobby Seale, chairman of the Oakland Black Panthers, told the rally he had spotted police, saying "There are pigs on top of the library behind you...They must know that every time these racist pigs attack us we are going to defend ourselves."

Seale said a planned motorcade to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville had been canceled because of reports "that we would be slaughtered."

Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther who suffered a foot wound in the April 6 shoot-out, is being held at the facility.

Some 1,500 attended the service for Hutton in Berkeley and a contingent escorted the body to Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland for burial.

Churches Set Memorial For Doctor King

The Marin County Council of Churches and other representatives of faith have announced formation of a Martin Luther King Memorial Fund in Marin to help meet job and community needs for Negroes and to combat white prejudice.

The group has asked Marin clergy to appeal for funds at Easter and Passover services.

A message to church leaders said funds would be used to staff and furnish the new Manzanita Community Center in Marin City to establish job-training and job opportunities and for a program of "social education" to eliminate bias in white communities.

The faith leaders said contributions may be made in church or mailed to the Martin Luther King Memorial Fund, Box 857, San Rafael 94902.

Signing the appeal for donations were Rev. Henry Kent, president of the Marin County Council of Churches; Rev. Harold K. Graves, president of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary; Rev. John J. O'Connor of Catholic Social Services; Rev. David Noel Freedman, dean of faculty, San Francisco Theological Seminary, and Rabbi Morton Hoffman of Congregation Rodef Sholom.

as Christian Arabs and pilgrims from many lands including the United States trod the Way of the Cross along the Via Dolorosa and filed into the Church of the Holy Sepulchre for the final stations. It is believed Christ was crucified on the spot where the church now stands and also entombed there.

A bit of Christian-Jewish ecumenism was to occur in Starved Rock State Park near Ottawa, Ill., some 60 miles southwest of Chicago. There the Rev. Joseph Donnelly, a Jesuit, will conduct a Judeo-Christian Mass near the place where another Jesuit, the Rev. Jacques Marquette, held the first non-Indian religious ceremony in Illinois 293 years ago. To remind of Marquette's usual mode of travel, Father Donnelly will say the Mass on an overturned canoe.

And in New York City's Central Park there'll be a Yip-out on Easter morning. The Yippies —members of the Youth International Party, many of them reconstructed hippies—say they'll build a mountain of canned goods for use during the Poor Peoples March on Washington this spring.

That march was to have been led by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and in communities across the nation the joy of Easter was tinged with continued mourning for the slain civil rights leader.

The Black Congress in Los Angeles said it would hold a service in Will Rogers Park near the scene of the 1965 Watts riot. Director Walter Bremond asked that "all people of good will not buy goods at Easter, but aid with contributions our fight to escape white racism."

Opera soprano Mary Costa is to sing at 5 a.m. tomorrow at an event described by sponsors in Los Angeles as "the largest sunrise service in the world." Up to 20,000 worshipers are expected to jam the Hollywood Bowl. To the north in San Francisco more than 100 Evangelical churches are to join in an annual Easter sunrise service in Union Square.

Books Dropped Five Stories Injure Guard

San Quentin Prison guard Harold J. Mesick, 39, of Glen Ellen, was reported improved and in good condition today at Marin General Hospital, where he was admitted Thursday when an unknown person dropped a box of books on him while he was patrolling the south block.

The box fell five stories and hit Mesick on the shoulder, but hospital officials today said the shoulder was not broken. San Quentin officials said they haven't learned yet who dropped the box.

Young Sailor Nabbed After Boat Chase

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A San Lorenzo youth was arrested yesterday after the Coast Guard chased a cabin cruiser through the Golden Gate and back again toward Alcatraz island.

The suspect, William Herbst II, 20, was apprehended when two Coast Guards vessels managed to pull along side the 32-foot craft. He was booked on suspicion of grand theft.

LBJ's Easter At Ranch Mostly Spent On Work

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—President Johnson spent a quiet day working at his Hill Country ranch Saturday where he was being kept in touch with developments in the U. S. search for a site to begin peace talks with North Vietnam.

The Texas White House said the President was also being kept abreast of the racial situation at home.

The President's work day today included some work on appointments.

Johnson is scheduled to meet Wednesday in Hawaii with South Korean President Park Chung Hee to discuss bilateral problems between the two nations. Park has been pressing for the meeting which was postponed last weekend when Johnson was forced to remain in Washington because of the outbreak of rioting following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

At least one subject that will come under serious discussion will be South Korea's role in any eventual peace talks with North Vietnam.

Last Tuesday at Camp David, Md., Johnson said he had been "back in touch" with Hanoi on the search for a site after securing the agreement of U. S. allies in Vietnam on suggestions for a site.

Mrs. Johnson and the President's daughter Luci and his grandson Lyn were also at the ranch for the Easter weekend.

The President's other daughter, Lynda, remained in Washington. Both Luci's husband Pat Nugent and Lynda's husband Charles Robb are serving in Vietnam. Nugent is an Air Force enlisted man, Robb is a Marine Corps captain.

The Vietnamese War was brought even closer to home Saturday to President Johnson with disclosure that Pat Nugent had arrived in Vietnam as a special volunteer for duty with a tactical fighter unit near Cam Ranh Air Base.

Nugent, 24, was transferred from his unit, the 113th Tactical Fighter Wing at Andrews AFB and was sent to Vietnam at his personal request. His new assignment is "apprentice weapons mechanic."

Nugent flew to Vietnam on an airplane that also carried Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

CAMPUS

April 4 meeting of the college district board, according to Schwartz. Diamond then asked to be considered for the position, and was told a selection had already been made.

The board meeting agenda listed the matter only as "creation of a new administrative position," without hint it was the presidency.

When Donlon, Schwartz and Diamond objected to the precipitate action on behalf of the faculty, board president Elizabeth M. Deedy said it was taken because of the need for Ramstad to devote his time to planning the Novato campus.

"They're locking us into a second campus which we're not sure the district can afford," Donlon told the Independent-Journal.

Schwartz said the budget for next year shows a deficit, and there is now no way in sight to operate a second campus without a considerable increase in the college district tax rate.

If work goes ahead on the second campus, he asserted, residents of the district will be put in the position of being forced to pay higher taxes because of the commitments, he asserted.

Driver Hurt, Faces Charges In Collision

A Lucas Valley man was arrested last night by California Highway Patrol officers on suspicion of felony drunken driving after a head-on collision on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Fairfax in which he and two other persons were injured.

Robert Grey Dresser, 24, of 573 Idylberry Road, crossed over the double yellow line on the highway at the base of White's Hill, according to officers, smashing head-on into a car driven by David Clarence Emehiser, 26, of 21 Castle Rock Road, Woodacre.

Dresser was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a cut scalp and possible concussion. His passenger, Robert Owings, 30, of 50 Laurel Grove Road, Ross, was treated for a cut forehead.

Emehiser was not injured but his wife, Eloise, 25, was treated for multiple bruises. Their daughter, Davina, 8 months, received a bloody nose, according to officers.

The accident occurred at 8:50 p.m.

Unused Blasting Cap Found In Backyard

An exposed blasting cap wire was uncovered during a back yard work project at 2:31 p.m. yesterday in a yard at 2411 Queenstone Drive, Marinwood.

The 87th Explosive Ordnance Demolition squad from the Presidio of San Francisco, called in by the Marinwood Fire Department to defuse the cap, said the wire was left over from an old charge and was not dangerous. The wires and cap were removed by the fire department.

Young Vandals Hit School Cafeteria

Youths, apparently searching for money, littered the San Rafael High School cafeteria last night with food, according to police.

Officers noticed a broken window in the building about 2 a.m. and found that a rock had been thrown through it. Drawers in which cash is normally kept were open, and peanuts, milk, cookies and ice cream had been thrown on the floor. Police said the drawers had contained no money.

Hybrid corn is the result of inbreeding selected strains to develop desirable qualities, then crossing the strains. Often two hybrids are interbred to create what is called a double cross.

Parents Ask To See Scores

The Mill Valley Concerned Citizens for Education have called on the Mill Valley School District to furnish parents the scores made by their children in nationally standardized achievement tests.

The request has been sent to the District Committee on Reporting to Parents, the staff at Alto School, Supt. James E. Collins and the district board, announced Betty Weir, chairman pro-tem of the Concerned Citizens.

It calls the written progress reports recently adopted at Alto School "a step forward" but notes, "These are subjective judgments."

"Besides indicating how well the child is progressing, the test scores would demonstrate how well the new teaching methods are succeeding," says the letter of request.

The Concerned Parents will next meet at 8 p.m. on May 2 at the Weir home, 6 Meadow Drive, when permanent officers will be elected.

the college Academic Senate on an 80-3 vote, said that Ramstad had disregarded the "basic professional and democratic values of the academic community" in not seeking its help in college planning, including planning for a north campus near Novato.

The charges followed trustees' naming of Louis H. Herkenhoff as president of the College of Marin Kentfield campus. Ramstad was relieved of that post and elevated to the newly separated position of superintendent.

Barbiturates Denied By Pair

John S. Gonzales, 20, of Berkeley, and Linda S. Revoir, 25, of San Anselmo, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a misdemeanor charge that they possessed barbiturates April 1.

The two were first charged with a felony, possession of marijuana, after a sheriff's deputy stopped their car on Tiburon Boulevard and reported finding the weed and some pills in the car.

The misdemeanor charge was substituted yesterday by the district attorney. Jury trial on the charge was scheduled for July 11.

San Rafael Boy Accused Of Theft

A 17-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of petty theft after being seen by neighbors rifling cars and garages in Santa Venetia shortly after midnight.

Sheriff's deputies said they found in the youth's car a golf club which D. J. Gregson of 703 Vendola Drive identified as belonging to him.

Gregson said the club had been in his car, parked outside his home.

In Sonoma County, the three are charged with killing Charles Kauffman, 19, and raping his 19-year-old female companion.

Burglars Enjoy Expensive Drink

Burglars, with a taste for the good things in life, have entered the Inverness summer home of Mark E. Latham of Palo Alto and stolen a portable radio.

Latham told sheriff's deputies the burglars swilled a bottle of champagne, leaving two empty glasses beside it.

Elsewhere, Dr. Edward Healy of 130 Deer Hollow Road, Sleepy Hollow, reported the theft of a diamond ring, valued at $2,000, from his home.

from 1 a.m. Saturday until 1 a.m. Tuesday (noon today EST to noon Monday).

The forest, a Communist stronghold for more than 20 years, has been ravaged by at least 70 forest fires this week and many Viet Cong units were forced to the open ground to escape the flames.

The spokesmen would not indicate whether the strikes were ordered against guerrillas fleeing the fires but the area hit was right at the edge of the forest about 140 miles southwest of Saigon.

The fires have touched off a number of explosions, apparently in Viet Cong ammunition dumps, and intelligence sources said they have done more damage than any attack on the area in 20 years.

In another major air war development the trouble-plagued F111A swingwing jet fighter-bombers raided North Vietnam Friday for the first time since March 30, taking part in a total of 90 missions flown by U.S. pilots during the day.

The new jets were grounded after two were lost flying some of their first raids on the north.

The $6 million planes hit truck parks and other targets 25 miles northwest of Dong Hoi in the southern panhandle, U.S. officials said.

ry to what Johnson said," Nhan Dan said.

Diplomatic observers in Paris said Hanoi may be seriously thinking of suggesting Paris as the site for the preliminary discussions. The pro-Gaullist newspaper Prance-Soir, quoting informed sources in Washington, said "if Hanoi proposes Paris, Washington will say yes."

The Australian government today backed the United States in proposing that the talks be held "in a capital which clearly is neutral."

The Hanoi commentary said that while the United States has halted bombing in a large part of North Vietnam, it has increased attacks on the southern sections of the country.

"In Thanh Hoa province, the number of areas under attack has doubled compared with the previous corresponding period," Nhan Dan said. It said many of the areas in the southern panhandle are now subjected to round-the-clock bombings.

In Washington, U. S. officials remain optimistic that after Hanoi derives as much propaganda as possible from America's refusal to meet "at any spot on earth" for preliminary peace talks, a place agreeable to both sides will be found.

Both sides continued private efforts yesterday to find a mutually acceptable meeting place for initial "contacts."

Stolen Vehicle Found Stripped

A car which a Sausalito man reported missing from his home has been found in Marin City, stripped of many of its parts.

David D. Loring, who lives on a houseboat at Gate 6, told sheriff's deputies that his 1955 Chevrolet was gone at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Deputies found it later in a parking lot on Drake Avenue, Marin City, but the wheels, bucket seats, dashboard gauges, radio speaker, battery, generator, steering wheel and air cleaner had been removed.

Board To Hear Parking Ideas At Civic Center

Michael A. Crystal, Marin County administrative analyst, recommended spending $2,500 yesterday to increase the number of parking spaces at the Civic Center.

Calling the board of supervisors attention to a parking crush on certain days, Crystal said the money would be used to restripe some areas to provide more spaces. Areas not now marked for parking also could be used, he said.

Crystal said restriping would bring the total number of marked spaces to 530.

The analyst also proposed hiring a civilian parking attendant to enforce the two-hour parking restriction for visitors. The attendant would be paid $500 for part time work as an experiment from May 1 until July 1.

The supervisors will consider Crystal's recommendations Tuesday.

ART REVIEW

Bart Perry Returns; His Works Explosive

By LAURA DEVENDORF

After 12 years in New York, artist Bart Perry has returned to Marin. And a sense of what those interim years have brought his work can be experienced this month in his show of paintings at the Unitarian Universalist Church in San Rafael.

Basically, his work is an explosion. Explosions of color form the basis of his non-objective designs, directed and defined by a kind of dot-dash explosive calligraphy. And even when minus color, his ink wash drawings give the same impression.

AREAS CONFINED

In his large paintings, areas of acid greens or yellows or reds are often confined by frenzied short-stroked lines in a rainbow of hues. But restrained or not, Perry gives the big areas an eruptive sense through his splatter and splash way of applying paint.

This kind of technique is far from new but in several of his works Perry manages a very real sense of power, sometimes violence, that is unusually arresting.

It is certainly true of one vertical canvass where patterns burst like pastel fireworks over almost the entire surface. And in two others where color masses are broken by stringy, strong-toned, fragmented lines, the movement and emotion in his work is intense and undeniably absorbing.

WATERCOLORS DIFFER

Perry's watercolors are less fiery. Instead, he thickens the descriptive, dark outlines of his larger works into moody foreground masses which splinter away at their edges and fall into deep space. The impression in these is of densely tangled root networks exposed to air, the holes in them revealing faded space beyond.

In all media, Perry's strong line-drawing, stark contrasts and his use of spatters and splashes give his work both action and textural interest.

If his color combinations frequently border the billious or his frenzy is unsettling, these qualities always emphasize his point—which is one of space, energy and force. It's one that isn't always pretty but one that is interesting for its impact.

If a visitor stands with his back to a fountain in Rome and throws a coin into it over his shoulder, he is said to be assured a return visit to the Eternal City.

Classical Guitarist To Play At Sonoma

Tam Trustees Slate Hiring

Appointment of a replacement for Eunice E. Reader, director of pupil personnel services, is scheduled at the 8 p.m. meeting Monday of the Tamalpais High School District Board at district offices, Redwood High School.

The vacancy occurred with resignation of Miss Reader effective next July.

The board also is scheduled to award a contract for the 1967-68 district auditing, and consider hiring of six teachers for next year.

Lucas Valley Subdivision Before Marin's Planners

A tentative map for Lucas Valley Unit 9, a 56-lot subdivision just west of the Juvenile Hall entrance, will come before the Marin County Planning Commission Monday afternoon.

Perma-Bilt Homes wants to build on 18.5 acres between Lucas Valley and Idylberry roads and between Mount Lassen and Mount Shasta drives.

The Lucas Valley planned community master plan will have to be amended to permit the new subdivision of one-family homes. Part of the area is now designated for multi-family residential and for a church site, under the master plan.

In the morning, the planning commission will consider a tentative map submitted by Dagny J. Krag for 10 lots on three acres at the corner of Edgewood and Molino avenues, Mill Valley.

Several rezoning items are on the morning agenda. One is the rezoning of a marina area on the Petaluma River waterfront between the Highway 37 bridge and the railroad bridge, which is now zoned industrial.

Another is the proposed rezoning of the 20-acre Julia T. Sequeira property on Miller Creek Road at Las Gallinas Avenue, Marinwood. The planning staff recommends that the present agricultural zoning be changed to one-family residential.

The afternoon agenda includes a discussion to revise the county sign ordinance.

Literacy Fund Request Slated

The educational services committee of the Marin County Board of Education will consider requesting board approval to apply for federal support of a literacy program for adults in Marin.

Following up on an application for federal aid to expand the literacy program at San Quentin Prison, the committee discovered that 8,890 Marinites over 25 years old are below the 8th grade reading level, according to the 1960 census, Asst. County Supt. of Schools Stanley H. Friese said today.

The board's three committees will meet Monday, starting with the administrative services committee at 7:30 p.m., followed by the educational services committee at 8 p.m. and the special education committee meeting at 8:30 p.m. The committees meet at the county superintendent of schools office in Corte Madera.

Jail, Fine Imposed For Drunken Driving

Robert William Taylor, 47, of Sebastopol, was sentenced to five days in jail, fined $289 and placed on a year of probation in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for driving while drunk on Highway 101 Aug. 19.

Taylor had a previous conviction for drunken driving.

Marin Office Resumes Federal Jobless Checks

Marin residents eligible for unemployment benefits due former federal employees and servicemen will begin receiving payments Monday for the first time in four weeks, according to Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the San Rafael office, State Department of Employment.

Ayer said that the benefits, normally paid to about 100 jobless people a week in Marin, were cut off on March 18 when the government's unemployment insurance fund ran short.

An emergency appropriation now has been made to cover the payments of $25 to $65 a week for the period beginning April 7.

Another appropriation is expected shortly, Ayer explained, so that retroactive payments may be made for the four-week period when benefits were cut off.

These benefits are separate from those paid to people whose last jobs were with private employers. The State Unemployment Insurance Fund which pays benefits to people formerly in private industry has not been affected by the federal shortage of funds.

REEDLAND WOODS

REEDLAND WOODS is a new and posh area in which you can find hunting lodge tranquility amid the ultimate in modern comforts. Groups of stately Eucalyptus trees throughout dominate the setting. It is close to shopping and transportation yet far enough away to give you that "vacation home" feeling. It is secluded yet comfortably near to the City. REEDLAND WOODS homes, highlighted by the dramatic use of wooden beams, have all been designed by nationally-known architects. Now that we have introduced REEDLAND WOODS to you, let us introduce four of its extraordinary homes:

1. This is a Warren Callister designed 4-bedroom, 2 1/2-bath split-level home. Beautiful master bdrm. suite, 2 massive fireplaces, even not lighted, give this home warmth. Distinctive skylight windows add to its elegance. Cooking will be a favorite pastime in the expensive Terra Cotta tile floored kitchen. Surrounded by patios & situated on an over 2,800-sq.-ft. lot with two pool sites. $62,500.

2. A magnificent portal leads you into this dream home. 3 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths. One of the bedrooms has stairs that will take you to a delightful hayloft-type room. Master bedroom suite has its own full bathroom, dressing room and "run-in" closet. Huge fireplace and cathedral beam ceiling in the living room, give it an air of majesty. The elegant dining room and kitchen atmosphere bring additional flavor to your deliciously prepared dishes. Gracious and cozy family room. $55,500

3. This most uniquely designed 4-bedroom, 2 1/2-bath home is highlighted by an impressive semicircular dining room. Two unusually beautiful fireplaces, one in the comfortable and spacious living room and another in the elegant master bedroom suite. Again, cooking will become a hobby in this home's ultramodern kitchen. $63,500.

4. A most attractive two-way brick fireplace divides this home's gold-carpeted & skylight-windowed living room from the dining and sitting room. 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths. Beautifully hand-laid parquet floor in the family room. A rustic wooden staircase off the hall will lead you to a most singular library. $59,500.

The above described homes have rooms that are all large and most tastefully designed! They have closet space galore, wall-to-wall carpeting, laundry rooms, and back yards ideal for outdoor entertaining!

Best-seller time is tonight

For every I-J advertiser, an advantage in selling

When you, as an advertiser, purchase space in the I-J, your message gains a TIME ADVANTAGE worth dollars and cents in the till. For as an EVENING NEWSPAPER, the I-J reaches your customer prospects at the PRIME BUYING TIME . . . in the evening, when people have the MOST TIME to read and consider your merchandise and prices.

This EVENING READING TIME is nothing to pass over lightly. This is when buying decisions are made . . . when people are relaxed, receptive, actively in search of advertised values. Contrast this with radio, with morning newspapers, with circulars. In the I-J, readers search the ads, page by page. They WANT TO READ, have TIME to read . . . have time to "talk it over," compare, decide. Even the kids get into the act! Small wonder the I-J is Marin's first choice for advertising . . . by both readers and advertisers.

MORE FOR YOUR STORE
The I-J out-sells all other newspapers in Marin. More daily Marin circulation than the Chronicle and Examiner combined.

Couple Arraigned On Short-Funds Check

Joe and Bonita Henderson of Long Beach were arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on charges that they cashed a $145 check at Hanna Leather Co., Sausalito, July 4, without sufficient funds in the bank to cover the check.

Judge Hadden W. Roth set bail at $500 each for the man and wife and continued their case until Monday for plea.

Mother, Three Girls All Marry At Once

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Only the minister fumbled his lines when Mrs. Margaret Smith married a Texas oil driller and her three teen-age daughters wed Navy sailors in a simultaneous eight ring ceremony yesterday.

"If there be any among you who know why these two — I mean these eight—should not be joined together, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," intoned Elder James P. Sandefur, of Shiloah Primitive Baptist Church.

The four couples recited their "I do's" one at a time and kissed simultaneously at the end of the service.

WATCHED TV

Then they drove to Mrs. Smith's newly redecorated house for a party, and watched a newscast of their wedding on television.

Mrs. Smith, 38, married Miniford McCoy, also 38, of Muleshoe, Tex. The three men who married her daughters all are sailors aboard the U.S. Navy destroyer Maddox, which recently returned from action off the coast of Vietnam.

Mrs. Smith's eldest daughter, Rachel, 19, married sonarman Charles Haines Jr., 21, of Winsted, Conn. Eighteen year old Laura tied the knot with Michael Bakey, 19, of Indianapolis, Ind. The youngest girl, Edna, 16, married gunners mate Richard Stone, 23, of Tampa, Fla.

To the strains of "Here Comes the Bride," the couples lined up at the altar of the tiny Bride's Choice Chapel here with Mrs. Smith and McCoy on the far left.

MINISTER WORRIES

It had been a day of soul searching for Elder Sandefur, who ordinarily performs up to 25 marriages a day, but never before four at a time.

"I don't know whether to have them pledge their vows in unison or separately," he said before the ceremony. "I can't make up my mind whether it would be appropriate for all of them to say 'I do' right together, or take them one at a time."

Sandefur, who said he usually gets $10 for small weddings and $30 for elaborate ones, received $45 for his eight-minute stint last night. McCoy handed him the money with a grin, remarking that he'd certainly acquired a family in a hurry.

The audience at the wedding —all nine of them—barely outnumbered the eight brides and grooms. Guests included Haines' parents, who came from Connecticut for the event.

Mrs. McCoy wore a blue dress. Rachel had on a short, yellow dress, while Laura wore black and white. Only Edna had a white bridal gown with a veil. The daughters' bridegrooms all wore dark suits.

ONLY TEARS

The only tears came from Mrs. Smith's 13 year old son, Darryl, who alternately sobbed and snapped colored pictures. Another son, Ronnie, 10, was with friends in Indiana.

How did they all decide to get married together?

"Well the two oldest girls had set a wedding date," the new Mrs. McCoy recalled. "Mr. McCoy and I hadn't decided on a date, but then Edna said she wanted to get married with the other girls, and then we just decided to all get married together. I didn't realize it would cause all this fuss."

No honeymoon trips are planned. McCoy moved into his new wife's redecorated house. The girls and their husbands have a busy round of apartment hunting ahead of them before the Maddox sails again. All the husbands are on short leaves from the vessel.

Mrs. Smith made her own wedding dress before the event and baked her own wedding cake.

Public Help Sought For Killing Clues

Marin sheriff's inspectors, seeking clues to the murder of wealthy dairy rancher Carlos A. Silveira, are asking help from the public.

Inspector Bowen Bridges said his office is particularly interested in information about any cars seen in the vicinity of the ranch between 9 and 11 p.m. the day of the murder — March 5.

Silveira, 41, was slain with a single bullet to the heart as he stepped from his car in the ranch's four-car garage that night.

Inspectors say he was felled by a bullet from either a .32-20 Colt or a .32 New Police Colt revolver.

Mary E. Silveira, his mother, has offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the capture and conviction of his killer or killers.

The information should be given to the sheriff, Louis P. Mountanos, who will judge who should get the reward, she said.

$75,000 Suit In Bar Fracas

A 30-year-old San Anselmo man yesterday sued the Knott Inn Bar of San Anselmo and the man accused of stabbing him during the fracas in the saloon for $75,000.

John Capley, of 50 Ash Avenue, filed the suit against Neils Hyrum Hansen, 46, of Petaluma, the bar and 20 unidentified defendants.

Hansen has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in Marin Superior Court to charges that he stabbed Capley and Eugene Paine, 43, of San Anselmo, during a dispute in the bar over a $1.75 taxi bill.

Capley's suit claims the bartender and owners of the tavern should have known that Hansen's presence in the bar was dangerous for other patrons.

One More Vote Needed For Welfare Disclosure

In the month that he became governor of California, Ronald Reagan sent the legislature a message asking that it re-assess public welfare programs and take a "jobs, not handouts" approach.

Reagan told the lawmakers:

"There is growing recognition that welfare programs, as we have known them in the past, tend really to perpetuate poverty."

He announced plans for a "comprehensive review" of the state's welfare programs, and asserted:

"The truly deserving must not be short-changed because of welfare chiselers and cheats. And the taxpayer, who bears the load, must be able to know with reasonable assurance that his money is not going to support the lazy and indolent!"

NOTHING MUCH has come since of the governor's promised comprehensive review; and if the legislature has changed its attitude toward public welfare, the change has not been noticeable. But one legislator has introduced a bill which would do much to give the taxpayer, who bears the load, reasonable assurance of where his money goes.

The legislator is State Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin. His bill, SB 102, would open welfare payment records to public inspection It would apply to payment records only, not any personal or confidential information in the welfare files.

The bill has advanced to third reading in the Senate but has been placed on the inactive file at Schmitz's request, as he feels he needs one more vote for passage.

Last year, Schmitz introduced a virtually identical bill which wound up with a 20-20 tie vote in the Senate. Lt. Gov. Robert Finch voted for it to break the tie, but it was killed in the Assembly.

SENATOR SCHMITZ contends that if the record of who was paid what from welfare funds were public, this would discourage chiseling and would result in discovery of welfare chiselers who now escape punishment because of the secret nature of the rolls.

The argument against the bill is that it would subject those receiving public assistance to embarrassing publicity.

It has long been a law that delinquent tax lists not only are open to public inspection but must be published in a newspaper of general circulation. This may be embarrassing to someone who, for one reason or another, has failed to pay his taxes; but it serves a purpose.

Various kinds of federal payments, such as soil conservation, are public by law. Again, a purpose is served: the taxpayer can find out where at least some of his money goes.

PUBLIC DISCLOSURE of welfare payments would, we think, serve an even better purpose, and would work to the benefit of those deserving public assistance, while at the same time lightening the tax load.

The Orange County senator works under somewhat of a handicap. He is the only John Birch Society member in the California Legislature. Opponents are inclined to label anything Schmitz introduces as a "Birch bill."

This kind of opposition, however, is itself bigotry in the extreme. The bill should be judged on its own merit, not on the affiliations or political bent of its sponsor.

We hope Senator Schmitz finds the one more vote needed, and that the Assembly this time will also pass the bill.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

Holy Saturday is a good time to reflect on one of Christ's most universal sayings:

"Unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it bears much fruit.' (John 12:24)

Every farmer knows this is true.

And the Lord knew that His own body, like the grain of wheat, must lie in the womb of death for three days before rising for the life of the world.

Leo the Great, one of the Church Fathers, exclaimed:

"O wonderful power of the cross!
O unspeakable glory of the passion!
Your cross, O Lord, is the source of all blessings, cause of all the gifts of grace.
Through it to them that believe is given strength out of weakness glory out of shame, life out of death."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

150 Teen-agers —And No Trouble

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Sunday evening, April 7, we had the opportunity to host approximately 150 Terra Linda High School students in our home. These young people were members of the cast, orchestra and crew of the spring musical "Guys and Dolls." As you can well imagine, the throught of having this many people in your home is rather terrifying. I am very happy to say that this party, which lasted from 7 p.m. until midnight, including a barbecue, swimming, and dancing, was totally without regretable incident and all attending told us they had a "swell time."

All to often we read about the "teenagers in trouble" and not often enough does the press inform us of the good things done by the generation that will soon be leaders of our community.

We would like to take this opportunity to commend the faculty and staff of Terra Linda High School for their untiring efforts to provide us with a well rounded group of young people who will soon be the scientists, teachers, politicians, journalists, laborers, and professional people of tomorrow.

Some Who Doubt King's Non-violence

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In its Feb. 17 issue, Human Events reported that the late Martin Luther King participated in a meeting with Stokely Carmichael and H. Rap Brown. As all informed Americans know, these are the characters who boldly and persistntly threaten to burn down our cities and destroy the United States of America.

On the front page of The Worker (Communist) of Feb. 11, 1968, King was quoted as saying, "I think it is time to say that it is the Congress of the United States that is causing the riots in America." Obviously, he meant that Congress was causing the riots because it has not met his demands. . . .

Frank S. Meyer, former member of the CPUSA and now a columnist for National Review, states the following concerning King (issue of April 20, 1965): "As I read Dr. King, I wondered where I had previously heard those accents of non-violence. Suddenly I remembered. It was Friedrich Engels, who denied that the Marxist revolutionaries of his day espoused violence. No, he said, we shall not institute violence; all we shall do is make the maintenance of existing civil order impossible, and then its defenders will have either to use violence or surrender . . . This is the meaning of Dr. King's non-violence. It is a tactic, and it is hypocrisy on a grand scale."

The welfare of our country calls for an awakening concerning the real Martin Luther King. His true nature leaks out often enough to alert Americans whose minds are not completely closed.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

'They Meet With Darkness In The Daytime' (Job 5:14)

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

"There was a man in the land of Marin, whose name was Commuter; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared taxes, and eschewed evil."

Surely Job had nothing on the commuter, who must be tempted each day to rent his mantle, shave his head, and fall down on the ground.

Each day, the commuter puts up with the sort of monumental frustration that in other times has driven citizens to defenestrate their leaders.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS HERE have perfected the art of knitting their brows into an expression that is supposed to show they realize the gravity of the transportaion problem, and in the past four years this reporter has seen a lot of knitted brows.

But there has not been any progress at all in improving the lot of the commuter, or of the unfortunates who must use public transit within Marin.

The really incredible thing is that there can be so much spinning of wheels with so little friction. The public officials go on knitting their brows, and the citizens go on suffering in almost complete silence.

The impediments to progress are mighty. Marin officialdom is afraid to make any decision that would cause the expenditure of tax money to actually do something—other than order more study.

SAN FRANCISCO supervisors have made their position clear. "I get no votes from the fellow in Marin," said one. Another likes the idea of a traffic light on the Golden Gate Bridge that would be green only 30 seconds each hour.

Creation in 1964 of the San Francisco Bay Transportation Study Commission stirred hope that it might lead to some solutions, but Marin County planners already have said the commission's work is not detailed enough to be useful to help solve little problems like the Marin-San Francisco jam. ("How long will it be ere ye make an end of words?")

The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors are the only officials who have tried to do something concrete, only their plan seemed a little too much concrete to many. ("Then thou scarest me with dreams, and terrifiest me with visions.")

Officialdom probably never will get off the dime unless it's given a powerful shove by the citizens. Loud screaming may startle it into fits of action, but citizens will have to shove hard and long if they are going to get the kind of action needed to solve the transportation mess.

A SENATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Youth Still Respects Age—And Vice-Versa

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In a poll of students who will have reached the age to vote in the November elections, survey teams of the Amarillo Globe-Times canvassed young men and women on the campuses of two universities—Southern Methodist at Dallas and Baylor at Waco. They asked the question: "What 10 people in public life do you most admire in the United States?" Sen. Everett M. Dirksen was the choice. He was named by 39 per cent of the students.)

By EVERETT M. DIRKSEN

Year by year, more and more people in public service get older and so, quite naturally, the question is sometimes raised whether at some given age a person has retained his talent and capacity for that public service. What do the 20 million senior citizens think? What do the younger citizens think?

The fasts show that age, in spite of a seeming national emphasis on youth, is respected and sought after in government; not only in our country but in countries everywhere in the world.

In the United States, for example, Senators Gruening of Alaska and Hayden of Arizona are well over 80 years of age, and 13 other senators are over 70. Six of them are chairmen of important committees.

CONTEMPORARY history furnishes some other good examples. Chiang Kai-shek, who directs the affairs of Free China, is 80. Ho Chi Minh, who is the North Vietnam thorn in our side, is 76. Franco of Spain is very active at 75. The late Konrad Adenauer was well over 85 when he stepped down as German chancellor. Averill Harriman, our trouble shooter on foreign affairs, is 75. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, is 73. A very active former president, General Eisenhower, is 77. George Meany, who is president of the AFL-CIO, is 73.

Many of us in government have learned, much to our pleasure, that it simply is not true our young people have little use for their elders; as you might sometimes be led to believe now and then.

The young adults show their use for older people when they go to the polls. It is there that all of us show our concern for the affairs of the nation, for the future of the nation. No man or woman could be elected to public office these days if the voters who are both young and old did not choose to send them there. Election Day is the time when nobody fools anybody very much anymore.

I THINK the national attitude on age probably has centered on one point in 1968: It is not age alone that earns respect. A public servant of some years must have something else besides years, something added, to qualify him to sit at the council tables and help to untangle the affairs of our country.

The 20 millions of us who are past 65, the nearly 100 millions who are not yet 30, have proved that we both have a respect for age—if age carries with it the ability to help to govern with the consent of the governed. Age does not necessarily dull a man's alertness or sharply impair his vitality.

Our future is better because of the 20 millions who have helped to build our affluence—let us not forget it. Our future is better because of the young people who are showing that they are eager to work in government with the older people.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE of today amaze us. They are better trained at 25 and 30 than we seniors were. Their interests are wider than ours were. We only knew what was in the books when we got out of college. Today, by the time a college student is ready to graduate, he probably has worked in somebody's political campaign, and he is likely to know the score.

We older people in politics work with the younger ones. And it is wonderful to see the trend. More young people are training particularly for participation in politics. They want to serve, they want to work for government.

The older people amaze us, too, because they understand and because they, too, are living for the future.

Little Passover Thanks For Berated Polish Jews

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

This week end as Christians prepared for Easter and the commemoration of the resurrection of Christ, Jews begin their special thanksgiving for release from bondage in Egypt, the days of Passover.

But for some 30,000 Jews in Poland, the thanksgiving must be colored by a new rise in anti-Semitism.

That it is largely a smokescreen to cover internecine warfare within the Communist Party, to the scores of Jews fired from their jobs and held up as "nihilits" disloyal to their country this can be of small comfort as they take over their traditional role as scapegoats of history.

THEIR REAL SIN is that among them are some of the intellectuals and liberals who clamor for a liberalization such as is ocurring in Czechoslovakia, others are associated with the harsh days of Josef Stalin and all are caught in the pincers of a power struggle within the party unequalled since the rise to power of party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka after the riots of 1956.

And Gomulka's own failure to bring a measure of moderation into the resurgence of anti-Semitism in Poland may be regarded also as a measure of the deterioration of his own position within the party.

THE RISE of anti-Semitism and the bitter inter-party struggle have been long in the brewing.

On the one hand are the middle-of-the-roaders led by Gomulka whose policy has been based on a belief in the necessity of retaining close ties with the Soviet Union. Most of the leadership in this and the conservative wing of the party received its training in Moscow.

It is an aging leadership tarnished by its association with Stalinism.

Opposed are the militant partisans of the far left, lacking an economic program which is the foundation stone communism, nationalistic, anti-Semitic and anti-U.S. These stayed at home and fought in the underground during World War II while others went to Moscow.

Aiding the Partisan cause was an outbreak of student demonstrations early in March demanding liberal reforms and mounting disappointment in the regime's failure to carry out promises made after the October, 1956, uprisings.

GOMULKA, whose wife is Jewish, himself opened the door to a rise of anti-Semitism when last July he denounced that portion of the population whose sentiments lay with Israelis in the Mideast war and opposed the official policy of support for the Arabs.

His suggestion that Israeli sympathizers were disloyal to Poland opened the door which later he was unable to close.

In Poland there are today some 30,000 Jews remaining of a pre-war population of some 3.5 million. Today they are accused of crimes ranging from Stalinism to revisionism and of selling out to West Germany in hopes of financial gain.

The Jews in Poland already are the losers.

ONLY ONE CLAIMS POLITICIAN LABEL

528 Seeking Nominations In Primary For State Legislature, Congress Jobs

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—There are 582 persons seeking nominations for state legislative and congressional offices on the June 4 primary election ballot, but only one of them admits to being or claims to be a politician.

Candidates for the offices listed nearly 100 different occupations or followings but only Jeffrey R. Kline, a Peace and Freedom candidate in the 31st Assembly District, listed his occupation as "politician."

Naturally, the most listed occupation was that of incumbent legislator, congressman or senator. U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., is seeking reelection, as are 37 of the state's 38 congressmen, all 20 of the state senators whose seats are up for election this year, and 77 of the 80 state assemblymen.

OFFICE HOLDERS

Candidates include some other present and former office holders. The senate race, for instance, includes Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction; Alan Cranston, former state controller; William M. Bennett, member of the public utilities commission; and State Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills. Glenn M. Anderson, former lieutenant governor, is running for congress.

One congressman, defeated in 1966, is seeking election again to his old district, Harlan Hagen, D-Hanford. Five former assemblymen are running for offices in the legislature: John A. O'Connell, D-San Francisco; W. Byron Rumford, D-Berkeley; Bernard R. Brady, D-San Francisco; Jack T. Casey, D-San Jose; and Philip L. Soto, D-La Puente. Raymond H. Gregory, R-San Bernardino, who served part of a term in the Senate, is seeking election to the Assembly.

SALARY FACTOR

The list of candidates, as far as occupations are concerned, shows a marked change over what it would have been several years ago. Perhaps the biggest factor in this change is the fact the salary for state legislators now is $16,000 a year, plus all of fringe benefits—$175 per week expenses while in session, a leased car and the greatest retirement system ever devised.

Some years ago, a candidate for the legislator had to be independently wealthy or have a business which would operate in his absence because $100, $300 or $500 a month was not enough for a living. As a result, the legislature halls were filled with attorneys, insurance and real estate men and farmers.

The largest single category of candidates are those listing themselves as businessmen or business executives, totaling 63. Next in line are the attorneys with 47 candidates listing that as their occupation. Educators are next with 43 aspirants.

OTHER FIELDS

From local government, 20 city councilmen, two mayors, three members of boards of supervisors and three school board members are candidates.

Not included in the total of 47 attorneys seeking election are seven deputy district attorneys and a deputy attorney general who have tossed their hats into the ring.

Perhaps indicating some sort of a trend, there was not a single candidate on the list who showed his occupation as an actor, dancer or in any way connected with show business.

Indicating a trend started many years ago, only seven candidates listed their occupation as farmers, and this included some listings as "agribusiness." Only seven doctors are trying for office this year.

NO LISTINGS

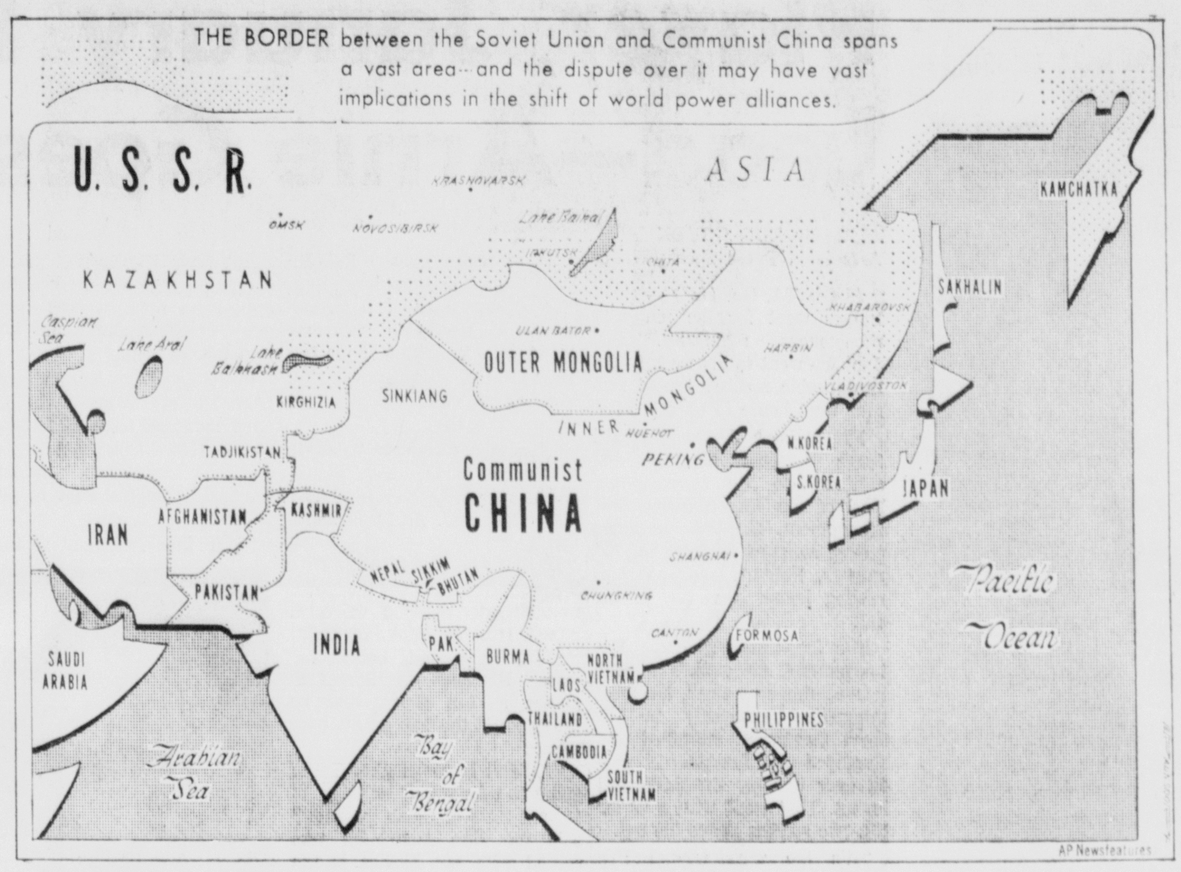
Thirty-eight candidates gave no isting for occupation and this included some of the fairer sex. But only four hardy souls listed their business as housewife or homemaker.

The newspaper business was not too prominent in the listings, with three publishers and five other persons listed as journalists or in editorial work. The candidates included five writers.

Ten candidates gave real estate as their business and another seven listed insurance. There were six students, one county clerk, two nurses, a minister and a retired rear admiral.

There were not butchers or candlestick makers among the candidates, but there was a baker, painter, printer, plumber, farm laborer and two truckers.

Among the candidates were three legislative aides and two congressional field representatives or assistants.



SINO-SOVIET BORDER

Peking Strains Propaganda Truce

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press

Another undeclared propaganda truce, probably as temporary as those which preceded it, appreared to be in effect this spring along the uneasy borders of the Soviet Union and Red China.

The lull does not mean Peking has shelved its territorial complaints against the Russians. This conflict is likely to become more intense as time goes by and eventually will play an important role in shifts of world power alliances.

The last undeclared truce came just a year ago, when both Moscow and Peking muted the border quarrels. Then, early this year, the Chinese opened the door to a new round of tension. Propaganda from Peking suggested the Russians had a hand in a secessionist movement in Inner Mongolia.

In the past, the Chinese had attributed similar intentions to the Russians with regard to the Sinkiang-Uighur autonomous region, site of China's nuclear tests.

The latest accusations came as Moscow was preparing for the Budapest conference of Communist leaders which in turn, the Russians hoped, would prepare the way for a world conference of Communist leaders. Such a conference probably would be asked to condemn the Chinese leadership for its divisive activities in the world movement.

The Budapest meeting has come and gone, and the propaganda about Soviet-Chinese borders has faded again into the background. If a world Communist conference is held, as advertised, next fall, it is likely to be preceded by yet another round of Soviet-Chinese border tension. Deep aggravation of Soviet-Chinese relations has brought border tension in the past.

The Russians for many years had a keen interest in areas across the border rich in raw materials. China's current turbulence and its leaders' angry feud with the "Soviet revisionist clique" could provide Moscow with an excuse for eyeing the northern provinces in the context of Soviet security.

The dispute over territory first burst into public view in March, 1963, when People's Daily, the main Peking newspaper, announced a Chinese intention to push for revision of all "unfair" treaties concluded in the preceding century, reserving the right to "acknowledge or refute, revise or reconclude" such agreements.

For a time there was dead silence from Moscow. Then wheels began to move. The Kremlin sought contact with the Chinese to discuss border questions and "confirm border lines." In reply, China spoke of "correcting" border lines. Experts of both sides met and got nowhere, and Peking, through Foreign Minister Chen Yi, repeated a claim to at least 600,000 square miles of Soviet territory.

There was particular tension in the Sinkiang area. Sinkiang, 2½ times the size of Texas and a sixth of all Chinas' territory, is mostly barren desert, locked by mountains. It has 1,500 miles of frontier with the USSR. It also has untold and largely unexploited natural riches: molybdenum, iron, coal, uranium—the raw material for nuclear power—and many other minerals.

Chinese rule there has been historically weak. The Chinese are a minority. The population is 75 per cent Uighur and Kazakh and the rest the ruling Chinese and other minorities.

As the feud between Peking and Moscow grew in scope, the Russians early in the 1960s began closing their consulates in Sinkiang and helping Kazakh and other non-Chinese refugees escape to the Soviet Union by the thousands. Soviet agitation, by Chinese account, led to riotous uprisings in an area whose history already had been dotted with Moslem revolts against Chinese authority. China sealed the borders in 1962 after thousands had fled, and there were reports of Chinese troops firing across the border.

In 1965, Peking came out with a book called "A Short Geography of China." It contended that Soviet-Chinese borders had not been definitely established and repeated the claim to 600,000 square miles. It carried a map showing undefined borders deep into Soviet territory.

Throughout 1966 and 1967 there were disturbances and even bloodshed along the borders and the flight of non-Chinese to the Soviet Union continued. There were reports of a guerrilla force organized on the Soviet side of Sinkiang, though this could not be confirmed.

The border quarrel was at its most acrimonious pitch last March, when Moscow's propaganda voice reported Moslems opposing Mao Tse-tung in bloody clashes. It spoke of "tragic incidents" in Sinkiang and "furious anger of all Moslems" in the northern areas.

"National minorities," said Radio Russia's Peace and Progress, "occupy 60 per cent of China's territory. This fact is worth considering. It indicates best of all that Chinese leaders at one time conquered alien lands that did not wish to become Chinese colonies. This was in gross conflict with the principle of self-determination."

Thereafter, the border issues tended to fade into the background for a while, while Peking was busy with the complex turmoil of the cultural revolution upheaval.

But Moscow's invocation of "the principle of self-determination" seemed significant. The cultural revolution had uncovered forces in the nothernmost provinces who were strongly nationalist, even in the upper reaches of the Communist party.

The Russians for a long time have provided indications that they suspected and distrusted the directions China was taking under the domination of Mao Tse-tung's group of leaders. Should "self-determination" move forces in the border provinces to seek to break away, Moscow might not find a series of buffer states in the areas unwelcome.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

With the nation still in mourning for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the U.S. House completed action on a sweeping civil rights bill that had been one of his goals.

President Johnson signed the measure Thursday.

The bill—which had been given virtually no chance of approval a few months ago— passed by a vote of 250 to 171 Wednesday, the day after the civil rights leader went to his grave in Atlanta, the victim of an assassin's bullet.

The funeral was a memorial of nonviolence despite the crush of humanity at the day-long services, during which King's body was carried through the streets of Atlanta in an African mahogany coffin on the bed of a farm wagon drawn by two mules.

In contrast to the funeral were the violent racial disturbances that swept at least 125 American cities and communities after King's death.

At the week's end the number of riot-related deaths stood at more than 40, the number of arrests at more than 20,000 and the amount of property damage estimated at $125 million.

Around The World; Around the Clock:

Atlanta: The FBI impounded a car resembling one that sped from the scene of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis Tenn., and cloaked in secrecy the investigation surrounding its discovery.

Washington: The Senate rejected a compromise $1.2 billion emergency appropriation bill to supply funds for a summer job program in urban ghettos and called for a new conference with delegates of the House in an attempt to restore $100 million knocked out by a joint Senate-House committee.

Washington: Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford announced that about 23,500 Army, Navy and Air Force reservists would be called to active duty on May duty on May 13 and that about 10,000 of them would go to Vietnam.

RUSS BEAR TIRED?

Former East Europe Puppets Are Restive

By AARON R. EINFRANK
Toronto Telegram News Service

MOSCOW — Each day the Soviet empire in East Europe crumbles a little bit more, but an extraordinary lassitude bordering on fatigue seems to be the mood in Moscow.

Maybe Moscow has become the quiet eye of the hurricane which is rocking the East Bloc states. But more probably, the Russians realize that they are powerless to preserve their once monolithic empire. Under the circumstances, lassitude and inactivity may be the best way out of a rotten situation

In December Soviet party boss Leonid Brezhnev made a hurried, unscheduled trip to Prague in an attempt to save Antonin Novotny, the hated boss of the Communist apparatus in Czechoslovakia and long time friend of the USSR.

In January reformist elements within the Czechoslovak party ignored Brezhnev's solicitude for Novotny by booting the strong man out as party boss, and later even from the honorary president's post.

Thus Novotny, a Red titan and Moscow's vassal for the last 15 years, was pushed into the dustbin of history. Not a great way to reward loyal service, but the Czechs and Slovaks were doing the rewarding, not Moscow.

After weeks of silence about the student riots in Poland, Pravda and Izvestia published the complete text of a speech given by Polish party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka concerning the situation in Poland.

Gomulka does make a good case for continuing the Russian — Polish alliance by obliquely pointing out that when Poland was not allied to Russia, Poland was twice partitioned (in 1794 by Prussia, Austria and Russia and in 1939 by Russia and Nazi Germany).

If you cannot join them, they will eat you, Mr. Gomulka seemed to be saying.

Why did the Communist Party organ Pravda and the Soviet government paper Izvestia both publish the complete text of the Gomulka speech? Probably because the Gomulka statement was in favor of the Soviet-Polish alliance and because the Gomulka statement is a good way of explaining to the Soviet masses just how serious is the turmoil in Poland.

The Russians certainly have good cause to feel fatigue and lassitude over the confused situation in East Europe. For a quarter of a century they have supported economically and militarily an East European system which is politically rotten and economically inefficient.

East Europe is languishing economically, far behind West Europe in personal freedom and economic prosperity. Moscow has not delivered in its promise to overtake the West. Instead the Soviet economy is bogged down.

Another factor is that Moscow is no longer as interested in East Europe as it once was. The menace of China has obsessed the Kremlin. Troops have been pulled out of East Europe to bolster Soviet defenses on the Chinese border.

The Kremlin has poured millions into Asia to support corrupt regimes which are threatened by China (i.e. India, Burma, Cambodia, and Indonesia, the latter having repayed Moscow's aid by butchering the Indonesian Communist Party).

Moscow has never really recouped the prestige lost by Khrushchev's backdown during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. The defeat of the Kremlin's Arab allies in the June war and the impunity with which Israel has since attacked the Arabs have done nothing to make Moscow look good.

Even little Rumania, once Moscow's most abject lackey, takes every opportunity to make the Russian bear look like a monkey.

Western diplomats in Iron Curtain countries are experiencing a certain satisfaction at Moscow troubles in this part of the world. But some of these diplomats are having second thoughts which are based on the following reasoning:

It must be remembered that prior to the Russian takeover in 1944-5, the instability of East Europe provided fertile breeding ground for two world wars. Will the present instability lead to a third?

A Western diplomat in Bucharest summed up his doubts about the present situation by telling me earlier this month "what is bad for the Russians is not necessarily good for us in the west."

AND IT'S LEGAL

18 Millionaires Get By Without Tax Bite

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Slaving over that 1040 form trying to figure out how to save another $25? Here's one that's really going to hurt.

Eighteen Americans who each earned more than $1 million in 1966 didn't pay a single penny in taxes.

Worse yet, the Internal Revenue Service says it's all legal. The IRS estimates about the same number of million-dollar earners will probably slip through tax loopholes without paying a cent this year.

An additional 133 Americans who earned more than $200,000 in 1966 and are probably also millionaires likewise didn't pay any taxes.

The government figures it lost $38 million in taxes from just these 151 persons.

Every year, Congress gets upset and speeches are made demanding that the loopholes for the rich be plugged.

There is also the usual retort that to get these exemptions, a man has to spend great sums of money which is good for the country anyway.

But big money earners use special loopholes which not only cut the taxes they pay, but reduce the amount of income they have to report for tax purposes in the first place.

Here are just a few of the ways a taxpayer earning big money can reduce his taxable income:

OFF THE TOP — Depletion allowances, and operating losses can be claimed, and tax exempt securities bought —all requiring large sums of money for investment. Ownership of mineral rights —especially oil rights —gets a write-off for depletion of the supply; tax exempt government bonds can be purchased and tax-free reserves of money can be applied against business losses to reduce the amount of taxable income a person reports each year.

OUT OF THE MIDDLE— Charitable contributions are the favorite item here. But again, large amounts must be used for real savings. In fact, this loophole is available only to those who pay out more than 90 per cent of their income in taxes in a given year and during 8 of the 10 previous years (that means people with incomes of $1 million or more). The reluctant taxpayer can donate stocks or works of art or real estate which have increased in value from the original cost and have their present value deducted in full from that year's income totals.

FROM THE BOTTOM— Credits can be claimed for foreign tax payments and tax-free reserves applied against bad debts. A businessman can also recover taxes he has paid in three previous years or save income for five years ahead as a cushion against business losses.

What it all adds up to is that the government is losing far more than the $38 million estimate.

Other taxpayers who actually gross more than $1 million use these deductions to lower themselves from the 90 per cent tax bracket to the still expensive —but less painful — tax levies in the $500,000 to $200,000 range.

When will Congress ever get around to closing these loopholes? How much money has the government lost because of them? The answer is the same.

Nobody knows.

REFORM SCHOOL IDEA

Ex-Delinquents Helping Teachers

STOCKTON (AP) — California employers who need real experts on juvenile delinquency may be able to hire some soon.

The experts—half a dozen youths of 18 to 22—know delinquents' problems from the inside out.

The youths are inside the California Youth Authority's O. H. Close School for Boys near Stockton, helping rehabilitate the other wards. They'll be paroled this summer.

EX-DELINQUENTS

They are reformed delinquents, eager to prevent others from making the mistakes they did.

They are among the first dozen graduates of a pioneering student aide program that seems to be working wonders at the school for both the teachers and the taught.

Not all 12 will be available for hire. Supt. C. A. Terhune wants to hang onto a few of the first graduates for permanent CYA staff assignments. Another dozen will graduate in September.

THEY KNOW SLUMS

The youths can speak the lingo of the slum and street. Most grew up there.

They know the temptations and the tricks.

They have learned and lived the consequences of breaking the law.

Now they know a strange new feeling of responsibility reinforced by the warm glow that comes from helping youngsters learn and grow.

The Close school's wards are 13 to 17 years old. Some are many years younger emotionally and may be at about the third grade level educationally.

The aides were selected from 1,200 older boys in the state's Youth (vocational) Training School near Ontario, in Southern California. They were carefully screened and then permitted to volunteer after a week's tryout and a week back at Ontario to think it over.

They scored high in intelligence, leadership potential and motivation to go straight, get a job after parole and hold it. Each had at least two and one-half years of high school credits and at least six months more time to serve as wards of the state.

YOUTHS' JOB

Their job: To be counselors, friends, tutors and recreation supervisors of the younger wards.

The aides also are completing their own high school credits at Close and, as they do, are taking youth counseling courses at Delta Junior College in Stockton.

Terhune admits that some members of his line staff were dubious about the unique experiment when it began last January. No longer.

"It's going 300 per cent better than I originally hoped," he says.

CREATIVE IDEAS

Palmer Anderson, supervisor of education, says, "The untrained kids have come up with some really creative teaching techniques. They motivate the teachers."

Terhune cites the example of an aide living in one dormitory in which about one-third of the boys couldn't read and didn't care to learn. The aide shot pictures of them on a field trip and posted the photos on the walls with captions. Suddenly the boys discovered a good reason for learning to read—they wanted to know what the captions said.

Another aide, Anderson relates, gets so much enjoyment out of teaching the kids to read that he has set up special evening reading classes for them.

WORK LONG DAYS

The aides often work 14-hour days. They get paid 50 cents a day.

The aides bridge the we-they gap that exists in every correctional institution between staff, representing authority, and the inmates, Terhune says.

They do it by living with the other wards in the dormitories but working as staff assistants.

Terhune gives his staff much credit for getting the aides themselves to cross the we-they barrier.

At first, he said, the aides had identified only with the other wards. But being treated as staff by staff quickly won them over. And the younger wards continue to trust them.

TRUST POWERFUL

Trust is powerful medicine, Terhune believes, and it works both ways.

"The aides have their own keys to their dormitory rooms and to a staff lounge we turned over to them for their exclusive use," he explains. "They visit the lounge at night and could go over the fence any time. None has."

In Terhune's office hangs a painting of a terrified little boy hunched in a big office chair. The painting is a gift from one of the talented aides.

"There's a real message in that picture," Terhune says. "We must never make a kid feel that insignificant."

Player, January In Masters Lead—Arnie Goes To Latrobe

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Player went for the pin with monotonous regularity. Don January went to his wedge with remarkable results. Arnold Palmer went home to Latrobe, Pa.

Player and January tamed tough Augusta national and soared into the second-round lead of the 1968 Masters Golf tournament, but the capricious course snapped back at the old master, Palmer, and sent him reeling home, a victim of the cut.

The four-time winner of this tournament, the game's all-time leading money winner, the most magnetic personality in the sport staggered, stumbled and struggled to a fantastic 79, seven over par for the 6,980-yard layout. That went with a 72 for 151, two strokes above the cut.

"It's the worst round I've ever had here," Palmer said. "I don't know where I was, but I wasn't on the course. I must have been some place else."

Player, the little South African who has won all the world's major titles, had a second round 67 for 139 yesterday and a share of the top spot with January, the PGA champ. January had a 68.

But the best round of the day was Frank Beard's. He reeled off seven birdies without a bogey for a 65, just one stroke off the record, for 140 and a share of third place with Bob Goalby and Jack Nicklaus. Goalby had a 70, Nicklaus a 71.

Tommy Aaron, with a 72, was alone at 141.

The other first-round leaders had their troubles. Billy Casper, whose 68 led after 18 holes, took a 75 for 143.

British Open champ Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina, England's Tony Jacklin and Australian Bruce Devlin, all with first round 69s, each had a 73 for 142. They are tied at that figure with Ray Floyd and Bert Yancey, each with a 71.

"It was unfortunate," Casper said of his round, "but I'm still close enough to win it. I just didn't feel well. An upset stomach."

Devlin, who at one point had a three-stroke lead on the field, met disaster on the 445-yard, par 4 11th. He took an eight, putting his second shot in the water. His next was buried 18 inches in tall grass, and he failed to hit the ball on his next swing.

"I didn't know whether I was going to take a nine or 10 or an 11 or if I'd ever finish the hole," said the slim Australian who rallied with two birdies in the next four holes.

Player, who clipped off six birdies, could have had an even better round.

"When you shoot a 67 you can't say you're not putting well," he said," but I really wasn't doing well at all. I was stroking the ball very well, but it just wouldn't go in the cup."

He missed six birdie putts on the front nine, two from six feet, one from 10 and another from 12.

"I'm hitting the ball the absolutely best I have in my career," said the 1961 Masters champion who has been in virtual retirement since 1966.

He birdied all four par 5 holes, each with two putts; chipped to within 18 inches for another, pitched to within two feet for still another, and ran in birdie putts of 10, 20, and 6 feet.

But while Player was putting his game together on beautiful approach shots, it was January's chipping game that kept him together.

He chipped in for an eagle from 100 feet away on the 520-yard 15th and from 25 feet out on the 11th. "I'm going to stop going for the greens," January cracked. "I don't want to putt anymore.

DON JANUARY
In the Chips

"You know, it's a strange thing. I normally chip in once about every third year. I did it seven times in the last two tournaments and now three times in two rounds here."

Palmer, who had never before missed the cut here, had four bogeys, a double bogey and a triple bogey 8, the latter on the 15th where he put two shots in the water.

He also was in the water on 12 for a double bogey, three putted two greens, took three to get down from the fringe on another and on yet another was in a trap and needed two putts.

"Don't ask me what I did," he said. "I hit so many shots I don't remember them all."

Defending champion Gay Brewer Jr., almost forgotten in the day's wild commotion, had a scrambling 74 for 146, falling seven shots off the pace.

He was in the water twice, once hit a spectator with a shot and had to chip in from off the green on the final hole to keep his slim hopes alive.

Casper bogeyed three straight holes—the 9th, 10th and 11th. He three-putted the 11th.

The reed-thin Devlin from Canberra, 6-1, 156 pounds, was troubled by vericose veins two years ago and last year fell into such a slump that he only won $11,000 and failed to make expenses.

He thought he might have to quit the tour and go back to plumbing.

In the second round yesterday, he charged off to a strong start, moving six under par and three strokes ahead of his closest pursuer through 27 holes.

Then he came to the 11th, a 445-yard par four with the green fronted by a pond.

The Australian hooked his drive and hit his second into the water with a splash. Taking a penalty shot, he sent his fourth to the edge of the other side of the lake.

He missed the ball completely on his attempt to recover, almost falling back into the water. Then he hit No. 6 onto the green and two-putted for an 8.

That got people talking about the eight that Sam Snead took on the final hole at Philadelphia's Spring Mill in 1939, costing the Slammer the championship. Sam never won an Open after that.

Deep Disappointment For A Giant Rookie

Bob Etheridge was deeply disappointed. He had a right to be depressed. In spring exhibition games he hit .378 and he fielded flawlessly at third base. What did a ball player have to do to make the big team?

After all, Etheridge isn't exactly a youngster insofar as baseball is concerned. He is 25 and already has spent four years in the Giant organization, proving himself as a hitter. At Lexington in his rookie year he hit .289. In 1965 at Fresno he hit .329. Against the tough Eastern League pitching he hit .295 in 1966. When promoted to Phoenix in mid-1966 he hit .291.

Last season at Phoenix he hit .325 and .226 for the Giants in the 40 games he played for them in 1967. This year he felt certain he would get a chance to play regularly for the big club. But during the winter Jim Davenport, with the aid of a physical therapist, pumped new life into muscles that had partially atrophied in his left leg.

Franks Didn't Spell It Out

Furthermore, at the midway mark of spring training Herman Franks announced that Jim Ray Hart would be No. 1 backup man at third base for Davenport. The manager of the Giants didn't mention Etheridge. Franks didn't spell out the meaning of his announcement insofar as Etheridge was concerned.

However, in making the announcement Franks indirectly was preparing Etheridge for his inevitable return to Phoenix. If he had had a lefthanded bat like Dave Marshall, Etheridge might have survived the final cut to 25 players. As smart as Etheridge's .378 was in spring games, Marshall hit an even smarter .444 swinging lefthanded which always is rated an added asset in Candlestick Park.

Almost Impossible To Accept

Then, there was the final reason which Etheridge, like every ball player before him, found almost impossible to accept. "It's for your own good," he was told. "You'd be sitting on the bench up here. Down there you'll be playing every day. You'll be ready if we need you in an emergency. We're sending you back subject to 24-hour recall."

There wasn't anything Etheridge could do but accept the inevitable. Still, he didn't have to like it. And he didn't.

"I think," he said, "I could learn just as much, perhaps more, sitting on the bench up here than playing every day down there."

He Had A Protest Coming

Etheridge didn't permit any bitterness to enter his protest but he definitely felt he had a protest coming, particularly after the way he fought for a job this spring on the big team.

"I'd have thought less of him if he didn't speak his mind," said Franks. "He isn't forgotten. He is going to get his chance. But at the moment the best place for him is where he can play every day, keeping his bat and glove sharp."

Marin Lacrosse Club Faces California Club

The Marin Lacrosse Club faces the University of California (Berkeley) at 2 p.m. today in Mill Valley.

Marin is 1-2 on the year, while Cal is opening its regular season. In other Northern California Lacrosse Association action, defending champion Stanford (3-0) faces likewise unbeaten Palo Alto (2-0) at the Farm at 2 p.m.

It's Sadecki, Juan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants will send their two big pitchers, Juan Marichal and Ray Sadecki, against the Philadelphia Phillies at Candlestick Park Sunday in a doubleheader that concludes their brief National League season-opening home stand.

They played Pittsburgh today in the finale of their two-game set.

Marichal fell from four straight 21-game winning seasons to 14-10 las year when injured.

Left-handed Sadecki won six games in September to wind up the season 12-6. That gave great promise of reaching the potential the Giants expected when they traded Orlando Cepeda to St. Louis for him.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Phils nominated Rick Wise, 11-11, for one game. He had nominated Larry Jackson for the other, but pitched him against Houston Thursday.

Sadecki was the Giants' most effective pitcher in spring training. He was credited with a 2-0 record, but allowed only 9 runs in 39 innings for a 2.07 earned run average. He also struck out 30 but walked 16.

In his September stretch of six victories, all complete games, he allowed only 1.17 ERA, best in the National League for the month, and had two shutouts. He gave only 31 hits and 7 walks and struck out 46 in that stretch.

Sadecki said he pitched the best in 1967 of any of his eight major league years, including his 20-11 season with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1964, when he was 3.68. He was 2.78 last year.

His record against the Pirates is 8-11.

Jim Davenport, happy to be back at third base, says, "I'm no second baseman because I can't make the double play as well as other guys. As you get older, your quickness goes a little but I still feel very natural at third."

Davenport, 34, says he believes the move from third to left field has helped Jim Hart, also. "I think Hart is hitting much better as a left fielder. He's a great natural hitter. Not having to play third base gives him ease of mind."

Hart shone afield in the Giant first two games, backing to the fence for a fine catch Wednesday and coming up with two diving catches Thursday.

Pac-Eight Opens Grid Spring Drills

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Few of their graduating teammates have yet signed pro contracts, but within a week football candidates at seven of the Pacific-8 Conference schools will be sweating in their moleskins.

Last year's runnerup UCLA and sixth-place California open spring practice today with 27 and 33 lettermen expected to report. Another Cal vet, Clarence Johnson, is high jumping 7-feet plus on the track team and Ken Wiedemann is on the baseball team.

Oregon State, third in the '67 chase, opened drills April 2 with 36 lettermen and Oregon, which tied Washington State for seventh, began April 11 with 34.

Pac-8 and Rose Bowl champion Southern California, with only 17 letter men, reports on Wednesday. So does Washington State, which expects 32 veterans. The Cougars will greet a new coach, Jim Sweeney, ex-Montana State.

Washington which tied Stanford for fourth, turns out Wednesday and Stanford on Saturday, April 20. Stanford has 31 lettermen, including Pac-8 pass catch champion, Gene Washington, 48.

The Washington Huskies,with key lettermen returning, hope to be in a close fight for the championship.

California has nine starters from its offensive team and eight from its defensive 11 among its 104 candidates. It has six junior college transfers including five big linemen.

One transfer already is a potential starter, Tom Demler, all-Southwest Conference tackle from Fullerton, which won the national jaycee championship. He's a 240-pounder.

Benefit Ticket Sale For Giants

The Mount Zion Women's Auxiliary is attempting to raise funds for their Leukemia-Cancer Project by selling tickets to the first Sunday afternoon Dodgers-Giants game at Candlestick Park, April 28.

The tickets, all choice infield locations, are priced at $5 for reserved seats and $7 for boxes. They may be ordered by phone or by mail at the office of the Women's Auxiliary, Mount Zion Hospital, 1600 Divisadero Street, San Francisco.

Proceeds from the ticket sale will be used for continued research, care of patients, and for the Leukemia-Cancer Project's pledge toward cost of new equipment soon to be installed at Mount Zion.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

If you try to imagine yourself bowling in a very narrow ditch—except for some room on the left side for that arm—you are likely to do a lot of things right. The ball should swing close to the body at all times and the hand should swing straight ahead as the ball is released. Your approach, of course, should be within the same narrow space, with no wandering.

Beamon Heads List On BYU Negro Boycott

PROVO, Utah (UPI)—Eight Negro athletics on the University of Texas at El Paso track team followed through with their threatened boycott of a triangular meet at Brigham Young University today.

The athletes, including world indoor long jump record holder Bob Beamon, elected to stay at home in protest of alleged racial discrimination at BYU.

Only two Negro athletes on the UTEP squad showed up for practice here Friday afternoon.

The eight issued a statement Thursday that said they would boycott the meet because of BYU's "belief that blacks are inferior and that we are disciples of the devil."

Is Palmer Past His Prime At 38?

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Is Arnold Palmer past his prime at the age of 38?

Definitely not, says the famed golfer.

"I don't feel old at all," added Palmer yesterday after he failed to survive the cut at the halfway mark in the Masters, his favorite tournament.

"I don't know what's wrong with me," Palmer said, "but I don't think it's age.

"I sure hope age is not one of my problems, I've got enough others right now," said the four-time Masters champion who soared to a 79 in the second round, his worst showing ever at the Augusta National.

"Jack Nicklaus missed the cut last year at the Masters—and he's 10 years younger than I am," Palmer said.

Palmer's disaster-marked 79—which included a double-bogey 5 and a triple-bogey 8—left him with a 36-hole total of 151, two strokes over the cutoff mark.

"I don't know what was the matter, but I knew things weren't right," Palmer said of his play. "I couldn't make myself do the things I knew I had to do.

"I sure hope things get better," he said. "I can't stand much more of this."

Palmer hasn't won any of the big prestige tournaments since he captured his fourth Masters championship in 1964.

The millionaire, who heads a massive business organization which peddles such things as laundries, clothes, golf clubs and golf courses, missed the cut at the Citrus Open in Orlando, Fla., last month.

However, he won the Bob Hope Desert Classic last winter, and is the all-time leading money winner in golf.

"I really felt good when I came to Augusta and I thought I could win this thing," said Palmer, who opened with a 72 before his game fell apart in the second round.

He bogeyed the fourth hole when he three-putted. He bogeyed the seventh hole when he three-putted from the fringe. He bogeyed the 11th hole when he strayed into a trap. Then things really got rough.

Palmer double-bogeyed the par 3 12th hole when he hit his tee shot into a lake. He battled back with a birdie on the long 13th, parred the 14th and the roof fell in.

His second shot on the par 5, 520-yard 15th hole went into the water in a ditch across the fairway. Palmer took a penalty stroke—and hit another ball into the water. Finally, the ball was in the cup for an 8—but his trouble wasn't over. Palmer three-putted the 18th for another bogey.

"The worst round I can recall before this was a 76," Palmer said. "I just really don't know what I was trying to do most of the day. And I really felt great when I came here, except for my putting."

Kathy Whitworth Takes Golf Lead

WINCHESTER, Va. (UPI)—Kathy Whitworth takes a four-stroke lead into the second round of the 54-hole O'Sullivan Ladies Open Golf tournament here today.

Miss Whitworth, last year's leading money winner in the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA), finished the first 18 holes Friday with a 1-under par 70.

A field of 39 professionals and three amateurs are vying for the $12,500 purse in the inaugural playing of the event, which is being held on the 5,948-yard Winchester Country Club. It is the first professional tournament to be played over the par 71 course.

The Baseball World's Own Academy Awards

If the world of baseball held its version of the Academy Awards, the 1968 result might sound something like this:

BEST ACTOR — The nominees are: 1) Don Drysdale for his performance registering shock when accused of throwing the spitball; 2) Ron Hunt for his outstanding remake of the old Lon Chaney film, "The Man on the Rubbing Table"; 3) Eddie Stankey for his portrayal of Joan of Arc in the dugout; 4) Al Ferrara for his impersonation of the left fielder.

But . . . ! The WINNER is — the New York Yankees for their imitation of a ninth-place team, in a tie with the New York Mets for their imitation of a major league team.

BEST ORIGINAL SCREENPLAY — This award retired in 1961 by Frank Howard for his performance against the left-field screen in the L.A. Coliseum goes to Joe Torre for his work against the home plate screen in Candlestick Park on a windy day when he camped under a pop foul that was ultimately caught in dead center field, 410 feet away.

BEST ORIGINAL SCORE — Cubs 18, Mets, 10, June 11, at Chicago.

BEST SOUND EFFECTS — The engineer who had to dub in a track from the 1927 Yankees whenever the Dodgers were at bat, in a tie with the one who had to dub in crowd noise when the Kansas City Athletics were at home.

BEST SILENT MOVIE — The Dodgers' batting practice.

BEST FOREIGN LANGUAGE ACHIEVEMENT — Roberto Clemente, who led the league in everything but verb endings and proper tenses.

BEST VOCALIST — The fan in the dugout box at Dodger Stadium who kept singing, "Alston, you're a bum!"

BEST SPECIAL EFFECT — God—for making Yogi Berra.

BEST SHORT SUBJECT — Maury Wills. Runner-up is any Dodger half-inning against Chris Short.

BEST DIRECTION — Roberto Clemente's throws from the outfield. Worst direction award goes to Dick Radatz's throws to home plate.

BEST EDITING — Umpire Ed Runge, whose called third strikes clipped an estimated 17 days, 23 hours, 59 minutes and 10 seconds off the running time of the season. Runge's Oscar is inscribed with the motto, "Hit the damn ball!"

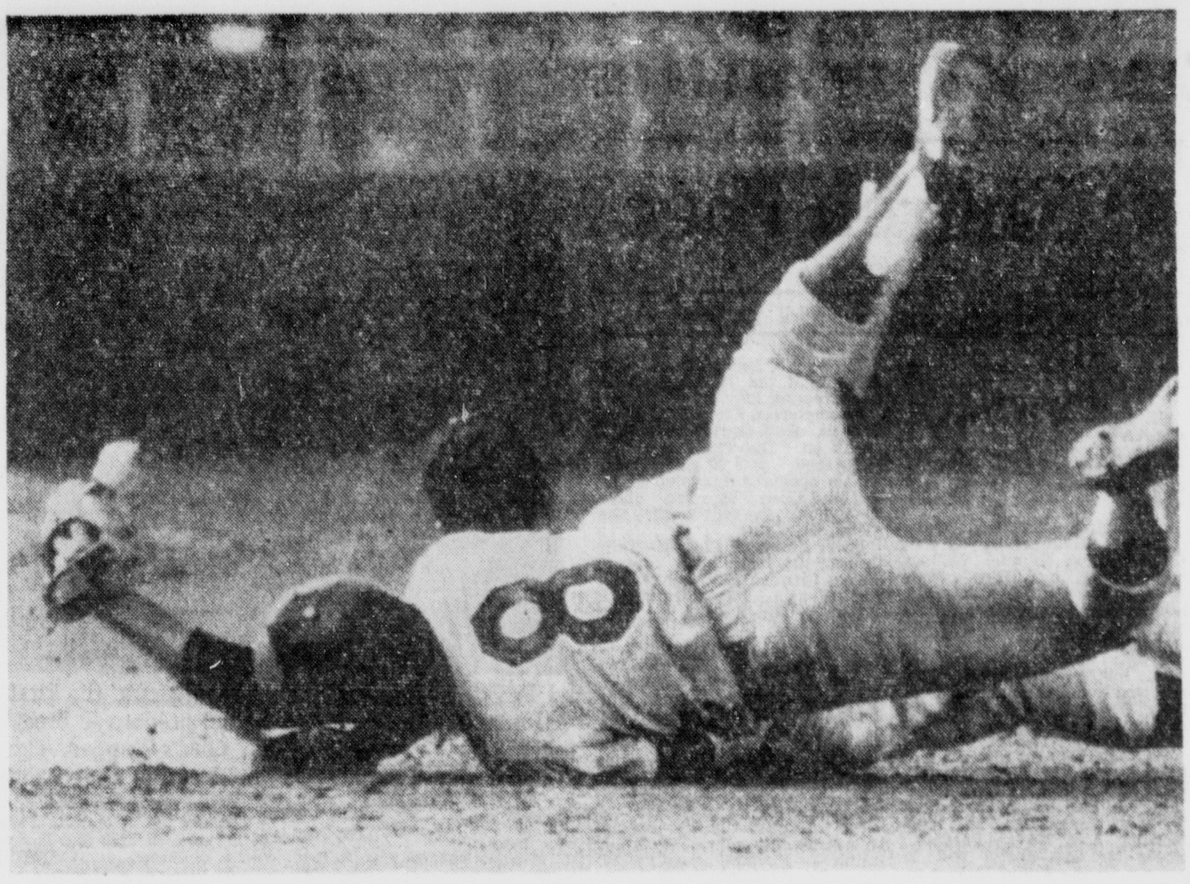
BEST ORIGINAL STORY — Tie between the player who said he changed rooms so his roommate could turn the air conditioner off, and the player who got hit over the head in a bar and said he had only gone in there to get directions to midnight mass.

BEST ACHIEVEMENT BASED ON MATERIAL FROM ANOTHER MEDIA — This award, won by the Baltimore Orioles for the outstanding adaptation of Frank Robinson from the Cincinnati Reds to the American League pennant, goes to the St. Louis Cardinals this year for adapting Orlando Cepeda from the San Francisco Giants to the world championship.

JEAN HERSHOLT HUMANITARIAN AWARD — The New York Yankees retired this award with the trading of Elston Howard to the Boston Red Sox. They had won it previously for the firing of Casey Stengel and Yogi Berra and the luring of the late Johnny Keane out of a lifetime job in St. Louis to the second division in New York.

BEST SUPPORTING ROLE — Tie among four announcers who made the ninth and 10th place finishers sound like Hall-of-Famers in their nightly broadcast, and made 9-0 ball games seem as suspenseful as Hitchcock thrillers.

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT IN CINEMATOGRAPHY — The cameraman who caught Gene Michael hitting a fair ball, or Leon Wagner catching one.



NICE TRY, BUT NO BASE — Tony Taylor of the Philadelphia Phillies (8) makes a headlong dive into third base in an unsuccessful attempt to go from 1st to 3rd on a hit by Cookie Rojas in yesterday's Philadelphia - Houston game. Astro third baseman Bob Aspromonte (hidden below Taylor) won the diving contest and tagged Taylor out. (UPI Telephoto)

Boom-Boom Go Braves

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of Atlanta's heavyweights is hurting but the Braves' light brigade is feeling no pain.

Reserve catcher Bob Tillman, a third inning replacement for injured Joe Torre last night, walloped a two-run homer in the seventh, carrying the Braves to a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati in their 1968 home opener.

Pitcher Phil Niekro and shortstop Sonny Jackson also homered for the Braves, who had dropped their first two games this season on the road and were winless in two previous home openers at Atlanta.

In the night's only other major league action, the Houston Astros struck for four runs in the fifth inning and trimmed Philadelphia 5-2 for their third victory without a loss.

Torre, Atlanta's brawny cleanup hitter, caught a foul tip on his right ring finger in the Reds' third and left the game with a split fingernail. Harvey Stone, the Braves' trainer, said the injury didn't appear to be serious.

Niekro and Cincinnati's John Tsitouris hooked up in a 1-1 duel until the seventh, when the Atlanta knuckleballer led off with his first major league homer. Hank Aaron singled and Tillman, acquired from the New York Yankees last winter to back up Torre, slammed a fast ball over the center field fence.

The Reds countered with two runs in the eighth before Cecil Upshaw, pitching in relief of Niekro, worked out of a bases loaded, none out jam. Upshaw also weathered a ninth inning rally when pinch runner Bob Johnson was thrown out trying to score from first on a double by Pete Rose.

Tony Perez' second homer of the young season gave the Reds a 1-0 edge in the second inning but Jackson, obtained from Houston in another winter deal, tied it in the third with his first homer since 1966.

"All three of my previous home runs were in the Dome in Houston and all were inside the park," said the slim speedster. "This is the first one I hit over the fence."

Rookie Hector Torres, the supposedly light-hitting shortstop who has replaced Jackson in the Houston infield, touched off the Astros' fifth-inning burst with one of his three singles. Rusty Staub's two-run double keyed the decisive rally. Ron Davis also delivered two runs with a single and double.

Cookie Rojas stroked four of the Phillies' 11 hits off winner Denny Lemaster, who needed relief help from John Buzhardt in the eighth.

Un-Typical Vicky Bitgood Tries For National Honors

When you think of Teen girl swimming geniuses, you think of a toddler being thrown in the ocean by eager parents on a sink or swim basis even before they walk.

Their childhood recollections go on the order of first I learned the freestyle, then the backstroke, then I learned to walk.

Boys are people who hold stopwatches. They have been in more 50-meter pools than Esther Williams. They were splashing in competitive swimming while other girls were playing with dolls. And if they did play with dolls, they dressed them in regulation swim suits and made sure they were waterproof. They start thinking Olympics as soon as they can spell it.

Vicki Bitgood, a freckle-face, tanned 14-year-old from Mill Valley is thinking about the Olympics, in a dreamy, someday sort of way.

But she wasn't born in the deep end of the pool and she got into competitive swimming almost accidentally. Her parents aren't the 50-meter version of Gypsy Rose Lee's mother.

Whatever the reason for Vicki's entrance into the starting gun world, Tamalpais swim coach Bob Casci is pretty happy about it, and impressed.

Vicki, who will compete for the Tamalpais Swim Club in the Independent-Journal's fifth annual Marin Invitational "A" age group swim meet at Novato High School May 4-5, became the first Marin County swimmer to qualify for the national senior women's meet in Pittsburgh, Friday through Saturday via the qualification route.

Vicki made it just in time, qualifying in the big Redwood Empire Meet last week with a Pacific Association record time of 1:11.2 in the girls 13-14 100 breaststroke.

"That was the last chance to qualify," Vicki said. "I was really pushing for the time."

"I guess I'd like to make the Olympic team someday," she said. "Everybody does. I don't know how I'll do in Pittsburgh. It's a big meet.

Vicki got into competitive swimming rather casually, four years ago.

VICKI BITGOOD

CAR POOL

"Some girlfriends who were on the club talked me into it," she said. "Actually, they needed somebody to fill out a car pool."

They got more than that. They got one of the best girl breaststrokers in the county, a little bit later than most girls start, but obviously not too late.

"I've been trying to make the nationals for a long time," she said. "I knew I had to do it this time."

Vicki's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bitgood of 390 Lovel Ave., Mill Valley, are no fanatic whip-cracking pushers who go to every meet with a stop-watch ready to argue with the officials.

"They go to some of the meets," Vicki said. "But they don't push me. I like that. They've encouraged me and they've helped me a lot."

LONG, HARD WORK

Age-group swimming takes its tolls in severe practice every day.

"We practice five days a week, two hours a night," she said. "That doesn't leave much time for other things. But my teachers have let me have a study hall in place of phys-ed."

Like many young athletes, male or female, Vicki credits her coach with a good deal of her success.

"He's been a great help, teaching me and working with me," she said.

But the only real person that pushes Vicki Bitgood is Vicki Bitgood. Another big push could do a lot next week in Pittsburgh.

Spectrum Ceiling Set For Big Roof-Lifting

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

The ceiling is back in place at the Philadelphia Spectrum after a losing battle recently with a gusty wind, but the St. Louis Blues hope to raise the roof tonight by clinching their National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal series with the Flyers.

The Blues lead Philadelphia's West Division winners three games to one in their best-of-7 set. A victory tonight would enable the third-place Blues to sit back and await the winner of the Los Angeles-Minnesota series, which resumes in Los Angeles tonight with the teams knotted at two games apiece.

The New York Rangers were in Chicago to meet the resurgent Black Hawks today in a nationally televised game. The Rangers hold a 2-1 lead in the East Division semifinal following Chicago's 7-4 triumph Thursday night.

The Montreal Canadiens, regular season winners in the East, won their semifinal series Thursday by edging Boston 3-2 for a four-game sweep.

Despite their commanding lead, the Blues are not taking the Flyers lightly. "I don't know how they feel, but we feel they're a good team and you don't write off a first-place team," said Red Berenson, scoring star in Thursday's 5-2 St. Louis victory.

The Blues managed only one victory and two ties in 10 regular season games with Philadelphia. But veteran goalie Glenn Hall, in his 12th playoff, has anchored a stubborn defense that has limited the Flyers to eight goals in four games.

As if the Flyers didn't have enough trouble, Coach Keith Allen was wondering what to do about goalie Bernie Parent, who socked trainer Dick Bielous in full view of television cameras following Thursday's defeat. The reason for the fight hasn't been explained.

Minnesota rallied from an early two-goal deficit Thursday night to square its series with Los Angeles.

"No matter what happens now, we've bounced back and we're making a scrap of it," said North Stars' coach Wren Blair.

"What it boils down to," countered Kings' coach Red Kelly, "is they won their two home games and we won our two. We'll be stronger at home."

That series matches two of the three leading playoff scorers —Lowell MacDonald of Los Angeles, with three goals and two assists, and Minnesota's Ray Cullen, with two goals and three assists. Chicago's Stan Mikita, the NHL scoring champ, also has two goals and three assists while New York's Rod Gilbert is the top marksman with four goals.

Boston not only took a sound beating from Montreal, but six members of the Bruins face possible surgery. Derek Sanderson and Don Awrey will undergo nose surgery. Johnny Bucyk might need a serious spinal fusion operation. Phil Esposito has a gimpy knee, John McKenzie an ailing back and Gerry Cheevers chronic shoulder trouble.

Mets Catcher Out Of Lineup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The New York Mets said yesterday catcher J. C. Martin has a fractured little finger on his right hand and has been placed on the disabled list.

Martin was hurt in Wednesday's opener against San Francisco when Willie Mays fouled a ball off the finger.

The Mets recalled Greg Goosen from Indianapolis of the Pacific Coast League to help Jerry Grote with the catching.

Shot Put Record

DALLAS (AP) — Sammy Walker, Dallas schoolboy star, threw the 12-pound shot 71 feet 3½ inches last night to again better the national scholastic record.

Indiana Gets Big Lead In AAU Swimming Meet

GREENVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Indiana rolled up a commanding lead in the National AAU Short Course Swimming championships at East Carolina University Friday.

Bill Burrell won the 200-yard freestyle for the Hoosiers and Charles Hickcox added the 100-yard backstroke. Indiana lost only one event.

That loss came in the arbitration room when Dr. James Counsilman's protest, held over from Thursday, on a disqualification in the 400-yard medley relay was disallowed.

Friday's committee decision marked the second time in two weeks the Hoosiers have been disqualified in the 400-yard medley relay. The first time was two weeks ago during qualifying for the NCAA championships when a swimmer left the block too soon.

Counsilman insisted his relay man merely missed touching the underwater pad that triggers the timing device Thursday, touching the gutter of the pool instead. The AAU committee, however, studied movies, held long discussions and then ruled against the Indiana coach.

Only one meet record was established at East Carolina Friday. Phillips 66 of Long Beach, swam the 400-yard free-style relay in 3:04.89, bettering the previous record by almost two seconds.

Yale—the previous titleholder —still has an American record of 3:04.10 pending.

Only one upset of major import occurred during the meet. Billy Utley of Indiana, the favorite in the 400-yard individual medley, was wiped out by Gary Hall, a 16-year-old Garden City, high school sophomore.

Hall streaked in a full two seconds ahead of second-place Utley.

The flurry of records that were expected to fall failed to materialize. Only Ken Merton of the Los Angeles Athletic Club came close to setting a new standard. Merton took the 100-yard breaststroke in 0:58.82—four-tenths of a second off his own American record of 0:58.40.

The other winner yesterday was Mark Spitz of Santa Clara, with a time of 1:51.50 in the 200 yard butterfly.

End In Sight For Warriors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Tonight it's win or out for the San Francisco Warriors who need a victory to stay alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Warriors are 0-3 going into the fourth game of their best of seven semifinal playoff series with Los Angeles in the NBA's Western Division.

The Lakers could wind it up tonight with a win at the Oakland Arena.

But Coach Bill Sharman refuses to concede and declared: "Our men don't lack hustle, that's for sure. You can count on them giving all they've got."

That will have to be plenty—especially in the final half.

Los Angeles won the third game of the series at the Cow Palace 128-124 Thursday night. The Warriors had held a 65-61 lead going into the last half of the game, but saw this evaporate and turn into a 11-point deficit in the fourth quarter.

Shooting from the floor proved the difference, with the Lakers hitting for 47.9 per cent and the Warriors for only 42.6. San Francisco held a slight edge at the free throw line.

A question mark for the Warriors tonight is Joe Ellis, who suffered a strained ligament early in the second period Thursday night and had to leave the game after scoring only five points. Jeff Mullins also has been hampered by an injured toe.

For the Lakers, it is go all the way, with Jerry West expected to be trying to improve his 40-point performance in the previous meeting.

"You never know what will happen," said Laker star Jerry West, "but I kind of like our position."

In the NBA's Eastern Division playoff, the Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics meet in their fourth game in Boston Sunday, with the 76ers leading 2-1.

In the American Basketball Association, Minnesota and Pittsburgh meet on the Muskies home court tonight, with the Pipers leading the best-of-7 Eastern Division set two games to one. The fifth game in the series will be played Sunday.

And in the Western Division, Dallas meets New Orleans today. New Orleans leads the series 3-1.

The 76ers seem to have the Celtics on the run as Boston player-coach Bill Russell admits his team is tired. But Wilt Chamberlain, the 76ers superstar, is undergoing treatments for pain in his leg and might be slowed somewhat.

In tonight's ABA game, Pittsburgh can just about wrap up the series with a victory because two of the final three games—if needed—will be played on the Pipers' home floor.

Band-Aid 76ers Staying On Top

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers could be billed as the best touring troupe in basketball. All they need is a doctor to complete the cast.

Going into the fourth game tomorrow of their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Boston Celtics, the 76ers are hurting from head to toe.

So what's new? Injuries have plagued the defending NBA champions since the opening of the season.

"Alex Hannum says this is the most courageous team he's ever coached," says Harvey Pollack, the 76ers' statistician. "The locker room looks like a hospital ward every time I walk in."

Pollack ticked off some of the cases, which read like a medical diary:

—Wilt Chamberlain (partial tear of the calf muscle in his right leg, a strain in his right thigh and an injured right toe):

—Wally Jones (injured knee cartilage):

—Luke Jackson (pulled hamstring muscle):

—Hal Greer (bursitus in his right knee):

—And, Billy Cunningham (broken right wrist).

"That's not mentioning (rookie) Jim Reid who had a knee operation after injuring it the first game of the season," said Pollack," and Larry Costello," the veteran guard who tore an ankle tendon after one-third of the season was gone.

The most recent injury was to Chamberlain in Friday night's Eastern Division playoff contest with the Celtics. The dipper was given whirlpool treatments for the calf muscle tear, but Pollack wasn't sure how he's responding.

The 76ers have nine men in uniform for the best-of-seven playoffs, which they lead, two games to one. But whether they'll have anybody left for the finals against the Western Division winner is anybody's guess.

The team's troubles multiplied in the Eastern Division semifinals against the New York Knickerbockers. Cunningham broke his wrist, knocking him out for the season, Jones and Jackson suffered their injuries and Chamberlain aggravated his perennial toe injury.

And when Boston thumped the 76ers in the opening game of their playoffs here last Friday, some predicted a quick knockout of the injury-riddled champs.

But Philadelphia whacked Boston two straight, including Thursday where an injury actually helped the 76ers cause, points out Pollack.

How so?

"Well, Chamberlain was hurt and he couldn't turn around to score—so he kept feeding Greer, and he scored 31," explained the statistician.

Clippers Vs. Mustangs In Loop Soccer Tilt

The Oakland Clippers, proud of their scoring reputation, try to establish it once again when they take on the Chicago Mustangs in an North American Soccer League battle at Oakland Coliseum Sunday at 2 p.m.

The Oakland Clippers haven't been scoring so well lately but will try to regain their touch against the Mustangs, who make their first league start after a European Tour.

Easter Services In Marin

"He is not here: for He is risen, as He said. Come see the place where the Lord lay."

These words, found in the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will ring out tomorrow in Marin churches as thousands celebrate Easter Day—the day of Jesus Christ's resurrection from the tomb.

Besides individual church services, four unity sunrise services are scheduled—atop Mount Tamalpais, on a hill below Mount Burdell in Novato, at Aldersgate Methodist Church in Terra Linda and on San Rafael Hill.

Rev. Charles Robertson, College of Marin campus minister, will lead the service atop Tamalpais. Assisting at the 5:30 a.m. service will be students from the college's Newman Center.

Rev. Edwin Gomke of the Novato United Church of Christ will speak at the 6:30 a.m. Novato rites. Access to the area is by San Marin Drive to San Carlos Way. The offering will go to the Chaplaincy Fund of the Marin County Juvenile Hall.

Also scheduled at 6:30 a.m. is the Terra Linda service. The church is located at 220 Nova Albion.

Youth of the First Methodist Church, St. Raphael's Catholic Church, First Presbyterian Church and St. Paul's Episcopal Church are in charge of the 6:30 a.m. rites on San Rafael Hill.

Guest speaker will be Dr. James McClendon, associate professor of theology at University of San Francisco. A youth breakfast will follow at the Methodist church, 9 Ross Valley Drive.

Access to the service will be via Robert Dollar Scenic Drive, entering off Laurel Avenue. Departure route will be by Chula Vista Drive, down Coleman and Fair drives onto Lincoln Avenue.

Easter Sunday services are:

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Happy Boxes For Servicemen Can Contain Punch, Coffee Or Gum

DEAR HELEN:

"Lost for Words" asked what to write and send to a serviceman you had never met. Here are a few things I did while writing to a Marine in Vietnam.

First, I kept my letters on the light side, but also with some intellectual content.

Second, I love to come up with out-of-ordinary ideas. Here is one I enjoyed most: I sent Don happy boxes from time to time. These included things that are practical, such as powdered, sweetened punch; instant coffee in a plastic container so it won't break or rust; dehydrated soup; chewing gum. I sent enough for the whole platoon and they had a bubble-gum blowing contest. Did you ever see a big Marine blowing a bubble?

I also included hard candy, plastic wrapped; some tubes of toothpaste, sometimes it's awfully scarce over there; talcum powder; a small tube of deep-heat rub; bug repellant; but not in an aerosol can; razor blades; soap in bars small enough to be carried in a short pocket; lighter flints, but no lighter fluid — it explodes; a small pocket flashlight; long black shoelaces and black shoe polish; comic books and paper backs; plastic wrap — it's water tight; playing cards.

Helen, my Marine shared these things with his buddies and I received a long letter of appreciation from all, with about 100 signatures.

The happy boxes should be kept under five pounds so they will be airmailed at surface rates. Take them to the post office before you seal them so they can be inspected and will not have to be opened in route. Then they can be sealed with the wide brown stickum tape. — D.K.

DEAR HELEN:

Here's an answer to "Bugged, Bossed and Burning." I'm almost 15 too, but almost doesn't count, so I'm really just 14,. My mom won't let me car-date; She says I've got enough time for that later. I agree!

She insists on meeting all the boys I go out with, and I'm proud she does because I'm proud of the boys and my folks.

B.B. and B. ought to see that her folk love her or they wouldn't lay down these rules. I'll have the same rules for my kids.

Now I'm not saying our family is perfect. We have our share of arguments and fights. Sure, I'm bugged and bossed sometimes, but I'm happy I've got parents who care! — LINDA

DEAR HELEN:

"Bugged, Bossed and Burning" sounds very immature to me. Looks like she is taking up with punks she doesn't want her folks to know about, otherwise why would she be ashamed to introduce them? And car-dating at 14! That means she'd have to go with older guys. It isn't safe! I agree, Helen, you aren't grownup just because you look 18. We have your "Rules for Maturity" on our school bulletin board. Thanks! — ALSO "NEARLY 15"

DEAR HELEN:

I think B.B. AND B.'s parents are like mine, who sometimes bug and boss and used to make me burn. But I found if I keep my patience, they do too. I don't complain any more when they insiste on meeting my date. It makes your date respect you more, and if you don't respect your date enough to have your folks see him, you shouldn't be going with him!

We always tell my parents where we are going and when we'll be getting home. If I'm not sure, I call them after I get there. This really has gotten results. I wasn't supposed to date until I was 16, but I got smart and cooled it, and gave my parents credit for having some sense, so I'm dating now at age 15. — K.B., FRESNO

DEAR KIDS:

"Bugged, Bossed and Burning" must have a galloping case of burning ears by now. Of the many, many teens who answered her letter, not one sympathized with her. As one said, "We like rules, even when we fight them."

Parents, take heart — all is not lost! — H.

EASTER PARADE

Milliners Forecast White, Wide Brims

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Color it white, make it in leghorn or organdy, brim it, and you have THE hat hit of the Easter parade and after.

The millinery industry as early as January, thinking for spring, forecast the white and the wide-brimmed look and a resurgence for a classic in women's hats, the leghorn straws in their natural, yellowish beige tones.

BUT FORECASTING is one thing. What women buy is another. To find what they were selecting in hat departments and at hat bars across the nation we talked with a dozen or more milliners who sell either the expensive, custom-made hats or in the mass-produced markets.

And the women have bought, and are buying, the whites, the brims, the leghorns, followed closely by the pastels, plus the multi-colored flower hats which have been in limbo the past few springs.

"Oh, undoubtedly white is the most important shade," said a spokesman for Ambrose Hats, one of the big wholesale firms. "And yellow is big this season."

"WE'RE DOING a lot with camellia white and what we call magnolia pearl," said Peter Brandon, an executive with the Mr. John firm. Mr. John's spring preview included dozens of "plantation" hats, face-framing and flattering wide brims reminiscent of those of Scarlett O'Hara in you know what movie.

"Our most successful hat has been the leghorn," said Adolfo who hats the likes of Jacqueline Kennedy, Loretta Young, Anne Ford, the Ford girls Charlotte and Anne, and Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper.

Why revival of leghorn? "Nostalgia. I guess," said Adolfo. "Leghorn goes with all the soft clothes in the spring collections."

ADOLFO, who runs a custom business and a wholesale one called Adolfo II, gave second place in the sales sweepstakes to big berets made in jerseys. Mrs. Kennedy wore one when she attended the St. Patrick's Cathedral investiture of Bishop Terence Cooke as archbishop of the New York diocese.

"It's an organdy spring," said the Mexican-born milliner, Cesar Rubio. "Lots of organdies in whites and the pastels. Organdy is such a feminine fabric. I've made them in big, romantic brims." Rubio is hatter still to many of Mexico's prominent women including its First Lady.

"The brim is the news," said Harmick of the firm of Vincent and Harmick. "And every woman can wear brims."

"BUT THEY must be in proportion to a woman's size," he said. "A tiny woman isn't going to wear a six-inch brim."

Vincent and Harmick also have done a big business with stitched fabric hats, soft, collapsible and travel-trained, in silks and cottons. "For every large hat we sell, we'll sell a hundred small ones," said Harmick. "Some of those big hats you see are strictly for fashion shows.

"I always say a milliner makes three collections each season—one for the newspapers, one for the fashion shows, one to sell."

Vincent and Harmick customers pay $55 and up for a hat and the firm won't mention names of customers. Only comment on their elite trade: "Our customers wouldn't be caught dead in the Easter parade."

"WE'VE DONE lots of brims," said Archie Eason, who used to design hats for a chain of stores headquartered in Jacksonville, Fla. Now established with his own firm in New York, Eason commented that brims had helped him "triple my business this spring. The tailored and romantic looks are about equally divided." Some of Eason's prettiest hats are rollers with exaggerated brims and daisies trailing here and there.

"We've done well with organdy sailors, organdy berets and the leghorns," said Emme, a veteran of the custom business and hatter for the likes of Joan Crawford, Angela Lansbury and Rosalind Russell. "Our tailored look has sold best."

It has nothing to do with the spring hat picture, but who could resist passing this information along for what it's worth. One New York manufacturer occupies a big square in the yellow pages to advertise hats of "genuine fake fur."

MILLINERS BACK in January forecast the white and wide-brimmed look in women's chapeaux for spring, and a resurgence of a classic, the leghorn straws in their natural yellowish beige tones. Here a garden party hat by Mr. John is shown at left. It's of pale pink sewn with Milan straw. At right is a planter's hat by Adolfo II, accented with gardenias and a "little girl" chin tie of red grosgrain. (UPI Telephoto)

Elected president of the Mill Valley Council of Parent-Teacher Associations for 1968-69 was Mrs. Ross Shade.

Other elected officers are Mesdames James Tustin, vice president; Robert Barringer, recording secretary; Alan W. Barnett, corresponding secretary; and Lowell F. Jennings, treasurer.

The council acts as a coordinating and counseling agency to all of the Mill Valley elementary school P-TA units and to the Tamalpais High School P-TA and attempts to strengthen and increase understanding between the schools and community through various activities. Its role in interpreting the district's educational philosophy to parents is a vital one, according to Mrs. Shade, particularly when so many changes in teaching methods are taking place.

Mrs. Shade is currently serving the council as recording secretary and publicity chairman. Her other P-TA activities have included chairmanships of family life education, nominating committee and currently culture arts for the Park School P-TA.

She is present chairman of the Mill Valley branch education study group, which has been working closely with the council's parent education committee.

A special educational interest is her work in the Marin Museum Association's classroom art appreciation program. As chairman of the program at Park School, she has coordinated activities of the volunteer demonstrators and served as a volunteer in the classroom. She is a member of the program's steering committee and serves as the liaison from participating Mill Valley schools to the committee.

Mary Shade was born and reared in suburban Philadelphia. She received a bachelor of arts degree from Connecticut College, where she majored in philosophy. She assists the college in admissions work in Marin County.

Other interests include designing and embroidering wall hangings, raising indoor plants, reading and swimming. Her husband, a certified public accountant, is a regional partner with the international accounting firm of Laventhol, Krekstein, Horwath and Horwath.

The Shades have two daughters, Kitty and Jenny, third and first graders at Park School.

Year Of Feminine Ruffles Helps Dress Up A Wardrobe

By EUNICE FARMER

Spring of 1968 is spelled ruffles.

Today, we can change almost any suit, coat or dress in our wardrobe from old to new by the addition of some kind of feminine ruffles, either in crepe, linen, organdy, eyelet or lingerie lace. The great part about this little touch is the small investment and the short time it takes. Don't for a minute think this is a fashion just for the young. There isn't any age that can't wear ruffles if used properly.

I will give you four examples for a guide, you may use any variation you wish. Remember, when using a double fold of fabric, don't press the folded edge. We want that soft, rounded look. When ruffles are extending from cuffs or in a neckline standing at perky attention, they are usually cut with the straight grain of the fabric but for softer, cascading effect, cut on the bias.

Sketch 1 shows collar and cuffs in linen, organdy or whatever, added to a wool or knit dress that you have worn all winter. They can be made detachable and in very little time. Use any collar pattern that has the neckline you wish.

Sketch 2 has a feminine organdy ruffling as an edging to a collarless suit and the cuffs. What a perky fresh look this can give a tired jacket!

Sketch 3 is an Alaskine coat dress from designer Malcolm Starr. White linen fluting circles the shirt cuffs and a tuck in bib at the neckline. You could substitute an eyelet trim if you prefer.

Sketch 4 shows the delicate lingerie preruffled edging that you can insert in a double organdy collar. After all the hard tailoring we've been exposed to for these past few years, this new look is a beautiful return to gals who look like gals. Next week I will tell you more about ruffles.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Ruth Terner, Coral Gables, Fla., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing tip.

"I think I've found a really great pincushion to use as I work and it doesn't cost a cent. The white plastic foam flat container that meat is now packed on is soft enough not to have to push pins in, holds pins upright, and because it is white, pins are clearly visible. When it gets too many perforations, the next one costs nothing. It also stays flat on the table, doesn't roll off, which has always bugged me in the past!"

Last week at a luncheon I met a charming, vivacious woman who was as bubbly and excited about Red Cross volunteer service as I am about sewing for fashion, and that's something! I must admit that until that day, I had no idea about the need and the tremendous satisfaction that can be gained by giving a little of yourself to others.

Most of my friends have made the remark someday when they were too old to do anything else, they would go into this kind of work. Today, there is a great need for young women in the volunteer services; they have the new ideas and the enthusiasm to carry them out. It's a great way to meet new friends, help others, and keep your mind so occupied you won't have time to dwell on boredom.

Although the Red Cross has an extensive year-round sewing program, a special project is now in the making. One half million kits to be filled with gifts for our service men in Vietnam and other away from home areas must be completed by July 15.

Don't wait to think it over, but please do something today. Call your Red Cross center, arrange to pick up a few of these precut kits and sew them at home if it's more convenient. This is a project that can be done individually or in a group, either at your own home or at the Red Cross center. Other items to be made include children's clothes for refugees in Vietnam and clothes for veterans in hospitals.

Please give a little time now and bring the joy of Christmas to others. There's really no gift in the world more precious than one you've made. Once you get back into sewing, your enthusiasm will grow. You'll probably find your hobby is more exciting than ever before.

Mrs. W. G. J. writes: "I only had to visit my little girl's gym class one time to realize most mothers are missing the boat on their daughters' clothes for active sports. There was such an assortment of last summer's shorts, that didn't match anything. Our little girls looked pretty sad.

"Why not make a pair of panties to match all their little dresses, then for gym classes they will look great! Besides, when the dresses get too short, you will have instant fashion with the mini-panties that show below the dress. (I would suggest the panties have the new straighter legs with lace ruffles at the edges.)"

Today is Saturday April 13, the 104th day of 1968 with 262 to follow. Passover starts today.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1846, the Pennsylvania Railroad received its charter.

In 1934, Harry Hopkins, Chief of the Civil Workers Administration, reported that 4.7 million American families were on relief. The figure rose to 22 million by early March of 1935.

In 1941, Russia and Japan signed a five-year neutrality pact.

In 1964, the movie Tom Jones won an Oscar, along with Sidney Poitier as best actor and Patricia Neal as best actress.

A thought for the day: President Jefferson said, "When angry, count 10 before you speak; if very angry, 100."

SIMPLE FINESSE

You win the first spade trick with summy's king, noting that you have a simple finesse in clubs and two ways of finessing in diamonds. How should you proceed to develop two extra tricks to add to your 10 tricks in top cards?

Try a finesse with the jack of clubs first. If it wins you will need only three diamond tricks. You will cash the king of diamonds, and, if only low cards fall, you will next lead a low diamond toward dummy. If West plays low, finesse with dummy's nine to make sure of three tricks against even a bad break. If West shows out on the second diamond, take dummy's ace and return a diamond toward your jack.

FINESSE LOSES

In the actual hand, the club finesse loses to West's queen. Now you need all four diamond tricks. You must avoid the false "safety" play of taking the ace of diamonds first since it will not help you to find a singleton queen in the West hand.

The correct play is to begin the diamonds by leading a low card from the dummy, intending to finesse at once with the jack if East plays a low diamond. When East actually plays the queen you win with the king and cash the jack to confirm the 4-1 break. (This is the only 4-1 diamond break that permits you to win all four diamond tricks.) Then you lead a low diamond to win a finesse with dummy's nine.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 2 no trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 10 9
♦ 10 8 7 6
♣ Q 10 9 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 3 no trump.

As a rule, you raise with 4 points or more, and should pass this 3-point hand. In this case, however, you have not only the 3 points but also three tens and a pair of nines which may be useful to partner.

The 1968-69 preliminary budget for the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District will be discussed by directors at an adjourned meeting on April 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the district office, 300 Smith Ranch Road.

Mrs. Helen Foulkes, district secretary, said the current year's budget is $134,300. "I don't have figures yet on the new budget, but I think it will be somewhere in the neighborhood of this year's budget," she said.

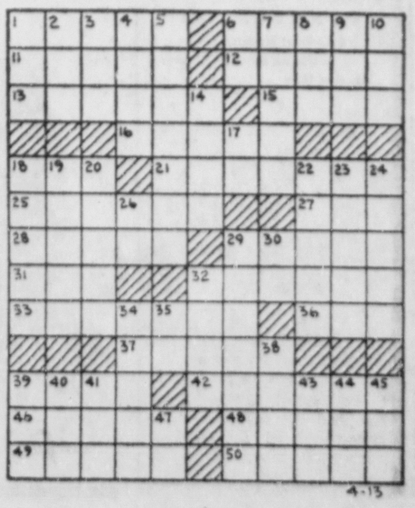
Yesterday's Answer



Negro Hirings Called For By Span Director

At least 30 Negro youths should be hired for the summer by the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, a director said yesterday.

John E. Dearman of San Francisco, the first Negro appointed to the bridge board, said "we should spend our money this way rather than repairing the damage that would be done by these disheartened youths by planting bombs under this bridge."

After the board meeting, Dearman said he knew of no such threats against the bridge, but said "it is a symbol of the Establishment."

'CRUCIAL JOB'

He also urged that some of the youths hired for the summer be kept on as permanent employees. "The most crucial job in America is to save America," said Dearman. "You don't have to do something big, if we just do a little something," he said.

The district's proposed equal employment policy, he noted, has been stuck in a board committee for over six months, awaiting a study of district employment practices.

REPORT ASKED

Gen. Mgr. James Adams said the study, being done by management consultants Ernst and Ernst, would be finished in about 10 days.

Dearman asked Adam to report at the board's April 26 meeting on how many youths could be hired — and how soon.

"It is time that we show that we are in accord with the work that Dr. (Martin Luther) King was doing," said Dearman.

Pay On Agenda

Classified salaries and a working budget will be among the items to be discussed by trustees of the Ross School District Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Ross School. A report will also be made of a sabbatical leave proposal.

Bridge Data Reveals Decline In Bus Trips

The number of Greyhound buses crossing the Golden Gate Bridge each month dropped by 857 between March, 1967, and March, 1968, Gen. Mgr. James Adam reported yesterday.

The 6.77 per cent decrease meant a cut of about 14 round trips a day, Adam told a meeting of district directors.

He said the drop "would appear to indicate a shift in bus riders to private cars or car pools in commute hours." Adam and other advocates of a second deck on the bridge long have maintained commuters cannot be lured into buses.

Adam's figures included both commute and long-haul runs, director Thomas D. Hardcastle of Marin noted, claiming that the decline in crossings represents a cut in off-peak travel by shoppers.

(A consultant for the Marin Transit District recently said the number of persons using Greyhound in Marin has been rising 1.49 per cent annually since 1960.)

Hardcastle also noted the number of passengers on each bus was more important than the number of buses. Adam said he had no estimate of the number of bus passengers.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board also:

'TASK FORCE' — Formally endorsed a proposal by Marin Transit District directors to set up a "transit task force" to prepare a crash program for commuters. The proposal still needs the approval of San Francisco supervisors.

BUS LANE — Asked the "transit task force," if it is set up, to give priority to a proposal that a lane be reserved on the bridge and Highway 101 for commute buses for a 30-day trail. The district's attorney, Jerome B. White, advised that the district could reserve a lane for buses.

BONDS — Voted to require contractors to post bid and performance bonds.

GOLD PAINT — Heard director Dan E. London of San Francisco assure the press that the board was not considering repainting the bridge gold, even though the proposal appeared on a committee agenda.

SUICIDES — Set a meeting of the security committee at 10:30 a.m. Thursday to consider measures to prevent suicides from the bridge..

BICYCLES — Referred to security committee proposal that bicycle riders be allowed to ride across the western sidewalk of the bridge.

MEMORIAL — Referred to public relations committee a suggestion that a memorial plaque to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. be erected on the bridge. The suggestion was made by Morris Evanson, secretary of Painters Union Local 4, who has been feuding with the district over employment practices.

UKIAH — Voted to hold their June 28 meeting in Ukiah, Mendocino County, the home city of board president Nelson.

Razor backs are the men who unload circus trains. The word originated when laborers, with their shoulders under the wooden loading ramp, would be given the order, "Raise your backs!"

Three Variances On Tiburon List

The Tiburon Board of Adjustments will consider three variances at its meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

Setbacks for George Sugarman at Main Street and Tamalpais Avenue, F. E. Buck at 1930 Straits View Drive and John Cullen at 86 Sugarloaf Drive, are up for action.

Renewal of a use permit for the Donahue Building on the waterfront by Michel Demeraux is also on the agenda.

Innocent Pleas In Burglary Case

Kenneth L. Little, 19, of Los Ranchitos, and Ronald David Halverson, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court Thursday to a charge of burgling a Northwestern Pacific Railroad car in San Rafael March 12.

Halverson also pleaded innocent to a charge he concealed stolen property in his apartment.

Preliminary hearing for both men was scheduled for May 22.

San Rafael Youth Denies Two Charges

Roger Wayne Ploof, 18, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to charges that he possessed a concealed weapon, a dagger, and methedrine Monday.

Preliminary hearing on the charges was scheduled for May 10.

Two Arraigned On Burglary

Two San Franciscans, arrested by Sausalito police Thursday on suspicion of burglary, were charged in Marin Municipal Court yesterday with concealing stolen property and possessing hypodermic needles.

Joseph Gropuso, 30, and Frank Reed, 27, were arraigned on the charges. Judge Hadden W. Roth set bail at $500 each and contined their cases until Monday for entry of plea.

Sausalito police said they stopped their truck as it sped away from a home at 180 Glen Drive, where a private burglar alarm was ringing.

Police said they had the syringes and some cases of wine, reportedly stolen from the Trade Fair in Sausalito, in the truck.

An Easter Message To Our Readers

The Flower That Pushes Its Way Through Stone

By REV. CHARLES B. GOMPERTZ
Vicar The Church in Ignacio

At this moment, you are reading a newspaper.

The front pages may be full of war, violence, both human failings and triumphs, and even a few faint glimmers of joy. You have read about the tragedy of Vietnam, the chaos in our cities and the old, old story of confusion on every level. Disorientation and distortion rule the day. Two freaks, Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, idealized in a film, have overnight become the fashion arbiters of our time. Vietnamese villages are protected by destruction and peace is promised to our troubled cities by expanding for arms rather than schools.

IT IS A topsy-turvy world and the old rules no longer apply. Not only do we not know what to believe, we no longer know for sure whom to trust.

In the midst of this cracked and rubble-strewn alley of life, the single flower that is Easter has pushed itts way through the stone and darkness and gathered together the little spots of light. This most lovely of flowers seems both uniquely out of place and somehow necessary at one and the same time.

Easter is a joyous shout at the funeral of humanity. It is the seal of truth and love on that final standing place of man, called hope.

In Easter the Son of Man laughed at death, hopelessness and fear, and reached out for our hands to reassure us that even life at its very worst holds hope. This is what we celebrate at Easter. And the joy released by this kind of hope cannot be contained — it even laps over into our pagan culture in bright new dresses, flowery hats and gentle bunnies.

Hope is more than a girl's name; it is a way of life, a standing place. If you can put your entire trust in an ultimate idea (rather than a moveable, temporary one), then you know about hope. But you have to make the decision to trust, to take the leap of faith on to the proposition that some things are ultimately and always true.

Take, for example, the idea that the power of love is real, tangible and available to each of us. For the sake of argument, you can assign a code name to this Power like XR3, GOD, Z4, or whatever. But the name does not alter the reality. This Power of Love crops up in our lives when we least expect it, when we feel forgiveness for the hurt we have done to another, when we truly meet another person on all levels — honestly and openly and are at the same time met—; or when we reach out, unasked, to help another in need of love, understanding or the material necessities of life. Having had these kinds of experiences, it is natural to hope — it is breathing to love — and possible to trust.

A world without hope is a world gone mad.

The Presidents commission report on civil disorders clearly outlines in stark detail what happens to people when hope is slowly and inexorable ground down between the millstones of isolation and racism. The poor man in America is as clear an example of a man without hope as can be drawn. He is caught in the sticky web of malnutrition, horrible living conditions, transition between feudal rural living conditions and urban life, difficult education, and competition in a job market that is bent on eliminating unskilled tasks. Faced with this obvious and visible wall as well as other more subtle and all but invisible barriers to the Good Life, American Middle-Class Style, think what hell it must be to leaf through the advertisements in Life, Look, or the New Yorker magazines.

How and why are modern miraclees more wonderfully real and believable than any watery stroll?

Our Easter gift is that love smashed the human barrier of pride, self-seeking and separteness. The days before that first Easter were dark, lonely and horrible for the Nazarene Carpenter. It must have seemed as if all Jerusalem were against Him — even His closest friend denied knowing Him when the chips were down. The sadness of being alone before the authorities with an unruly mob outside baying for your life; the intense solitude of the walk to Calvary, surrounded by leering faces; fearing the pain to come by knowing the pain of now; and wondering if this was the end of the Dream, the Life of Love and of Hope.

It is hard to hope when your hands are being roughly nailed to splintery wood, it is hard to hope when the weight of your body is held by your tearing flesh, it is hard to hope as you look down on drooling, heated faces flushed with the thrill of someone else's death and suffering. Even an automobile accident draws a crowd.

From this seed grew hope's blossom of God's Love. In this ugly, lonely, repugnant and distasteful seed-bed, the flower of hope sprang forth full-blown. For in this place of pain and horror, the Power of Love found triumph. From this black and bloody tragedy rose the phoenix of love once again unvanquished, untarnished and free. The glory of Easter's empty tomb and the Presence of the Son of Man at the breaking of bread was hope's strongest seal. This guarntee that even death, the end of a man, is not that at all, but the certification of his fullness.

In death God found Life and even naming of the event after Oestre does not sully its truth.

There is visible new life in spring (Oestre's bag) just as there is invisible new life in the re-birth of hope. Hope is at once tough and fragile—it can be as strong as a hawser or as weak as a thread. For hope to be strong it must be nourished by trust and love and understanding. This feeding can only happen in an atmosphere of honesty and openness.

The closed, up-tight, close-chested card game our nation is now playing on both local and far-flung fronts is not a garden of hope by a long shot. And yet, as the alley's flower began with gathered light, so we can in our own small ways begin to reweave the fibres of love into a hawser of hope.

The re-birth of Easter is the ever-new dream that all is not lost and that a new beginning is as close as the first yes. If each of us were to call hypocrisy by name, point out the lies, and lust after openness, all in the name of the Power of Love, then His Son's work will not have been in vain for us.

Jesus lived and loved and died and came back smiling to offer Himself again and again on the altar of our self-importance. This is enough of a beginning to the life of love. This is enough if you are not so blind you can't see and deaf you can't hear. This is enough of a beginning unless you are up so tight as to be choking on your pride and "leadership potential."

If each one of us presently encased in this newsprint begins to love, to open up, to blossom, to rejoice in the love that taught us to hope, then our world would be changed in the twinkling of an eye. Guns would become butter, and poor babies would grow happy—fat, and people would begin to talk and hug and not be afraid.

If this doesn't happen somewhere, then Easter is a lie.

REV. CHARLES B. GOMPERTZ is the vicar of The Church in Ignacio, the unusual "church in the marketplace" at the Pacheco Plaza. He is the author of this year's Easter message to the readers of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine, an annual tradition with the I-J's weekend supplement. (Independent-Journal photo)

Lamps Made In Marin

Larkspur Is Home Base To A New, Creative Industry

By DON KEOWN

Thomas Gardner Regan, who used to refinish furniture for some of Hollywood's top celebrities, is now engaged in designing and manufacturing lamps for less famous but no less discerning clientele.

Regan is aiming the prodcts of his Thomas Gardner Lamps and Accessories at 556 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, toward the finer decorator shops and stores, and their patrons.

HE MOVED to Marin three years ago from Newport Beach and bought a home in Fairfax. Then he opened a furniture and antique restoration shop at the Larkspur address, making available to Marinites the experience and skills which the movie stars had once utilized in recovering fine furniture pieces for their mansions.

"But there just wasn't enough volume to warrant that kind of business in Marin," Regan says.

So Regan bought a small molding company in San Francisco and moved it to his Larkspur shop. The owner of that firm remained with Regan for some three months, teaching him the intricacies of mold-making and casting.

FOR THE last nine months Regan has been involved in designing a new line of lamps, in the making of the molds, and in the finishing of prototype pieces.

Also being developed are accessories such as small statuary, candle-holders, wall plaques and reproductions and of antique art treasures.

"All our manufactured items are selected and planned for their appeal to the decorator trade," he says.

REGAN FEELS himself especially fortunate to have obtained the services of Max VanRossumDaum of Novato, for years one of Lightolier Corp.'s top creative designers.

VanRossumDaum, Regan says, is "creating a whole new line of clean classic shapes for our lamps."

But even with the help of that distinguished designer and with the part-time assistance of his own artist-wife Marilyn, Regan says it will be about another year before his young concern will have its line of lamps and accessories fully developed and ready for national presentation and production.

"WE HAVE about 65 pieces now, so we are well along," he reports.

In the meantime, to help finance the costly developmental stage, Thomas Gardner Lamps (the firm name is Regan's own middle name) is setting up a retail outlet at its Larkspur shop for its own products.

"We'll sell to Marin County residents at a price well below the cost of our products, once we begin a wider marketing," Regan says. "We will also stock shades and lamp parts, and will have a service department for mounting, wiring, refinishing, etc."

ONE INNOVATION planned by Regan is a lamp kit, to include an unfinished base and all the parts needed for wiring and assembly.

"I am going to take advantage of some of our fine potters here in Marin and commission one-of-a-kind pieces to be made into lamps," Regan says.

He notes that all Thomas Gardner lamps are Underwriter Laboratories approved and carry their label.

IN THE SHOP at their Thomas Gardner Lamps and Accessories in Larkspur, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Regan are surrounded by the molds from which they are producing fine decorator lamps and accessories. The Regans launched the new business nine months ago. (Independent-Journal photos)

REGAN FEELS that an outstanding feature of his products is their finish. It is there he puts into play his 10 years of experience with the furniture of Southern California celebrities.

After graduating from college, Regan spent eight years in South and Central Americas and in Spain in foreign construction work. It was in Spain that he met and married Marilyn.

The pair returned to the United States and to Beverly Hills where Regan bought a leading furniture refinishing business that catered to the motion picture people.

"What Discolored the Buttons On My New Suit?"

There was no cleaning fluid applied to your suit buttons which was not applied to the entire suit. Therefore the discoloration of the buttons must have come from the buttons themselves. Actually that is true. The buttons, before they were covered with the suit fabrics, contained a color which bleeds in drycleaning solvent. There is no way for your drycleaner to know this. The manufacturer was careless or did not plan ahead for the suit to be cleaned properly.

Your drycleaner may be able to remove the stain from the fabric surrounding the buttons, but the buttons, themselves, will have to be replaced.

Tom Regan's Story: From Hollywood To Larkspur Shop

Furniture Finisher For Stars Is Now Producing Fine Lamps

Johnny Mercer, Hedy Lamarr, Charlton Heston and many others," he says.

But one of his most interesting and challenging assignments took him to Phoenix, Ariz., where he was confronted with "a whole truckload of furniture" at the home of Elliott Roosevelt.

Regan remembers especially one desk. It had been a favorite of his client's famous father, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, while in the White House.

"AT THE time I began my work I was not aware it was the late President's desk," Regan recalls. "It was locked, and it had to be opened in preparation for stripping off the old finish. We had been given numerous keys, and finally found the one that fit.

"Upon opening it, we found it filled with papers and a Contax camera. It did not take me long to realize I had something important on my hands. I locked it back up immediately and notified Mr. Roosevelt, who had all the contents picked up before our work proceeded.

MRS. TOM REGAN, an artist, performs the "pointing" process on this accessory piece, a small horse statuary, which consists of chipping and cutting away the rough spots left by the mold.

"Evidently, I was the first person to have opened the desk since President Roosevelt's death."

CALLED TO the house of one of the Marx Brothers to do a complete restoration job, Regan found himself face to face with a bed such as he had never before encountered.

"It was made of two-by-fours and two-by-sixes, just rough lumber, and other assorted boards. It seems, Marx had made it as a young man, had become attached to it, and refused to give it up. So we did the best we could with it, and back it went, into a sumptuous, gorgeous room."

In working with the famous of Hollywood and Beverly Hills, Regan became aware that along with great wealth those people had developed a disregard for things of value.

HE TELLS of one customer who dropped off two small paintings at his shop with instructions to "re-leaf" the frames — then, as an afterthought, also told him to have the paintings cleaned while he had them.

"They lay where she left them on top of a piano in our busy workshop for two weeks, with numerous people going in and out all the time," Regan remembers.

"Then one day I took the pictures out, so that I could work on the frames, and sent them to a nearby restorer. When he returned with them, he told me they were by Henri Rousseau, and had last sold for $24,000!"

WHEN THEIR owner arrived to collect her property, Regan asked her why she had not warned him of their value.

Her reply: "Oh, these aren't really any of my valuable pieces. I'm just having them fixed up for the maid's room."

One reason Regan also had failed to recognize the value of that art — Rousseau had done the paintings on the lids of old cigar boxes.

ALMOST DAILY contacts with the glamorous figures of the entertainment world are now a part of Tom Regan's past. He has adjusted to a new career of producing quality, tasteful accessories for a clientele that does appreciate fine value. Nor does he regret the change. His time is filled with planning and working toward the day when Thomas Gardner lamps and accessories will be known and stocked in fashionable decorator shops across the country.

It's an objective he finds much more challenging and more satisfying than the gold-leafing of toilet seats for Hollywood's elite.

MRS. MAX VANROSSUMDAUM, wife of the designer and a Novato resident, examines some of the finished work at Thomas Gardner Lamps and Accessories in Larkspur for whom her husband is now creating designs. The firm has set up a new retail outlet in connection with its manufacturing operations.

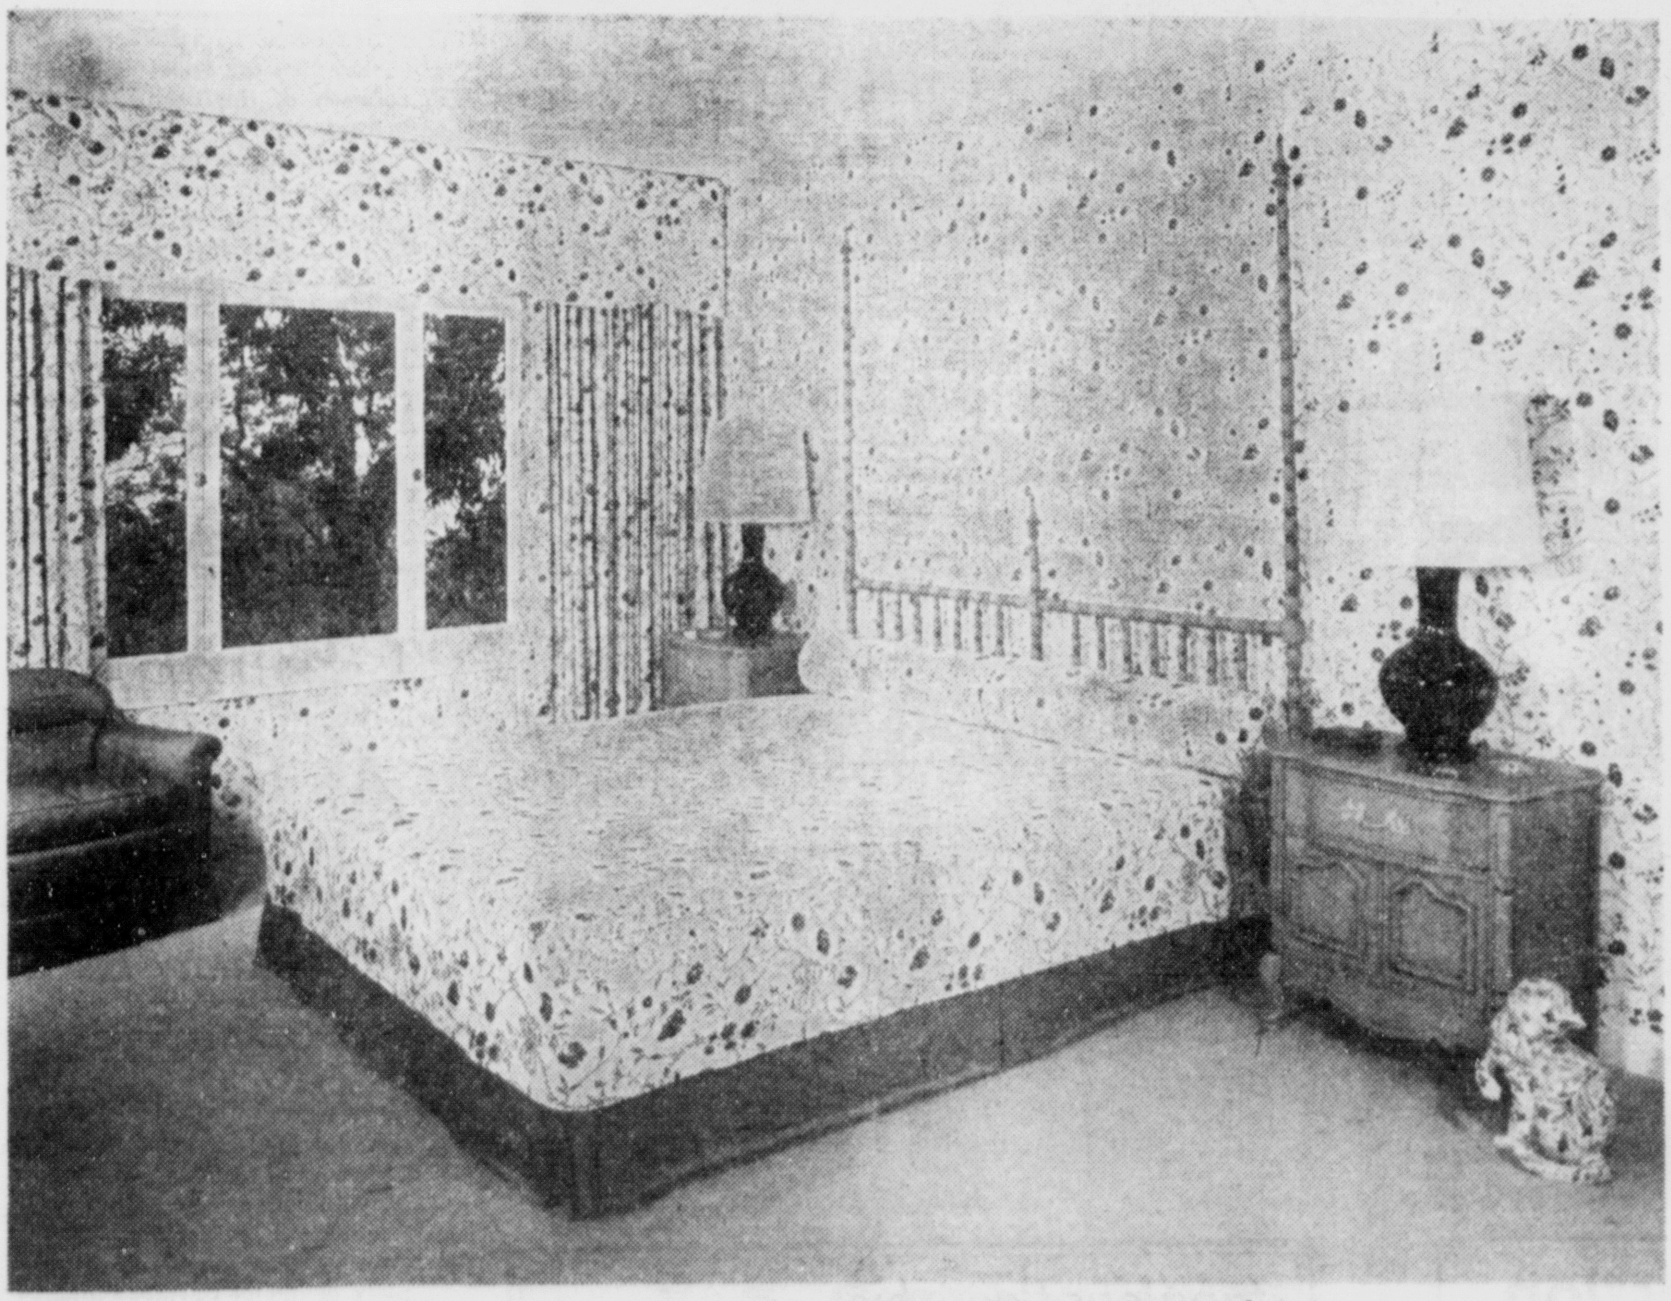
FABRICS and furnishings from many lands are "at home" in the Sausalito residence of interior designer Helen Brown. Focal point in the living-dining room, at right, is a handsome antique Chinese gate hung over a sofa covered in dyed-to-order crewel from Kashmir. (Helen Brown and her partner, Mrs. Leon Cuenin, made actual crewel-work samples using mercerized cotton thread so exact colors could be duplicated.) Bright watermelon pink chairs upholstered in Thai silk with pink and orange plaid cushions, repeat the crewel embroidery coloring as well as the shades in the Persian-patterned border of a Thai Pink area rug custommade in Hong Kong Behind one sofa is an antique Adam desk from England — a country also represented by the burled chestnut coffee table and Pembroke dropleaf lamp tables flanking a sofa. Accessories include an assortment of Oriental and European boxes and bibelots repeating pink, orange and green color-scheme. The room is a convincing demonstration that old and new, imported and domestic furnishings blend well together if scale. color and shape is carefully considered.



MATCHING BEDSPREAD, wallpaper and draperies provide a unifying effect in this inviting bedroom of Sausalito interior designer Helen Brown. Emerald green, black and white colors of the fern and floral pattern are repeated in black porcelain lamps with glossy white shades; emerald silk bedskirt and coordinated custom-designed chair with shirred back cushion. Country French bedside tables were painted a harmonizing green; while chest of drawers and bureau (not shown) in the room are cream with green trim. A cunning china cat is one of more than a dozen fanciful figures collected by the decorator. Of special interest is the ingenious headboard created from two old-fashioned spool beds to which tall headposts were added, then painted to match tables flanking the king-size bed. Bolster pillows open on one side to store regular bed pillows. Ceilings are off-white; floor is covered wall-to-wall with soft gold wool carpeting. Bedroom overlooks a wooden garden and San Francisco. (Photos by Joseph Szewczak)

THE CHURCH of the Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish in Mill Valley, dedicated in 1917, was in the mission style. It owed much of the beauty of its landscaping, above, and redwood interior, at left, to the creative tastes of artist Camile Antoine Solon. The church building was razed in 1956. A new, very different Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church will be dedicated next month. (Photos courtesy of Thelma Fenton)

A New Sanctuary For Our Lady Of Mount Carmel Parish

O'Brien and his assistant Fr. Francis Scanlon.

THE SPIRE OF the 12-sided, curve-roofed church rises 134 feet, and the gold cross atop it can be seen for miles by those approaching Mill Valley.

The new church was designed inside and out, furnishings, stained glass windows and all, by architect Fred T. Houweling of San Mateo.

The new sanctuary, which cost approximately $320,000, will seat 850 worshipers on pews made by Trappists at an Oregon monastery.

SINCE THE former church was razed in 1956, services have been held in the church school auditorium, limited to 360 persons. The old church itself seated only 200, and many parishioners attended mass in other communities.

Rev. John J. O'Brien, who became administrator of the parish in 1947 and pastor in 1955, started the drive for new facilities at Mount Carmel. Ground was broken in 1953 for the parochial school, which now has 320 pupils in kindergarten through eighth grade taught by lay teachers and nuns in the order of Daughters of Mary and Joseph.

The school was completed in 1955, and the following year the old church was razed. The space was used as playground area until work began on the new church.

THE PARISH raised funds for the new church and new rectory, which cost approximately $110,000, over several years by a variety of fund-raising events and activities, including the Mill Valley salvage shop which is still operating on Lovell Avenue.

Worshipers enter the new sanctuary by climbing a flight of stairs that follows the line of the building, entering through large double doors beneath a stained-glass window of the Holy Family.

Inside, the entry is flanked by two glass-enclosed rooms, a baptistery on the right and a room for parents with infants on the left.

THE SLUMPSTONE walls are interrrupted by concrete pillars inlaid with brilliantly colored mosaics, repeating the colors of the stained glass panels atop the walls.

The Stations of the Cross are inset in smaller stained glass panels below the main panels.

The main panels circle the wall, denoting the seasons of the church calendar, starting at the left as one enters with an Advent panel of three angels blowing trumpets. Following panels on the left side mark Christmas, Lent, Good Friday and Easter.

ON THE RIGHT are five more panels denoting the rest of the year, ending again with Advent.

Forming a backdrop to the lava stone altar is a wall of white dolomite stones. The Christ figure from the first Mill Valley church is on a new cross on the background wall. The bronze tabernacle stands on a Carrara marble table.

Near the peak of the soaring, concave-timbered roof is another ring of stained glass windows. Below the ring is suspended a large disc of stained glass which hangs below fluorescent lights and floodlights mounted at the peak.

AROUND THE perimeter of the church four confessionals are spaced, and the organ is installed to the right of the altar. Two wood-paneled side doors flank the main entrance.

The new sanctuary is the third church building the parish has had.

In the early days of Marin, Saint Raphael's church in San Rafael served the entire county. In 1881, growth of southern Marin led to establishment of Saint Mary's Star of the Sea parish in Sausalito, which then included Mill Valley.

MILL VALLEY began to grow rapidly in 1889 with establishment of the San Francisco, Tamalpais and Bolinas Railroad, and with incorporation of the Tamalpais Land and Water

The new sanctuary is the third church building the parish has had.

In the early days of Marin, Saint Raphael's church in San Rafael served the entire county. In 1881, growth of southern Marin led to establishment of Saint Mary's Star of the Sea parish in Sausalito, which then included Mill Valley.

MILL VALLEY began to grow rapidly in 1889 with establishment of the San Francisco, Tamalpais and Bolinas Railroad, and with incorporation of the Tamalpais Land and Water Company.

Rev. John Valentini, assistant pastor of Star of the Sea, started mission services in Mill Valley and Bolinas, driving to both by horse and buggy.

The first church service in the Mill valley mission was celebrated at the Molino Avenue home of James A. Thompson, whose family included novelist Kathleen Norris.

MASS WAS later held at Summit Grammar School, until the mission was given a site at the rear of the school, off Summit Avenue, by the Tamalpais Land and Water Company. The first church, a plain wooden building 33 by 65 feet, was built there and dedicated in 1893.

There are several theories about the naming of the parish.

The version usually accepted is that Mill Valley's mountain setting reminded Father Valentini of Mount Carmel in northern Palestine, where it is said the first church honoring the mother of Jesus was built in 84 A.D.

IN 1910, OUR Lady of Mount Carmel became an independent parish, and Rev. Joseph Sesnon was named pastor. Father Valentini was pastor at Star of the Sea by that time.

The first church becoming inadequate, a site was bought at Buena Vista and West Blithedale avenues, and in 1916 Rev. Philip Bryne became pastor and began construction of a new church at the site.

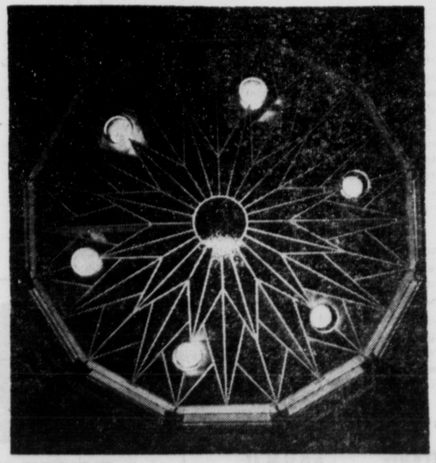
The mission-style church and a pastor's residence were built and the church dedicated in 1917. The church, seating 200, served the parish until it was razed in 1956 under Father O'Brien.

ITS INTERIOR and landscape beauty were the result of the creative efforts of a famous artist, Camile Antoine Solon, then a Mill Valley resident, who later did similar work at William Randolph Hearst's fabulous San Simeon.

Fr. Thomas A. Crimmins, pastor from 1920 to 1923, was followed by Fr. John F. Duggan, Fr. Patrick O'Neill and Fr. William Cleary.

The latter served from 1931 until he was succeeded in 1955 by Father O'Brien, despite failing health in the later years.

Philip J. Sinnott of Mill Valley, who has been engaged in compiling parish history, says of Father O'Brien: "His vision, dynamic efforts and business acumen were responsible for the new church" where tomorrow the congregation will gather to observe one of Christianity's most hallowed days.



FLOODLIGHTS PIERCE this stained glass disc at the peak of the church roof. A ring of small stained glass windows admits outside light above the ring, and fluorescent lights also ring the roof above the disc.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

THE NEW MUSIC—Stockhausen: Kontra-Punkte; Penderecki: Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima; Brown: Available Forms I; Pousser: Rimes pour differentes sources sonores—Rome Symphony Orchestra/Bruno Maderna—RCA Victrola VICS-1239:

The appearance of avant-garde music such as this, not only on an RCA Victor label, but a bargain-priced line to boot, may come as a surprise to many record collectors.

The truth is that avant-garde classical music is one of the biggest sellers on LPs today, and Victor is merely joining the crowd. This is the first volume of what looks like a landmark series sampling the very best music of today.

The Penderecki work is for me the greatest on this disc—a searing, emotionally wracking experience that recreates the horror of Hiroshima in an almost programmatic way. But harmonically this is light years away from a Berlioz or Richard Strauss.

The Stockhausen work is one of his best-known, written in 1952. It endeavors to balance six types of "tone-color" against one another in the typically super-organized Stockhausen fashion.

A careful study of this entire stereodisc and its liner notes, if carried out with an open mind, will do much to open the exciting world of contemporary music to the uninitiated.

JUGS, WASHBOARDS & KAZOOS—RCA Victor Vintage Series LPV-540:

From the late 1920s and the periphery of jazz come these delightful old performances featuring the simple folk instruments of America—harmonica, banjo, kazoo, washboards and earthenware jugs.

These were relaxed and informal music-making sessions by people with no formal musical training. Their completely infectious joyousness is duplicated today (almost note for note in some tunes) by the young folk-rock group Jim Kweskin and his Jug Band.

The lyrics of some of the tunes will have those whose youth was centered in this period convulsed with laughter. For example the "sermon" at the start of "House Rent Rag."

MR. JELLY LORD—Jelly Roll Morton—RCA Victor Vintage Series LPV-546:

This is the second Morton reissue that Victor has made available.

The dates range from 1926 to 1930, and such classics as the title tune, and "The Wolverine Blues" are included.

The liner notes spend considerable time on Morton's egotistical personality and eclectic tastes in music, but the important thing is the forward-looking nature of much of his jazz. This feature makes his work sound much less dated than other performances of this period which are hide-bound by the standard style of the times. Lots of good solo piano work by Morton, too.

THE THIRD RAIL — "Id Music" — EPIC BN 26327:

A new group consisting of a gal and two guys has a swinging approach to the rock sound and some interesting material in the lyrics department. Their hits "Run, Run, Run" and "Boppa Do Down Down" are included.

Never mind the garbage about "Id music;" this is just good pop rock stuff and needs no artificial credo.

BRAHMS: The Complete Quartets — The Janacek Quartet — Crossroads 22 26 0010:

Another two-disc album package, and this one at a bargain price.

Although it has competition from three other complete sets of the same, it is sure to find many buyers because of its rich close-up stereo sound and singing tone of the performers.

Brahms began rather late in life to compose chamber music, and the three quartets are among his greatest achievements. His lyric sweetness is beautifully balanced by solid muscle, his Romanticism by his "new Classicism. The folk music flavor of the "Third Quartet in B Flat Major" is also an intriguing quality.

This album is a welcome companion to Crossroads' earlier package of the complete Brahms Quartets for Piano and Strings.

MONTEVERDI: The Return Lehane/Bence/Wollitz/Michalis/Santini Chamber Orchestra/Rudolf Ewerhart — Turnabout TV 34131S:

First recording of music from Monteverdi's three-act opera of 1641, which rivals his great "Orfeo" in musical invention. The story closely follows Homer; the excerpts seems well-chosen to move the story along dramatically, and the libretto in English (only) is printed on the jacket.

A fine operatic bargain.

KANSAS CITY PIANO (1936-1941)—Decca DL 9226:

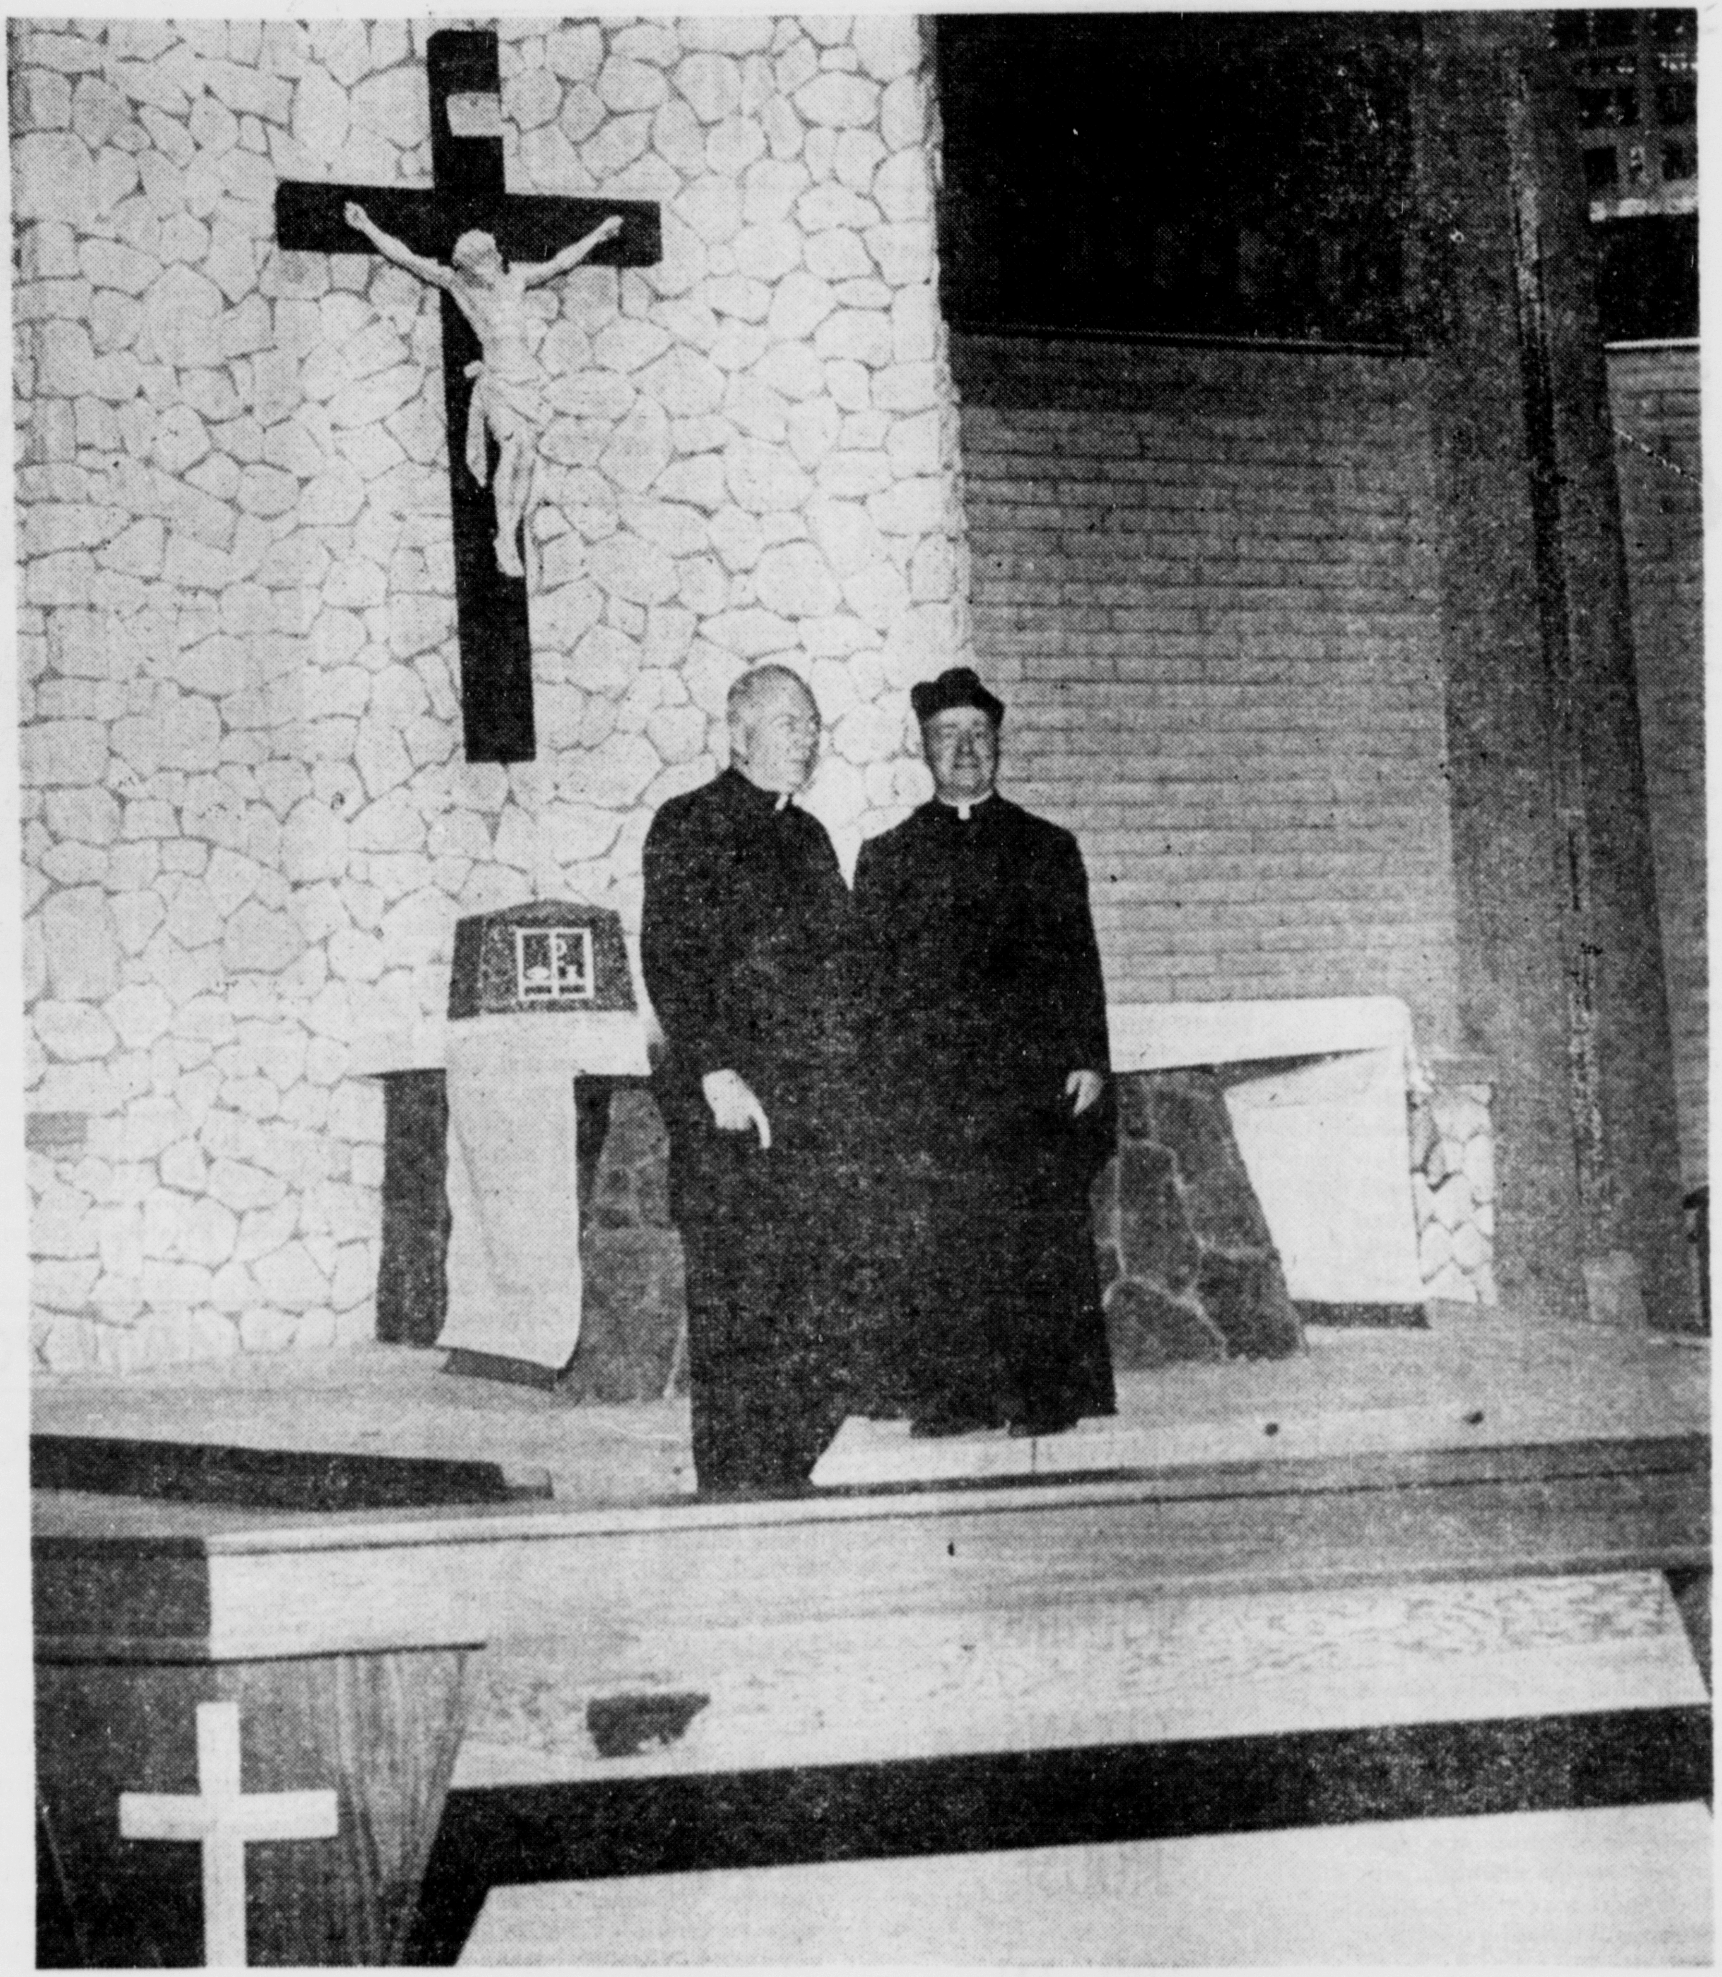
Another in the Jazz Heritage Series, this LP essays the "down home" blues and boogie piano styles which grew and developed during this period in Kansas City. Represented are Count Basie in four number with his trio, the great lady of jazz piano Mary Lou Williams in three tunes (two of them originals), four by Pete Johnson and three by Jay McShann. The latter two were in the boogie-woogie bag, and many devices heard in today's rock music can be clearly heard in their work.

Sound is, of course, dated, but good enough.

THE BEAT GOES ON — Herbie Mann — Atlantic SD 1483:

Mann's latest LP shows the influence of rock n' roll in several tracks, even to the addition of some real rock electric organ work. There is also his usual Afro-Cuban-Latin bit, showing off conga drummer Carlos Valdes. Ten swinging tunes in all.

...new Our Lady of Mount Carmel ...ly Family scene over the door, ...stant, Fr. Francis Scanlon, survey ... will be held tomorrow. (Independent-Journal photos)



FR. JOHN J. O'BRIEN, right, and his assistant, Fr. Francis Scanlon, look over the new sanctuary of Our Lady of Mount Carmel from in front of the altar. Behind them is the statue of Christ which was in the first church built in the parish, now on a new cross. The stone backdrop is white dolomite.

The Gold Cross On Top

Company.

Rev. John Valentini, assistant pastor of Star of the Sea, started mission services in Mill Valley and Bolinas, driving to both by horse and buggy.

The first church service in the Mill valley mission was celebrated at the Molino Avenue home of James A. Thompson, whose family included novelist Kathleen Norris.

MASS WAS later held at Summit Grammar School, until the mission was given a site at the rear of the school, off Summit Avenue, by the Tamalpais Land and Water Company. The first church, a plain wooden building 33 by 65 feet, was built there and dedicated in 1893.

There are several theories about the naming of the parish.

The version usually accepted is that Mill Valley's mountain setting reminded Father Valentini of Mount Carmel in northern Palestine, where it is said the first church honoring the mother of Jesus was built in 84 A.D.

IN 1910, OUR Lady of Mount Carmel became an independent parish, and Rev. Joseph Sesnon was named pastor. Father Valentini was pastor at Star of the Sea by that time.

The first church becoming inadequate, a site was bought at Buena Vista and West Blithedale avenues, and in 1916 Rev. Philip Bryne became pastor and began construction of a new church at the site.

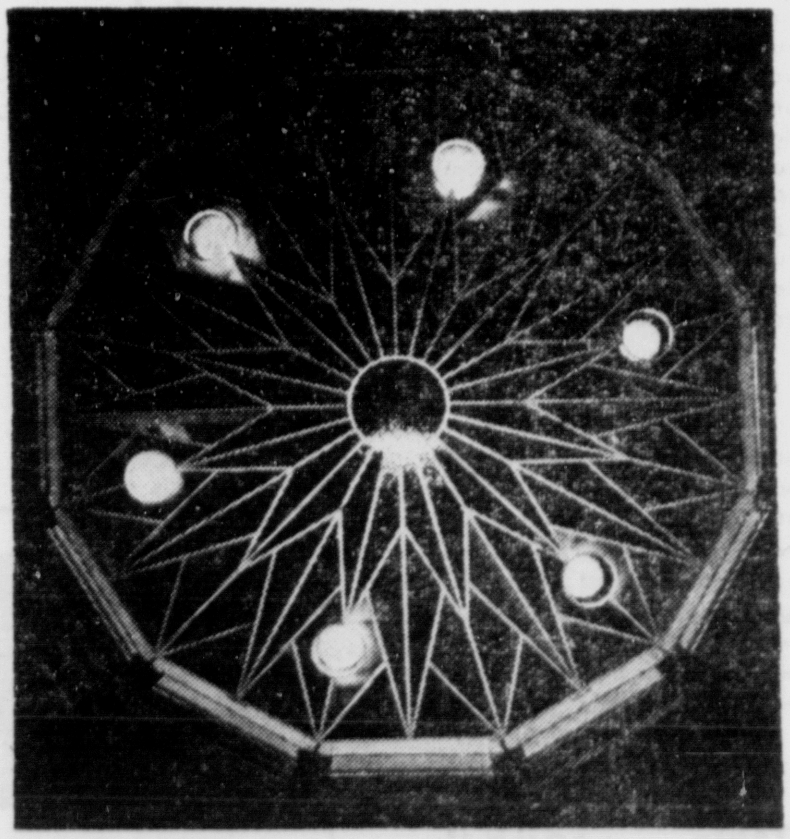
The mission-style church and a pastor's residence were built and the church dedicated in 1917. The church, seating 200, served the parish until it was razed in 1956 under Father O'Brien.

ITS INTERIOR and landscape beauty were the result of the creative efforts of a famous artist, Camile Antoine Solon, then a Mill Valley resident, who later did similar work at Willlam Randolph Hearst's fabulous San Simeon.

Fr. Thomas A. Crimmins, pastor from 1920 to 1923, was followed by Fr. John F. Duggan, Fr. Patrick O'Neill and Fr. William Cleary.

The latter served from 1931 until he was succeeded in 1955 by Father O'Brien, despite failing health in the later years.

Philip J. Sinnott of Mill Valley, who has been engaged in compiling parish history, says of Father O'Brien: "His vision, dynamic efforts and business acumen were responsible for the new church" where tomorrow the congregation will gather to observe one of Christianity's most hallowed days.



FLOODLIGHTS PIERCE this stained glass disc at the peak of the church roof. A ring of small stained glass windows admits outside light above the ring, and fluorescent lights also ring the roof above the disc.

THE SYSTEM CONCEPT—The system concept is a way in which our firm can pass along quite large savings to customers. What is this concept? Basically, when a customer purchases a complete component home music system from our firm, a system that is integrated by us as a best buy, the customer will realize a large saving.

Why can we do this? Over the many years of selling and installing component home music systems we have learned which products offer the most reliable operation for a given amount of money. There are many stereo FM tuner amplifiers in the $250 class. In our show rooms the customer will not find a half dozen receivers in this $250 class to confuse him. We have weeded out those that are not quite as good a buy, and stock those few that are the best performers. The same applies to record changers, cartridges, speaker systems, tape decks and recorders, as well as units in other price categories.

By limiting our lines to the most reliable performers for the dollar, we are able to buy those items in greater quantities and thus get best pricing from the manufacturers. The job for our Audio Specialists is to group components that fall into various price categories into a best performing music system of matched components. It is important that the various components complement each other in the various price and quality levels. For example, to combine the most elaborate record changer with an inexpensive cartridge, as is done by many dealers in their penny cartridge advertisements, is very poor economy.

What is a system? A complete home music system of the component type consists of an FM stereo tuner/amplifier, a record changer with its base and cartridge, and a pair of speaker systems. A complete grouping allows our service department to check out the integrated group as one complete music system to insure maximum undistorted performance. The entire unit is under our control, not just a part here and there.

At present we are integrating systems using Harmon Kardon, Scott, Sansui and other solid state receivers with Garrard record changers and Shure cartridges, and with a matched set of two way speaker systems that have to be heard. Visit us for a demonstration.

MARIN POETS CORNER

PORTRAIT

How should I paint my Lord
As He stood on Easter Day?

Dew-washed gold-leaf would underpaint the flesh tones.
I'd do the clothing folds with brownish ink from cloister scrolls,
Then mix the color for His palms from rust scraped from the nails that had impaled Him.
I'd say to an angel, "Bring me tears shed by the Virgin on Friday to bind a pigment for the eyes."
I'd place it all on gesso ground made from the powdr'y talc of martyr's bones.

And were it just as I'd wish it t'be,
And hanging in a gallery,
All who saw it would 'wake and say
"Laudate Jesu Domine!"

TIBURON — BARBARA FLYNN

EASTER GLORY

Oh what a sky!
Now I know why
I had to rise
as early as I did.

Where first the sky was red,
Its glory spread and spread Till East and West and South were one.

Spread out your wings,
my soul, and sing —
the heavens are not sealed;
God's glory stands revealed!

A Ride On The Skunk

The Travel Page

You don't need a saddle to ride the Skunk; only a ticket.

This isn't the polecat that raids henhouses, of course. It's a railroad through the redwoods in Mendocino County.

Some 150,000 delighted passengers took the Skunk excursion last year, twisting through tunnels and over trestles on a two-hour ride between Willits and Fort Bragg.

THE YELLOW diesel tramcar makes the round trip daily year-round, leaving Fort Bragg on the coast at 9:45 a.m. and returning from Willits on U.S.Highway 101 at 1:45 p.m.

Its big brother, the steam Super-Skunk, resumes its weekend schedule April 27, after a winter's hibernation; and picks up to a daily tempo May 30. On June 27, the Skunk adds two diesel cars, so that until Sept. 15, the line will have four trains daily.

The vermilion-and-gold "Super" locomotive and four chair-cars leaves Fort Bragg at 10 a.m. and Willits at 2:25 p.m. Round trip fare on all Skunks is $4.50, with children under 11 half-price. Tots under 5 ride free, if not occupying a seat.

THERE'S PLENTY to see and do at either end of the tracks. Willits has resorts and several western museums mirroring its frontier past. Fort Bragg offers visits to a huge redwood mill, to the fishing port of Noyo or the art colony at Mendocino, 11 miles south.

Both terminal towns have excellent motel accommodations; and at the Fort Bragg end are campgrounds in State Parks at MacKerricher Beach, Russian Gulch, Van Damme Beach, Dimmisk and Joshua Hendy. Family campsites are $3 per night. Reservations (accompanied by $1) may be made with the Division of Beaches and Parks in Sacramento until May 31.

Skunk reservations are wise, too, and can be made (if accompanied by fares) with California Western Railroad — the more dignified name for the Skunk — at Fort Bragg. A package tour also is offered by Greyhound Travel Bureau, 729 Market Street, San Francisco.

A LOGGING line since 1885, California Western forsook steam for diesels in 1925, then got its name from scornful woodsmen who said the fumes reminded them of a skunk. However in 1965 the railroad resurrected some ancient rolling-stock and went back into steam.

So successful has this proved, that next year CWRR plans to add a second locomotive train.

For families who want to make a weekend of it, or longer, the takeoff point for Fort Bragg is just north of Cloverdale. Here State Route 128 winds lazily down rural scenic Anderson Valley to the mouth of the Navarro River.

SOME OF California's finest seacoast starts here, with Route 1 (the Shoreline Highway) skirting old lumber ports and crossing deep gulches on arching concrete bridges. Mendocino and its art galleries merit a stop, and there are azalea gardens to visit at Albion and south of Fort Bragg. Wild rhododendrons start blooming here in late April.

If the Skunk round-trip ends at Fort Bragg, a leisurely drive back to the San Francisco Bay area down Route 1 takes vacationers on the eye-filling route past Point Arena and Fort Ross, old Russian outpost.

Redwood Empire Association Map

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

Marin author Allen Durry will sail aboard the American President Lines' SS President Wilson Aug. 15 from San Francisco on a two-months "Ambassadors of Goodwill Tour" of the Orient and India, during which he will present shipboard lectures on politics and government, and supervisor arrangements for meetings with leaders and diplomats in the countries visited . . . The April issue of Venture magazine spotlights boating, and includes a short article on Sausalito's waterfront residents — "the most bizarre flotilla of houseboats I had seen anywhere," says writer Anne Stagg.

The California Western Railroad of "Skunk" and "Super Skunk" fame has added a saddle-tank Mallet steam locomotive, 2-6-6-2, built in 1937, to its stock . . . The spring issue of Allstate Motor Club's Discovery magazine is devoted to Mexico with special attention to the Summer Olympics . . . All Pan American flights between the West Coast and Hawaii are now open to special youth fare travelers on a "space available" basis . . . San Antonio's HemisFair '68, now under way, offers visitors more than 100 eating pleaces.

Movie Critic Who Isn't Smart Alecky

By DON KEOWN

KISS KISS BANG BANG by Pauline Kael; Atlantic-Little, Brown, 370 pages, $7.95.

THE WORLD OF CEZANNE by Richard W. Murphy; Time-Life, 192 pages, in slipcover, $7.95.

THE WORLD OF PICASSO by Lael Wertenbaker; Time-Life, 190 pages, in slipcover, $7.95.

There's the kind of critic who is more enamoured with his own cleverness of expression than he is dedicated to the use of his critical faculties.

One suspects he begins with preconceived witticisms, and adjusts his evaluation of his subject to fit those phrases. Somewhere, somehow that wisecrack must be worked in.

Pauline Kael, the motion picture critic, is not one of that number.

A reading of her articles and reviews serves as a reminder of what the critic's prime responsibilities are — not so much to entertain or impress as to probe and analyze, sometimes praising, sometimes deploring, but always telling the reader something about the play, the painting, the concert, the movie, that goes beyond the superficial and the obvious.

Miss Kael's "I Lost It at the Movies" was a brilliant example of critical comment rooted in sound judgment and intelligent expression, as against the school that prefers the exhibitionism of smart-alecky quips. Nor does she pontificate.

Her newest book, "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang," another collection of essays and reviews, should strengthen her reputation as this country's most perceptive student of the film medium.

Pauline Kael is not one of those critics who thinks it fashionable to disdain everything. She has a refreshing capability for enthusiasms — for "Bonnie and Clyde" as the most exciting American movie since "The Manchurian Candidate," for Marlon Brando as "our most powerful young screen actor, the only one who suggested tragic force, the major protagonist of contemporary American themes in the fifties" . . . or for Orson Welles as a director.

She can also write with a bite as when she takes on the system that has prevented Brando, Welles, Barrymore, Laughton and other truly great talents from realizing their full potential, then ridiculed them for their failures. Or when she expresses her contempt for the Luella Parsons-Hedda Hopper school of gossip-mongers and their toadies.

One reads Pauline Kael with the discovery that time and again she has succeeded in verbalizing sentiments the reader, too, experienced, but was unable to express so clearly. And when she points out something you failed to notice, with it comes, too, the realization that, almost invariably, she is indisputably correct.

"Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" is a stimulating book that no movie buff should miss. At the back of the book there is a final treat in store — the brief comments of Miss Kael upon some 300 motion pictures covering a wide period of time, many nationalities and a broad diversity in types of films. That, alone, is worth the price of the book.

PABLO PICASSO, hailed by many as this century's most important artistic talent, is the subject of "The World of Picasso," part of Time-Life's Library of Art series.

TIME-LIFE has added two more books to its impressive and stylish Library of Art series, dealing with a pair of colorful and controversial painters whose careers coincided for a brief time and who together cover a period of more than a century that has not yet ended.

"The World of Cezanne 1839-1906" is by Richard W. Murphy, the former music editor for Time. "The World of Picasso 1881—" is by Lael Wertenbaker, author and also a former Time staff member.

Both have performed their assignments with a verve and skill that goes beyond the usual capability. Both shed some new light upon their subjects.

Whereas Paul Cezanne has been accorded the reputation of revolutionary and anti-traditionalist, Murphy insists the opposite was true. What Cezanne did, he tells us, was to "regenerate" the classical ideal through his search for natural order and harmony.

It was, then, almost coincidental that his work did influence markedly some later genuine innovators, including Pablo Picasso.

Cezanne, however, has been but one of many influences reflected in Picasso's work, as versatile as it has been prolific. And the major force, Miss Wertenbaker tells us, has been the women in the artist's life.

Both books are interesting, not only because their subjects are interesting, but because the narratives are well done. As is typical of this series, the writers portray their subjects, not in isolation, but within the context of the culture of their time, nonconforming parts though both men have been.

Like their predecessors in the series, these two volumes are lavishly illustrated with historical photographs, reproductions of the two men's artistic work (with a striking use of color), and, in Picasso's case, some contemporary candids. David Douglas Duncan's pictures of Picasso, taken in the mid-1950s, are particularly fascinating.

Finally, the books are handsomely designed and bound, as befits works in the field of art.

JAMES WHISTLER is remembered today as a painter, and particularly as the painter of one particular portrait. But in his time, he was known too as a critic and wit who became involved in ferocious feuds. That side of Whistler appeared in his book "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies" that has now been reprinted as a $2.25 quality paperback by Dover Publications. Readers will find it not only entertaining, but also a revealing glimpse at the lively artistic spirit of another age.

WALLACE NOTESTEIN, later Sterling professor of English history at Yale, began in 1908 for his doctorate in philosophy the writing of a dissertation on witchcraft in England. As he worked his subject broadened, and the eventual outcome was a book published in 1911. Long out of print, "A History of Witchcraft in England" has now been reprinted as a $2.95 Apollo Editions paperback. Notestein's excellent work remains as readable today as he was more than half a century ago, and provides an interesting, comprehensive accurate chronicle of a sad facet in English history that has not always been so treated.

PUBLISHED in San Francisco by Drake-Holter Publications Inc.: "How to Get a Job in California!"

Additional job-seekers doesn't exactly seem to some of us to be the thing this state needs most. But they are coming. And undoubtedly, will continue to come. Herbert G. Drake of the publishing firm says the $1.95 paperback contains "everything they will need to know," covering such subjects as the state job market picture, the latest California economic developments, job interviews and resumes, employment agencies and "facts of life" in the golden state.

In the back of the book are directories of potential employers, Southern and Northern California, and of agencies.

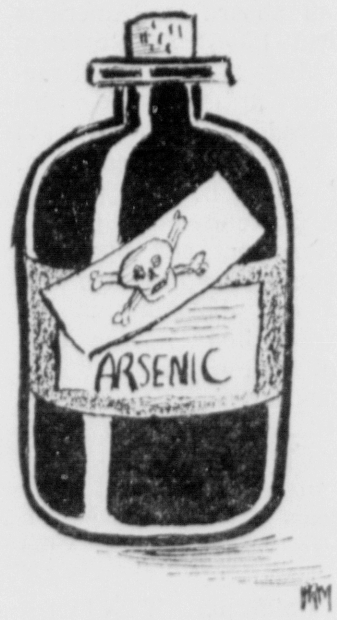
THE LONG SHORT CUT by Andrew Garve; Harper & Row, 166 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Andrew Garve, one of the very best of the British writers of crime novels, rarely repeats himself as to type of story.

Typically, "The Long Short Cut" is considerably different than the Garve yarns before it.

This time Garve writes of Michael Bliss, a suave, dashing, daring and imaginative "con man," who with the help of a pretty girl, designs, engineers and threatens to carry out a project of astonishing complexity and ingenuity. For a price — a big price — he will help an accused, closely guarded embezzler escape from England.

There's something of Leslie Charteris' Simon Templar (the Saint) in Bliss. Yet he is a distinctive character in his own right, an appealing and interesting rogue. The reader may well find himself not on the side of the law as Bliss matches wits with the authorities. But the contest is exciting. There's a final surprise in store for the reader. In fact, two of them.

Even for Garve, "The Long Short Cut" is a surperior suspense novel.

New Books For The Junior Readers

For instance the husband and wife team of writer Edith Thacher Hurd and illustrator Clement Hurd have combined again to turn out "The Blue Heron Tree" (Viking, $3.95).

It will be of special interest to Marinites, young and old alike, in that it is based upon observations made by the Hurds at the Audubon Canyon Ranch refuge on the Bolinas Lagoon, and is dedicated to the Marin County and Golden Gate Audubon Societies in appreciation of their successful effort to save those feeding and nesting grounds of the heron and the egret.

By focusing upon one big heron, the Hurds have authentically and interestingly recorded the life habits of a fascinating bird. Mrs. Hurd is at her best, obviously inspired by her subject. "The most pleasant research I have ever undertaken," she says. And her artist-husband provides simple, appealing artwork in greens, black and white that should captivate young nature students in the 7 to 10-year-old range.

Another Marinite, Adrien Stoutenburg, has put together "American Tall-Tale Animals" (Viking, $3.95), again collaborating with artist Glen Rounds.

She has reached back into our folk lore and legends to recall and re-tell the kinds of exaggerated yarns that Americans once loved to spin — Leander, the rattlesnake who mastered Morse code; the Arkansas bear who was as big as a cloud; the pet fish who learned to live out of water; the whiffle-pooffle, the Goofus bird and the squonk.

The humor, the imagination and the tradition of it all add up to a lot of entertainment for children 7 to 10. Rounds' drawings are simple, informal and in keeping with the tone and content of the book.

Larkspur author Zilpha Keatley Snyder combines her soaring imagination with her insight into teen-age problems to produce an entertaining yarn in "Eyes in the Fishbowl" (Atheneum, $3.95).

Fifteen-year-old Dion James' home life is a twist. In rebelling against the ideas of his Bohemian father, Dion turns into something of a square, but his strange experiences at Alcott-Simpson's, the huge department store, persuades Dion to accept things as they are. At the end of the book, he is ready to use his exceptional musical talent.

Artist Alton Raible of the College of Marin faculty illustrates the book with breezy sketches that seem a bit too hastily done at times. He leaves the beard off one character, a "square" omission and one young readers are not likely to excuse.

Some other new books for juniors:

"Doctor Dolittle and the Pirates" (Random House, $1.95) is the second of the Hugh Lofting books to be adapted by Al Perkins for beginning readers as part of the "I Can Read All By Myself" series. The first, "The Travels of Doctor Dolittle," met with great success. This one should delight children, too, as it tells how the currently very popular doctor and his animal friends outwit a crew of pirate rascals. Illustrations by Philip Wende are lively and colorful.

That timeless tale of the Brothers Grimm, "Little Red Riding Hood" (Harcourt, Brace & World,$3.50), has been retold by Harriet Pincus with her own illustrations. Her pictures have an old-fashioned quality to them that seems appropriate to the story which Miss Pincus gives a dramatic interpretation that remains faithful to the original line of the old folk tale.

"Rhyming Will" (McGraw-Hill, $3.50) is a merry tale of Old England about a lad who couldn't speak until he was 7, and thereafter always spoke in rhyme. Needless to say, that caused problems, and finally he left his home city for London where new adventures and misadventures awaited him and his dog. The rollicking story for small children is delightfully told, and the period illustrations are charming.

Pop-up books are a big thing with the small ones these days, and Random House's "Dimensional Books" is one of the more creative and entertaining projects in the field. Two recent presentations are "The Pop-Up Colorbook With Magic Color Wheels" and "The Pop-Up Tournament of Magic," with stories by Albert G. Miller, design by Paul Taylor and "paper engineering" by Tor Lokvig. Both books are replete with animation. Both sell for $1.95. The first tells the story of a little gray rabbit who wants a brighter color for his fur, but finds the choice of hue a difficult one. The latter is a very clever depiction of the feats of magicians entered in a contest proclaimed by a king. Both should captivate the tots.

Paul Galdone has put his special illustrative talents to work to give new life to an old Brothers Grimm tale, "The Bremen Town Musicians" (McGraw-Hill, $3.75). This is the story of the four farm animals who, their usefulness at an end in their rural habitation and facing extenction, set out for the city and a hoped-for new career as musicians. Galdone's fine touch adds delightfully to the humor of the story.

To the Signature Books "Names That Made History" series has been added "The Story of Jacqueline Kennedy" (Grosset & Dunlap, $1.95) by the veteran writer Alieda Sims Malkus. Compared with the likes of Daniel Boone, Florence Nightengale, Madame Curie and some of the others that have come before her in the series, Mrs. Kennedy has led a relatively tranquil life. But she has demonstrated the appeal that poise, good taste and charm have, particularly for the older and younger age groups who still take the time to appreciate it. Those attributes that make Mrs. Kennedy still one of the world's most admired women are very evident in this simply written biography for young readers.

Updike's 10 Couples

COUPLES by John Updike; Knopf, 456 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Although they pay lip service to national affairs (the Kennedys make amusing table talk), attend town meetings, run the nursery school and campaign for "fair housing" at times, it is only their own affairs that mean anything to the 10 exurbanite couples of John Updike's new novel.

Their "magic circle" of couples and coupling is now their religion.

"The men had stopped having careers and the women had stopped having babies. Liquor and love were left."

Foremost among the dancers is Piet Hanemas — seeker, poet, clown that he unconsciously is. Somewhat of an outsider in their sophisticated set, a skater on the surface of things, he is ridiculed but nevertheless envied as the only really virile male of the group, as he makes his rounds of the wives. His antithesis is Freddy Thorne, the impotent father figure who is widely disliked, but whom they all consult in their growing decadence.

And "ripeness is all" chant the Applebys and Little-Smiths, known as the Apple-Smiths since they embarked on their steamy, double affair.

But it is Piet whose downfall (following a tortuously compounded infidelity) destroys the new religion. Significantly, the village church also burns down. It has not had any meaning for the couples, of course, except possibly Piet, who with his vestigial fear of death, was in the beginning a member. But they are sorry to see the old structure go.

It was, after all, historically important and architecturally irreplaceable. (Piet is a building contractor.)

And so it goes. Admirers of the New Yorker writer will find much to delight them in this big, ambitious novel, but may well be disappointed with the lack of substance. It is certainly less satisfying than his last novel, "On the Farm," which showed new maturity beyond his virtuoso techniques.

But in this new work, Updike, the consummate stylist, the "fine writer," is in full cry. The theme seems too flat to carry all the load — the beautifully constructed richness of symbols, and submotifs, overtones and echoes. And the sex is endless — pastel transports, minutely detailed as only Updike could do, on almost every other page.

In the end, it is all too much — too large a slice of the most elegant, succulent fruitcake imaginable.

It is no surprise to read that the book has already been snapped up by Hollywood for a vast sum.

Marin Writer Shows Talent In 2nd Novel

BLADE OF LIGHT by Don Carpenter; Harcourt, Brace and World, 181 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Elizabeth Rogers.

Reviews Of New Reading

Don Carpenter of Mill Valley is a new writer of considerable talent.

"Blade of Light," his second novel, is the study of a congenital psychopath. So far as it enlists the sympathy of the reader, it is a real achievement, for not many would willingly establish identity with a murderer. The author accomplishes this tour de force by honest persuasiveness, using stabs of insight to provoke the nerve of response.

"Blade of Light" belongs to today's school of literature whose readers' emotions are elicited by shock. The shock is genuine, which puts the book in a higher category than many others of its kind.

Carpenter also knows how to tell a story, maintaining a constant suspense level, and giving his characters enough substance to hold interest. Occasionally his sentences are so long and involved that the end has no conceivable relation to the beginning. It is hard to tell whether this is a fixed style, or whether it is only a stage of development.

You can't fault a man for not being Faulkner, but you like to see him sharpen his own tools in his own way. Presumably, this is what Don Carpenter is doing, and it will be interesting to see what cutting angle he uses in carving out his next novel.

Creative Craft

CREATIVE PAPER CRAFTS IN COLOR by Chester Jay Alkema; Sterling, 179 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Paper crafting is an old pursuit often overlooked today by artisans and artists, both amateur and professional.

This book, however, should help give the craft a new popularity.

It is, to begin with, an impressive book, bigger than most of the Sterling craft guides and most generously illustrated with photographs and diagrams, many of the former in full-color.

In its pages, Alkema a Grand Rapids State College professor in Michigan, takes you up a ladder to increasingly more difficult and more beautiful projects, beginning with such fundamentals as paper hats and winding up with mobiles, mosaics, monofold figures, collages and dioramas.

Once one has been introudced to its possibilities with Professor Alkema, he will look with renewed respect upon paper as a material for creative projects.

Los Angeles Pictured At Its Best

LOS ANGELES, PORTRAIT OF AN EXTRAORDINARY CITY by Sunset editors; Lane, 304 pages, $9.95 through June 30, $11.75 thereafter. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Pictorial books on cities, states, regions or countries usually take one of two approaches.

Either they strive for stark realism, by concentrating upon the grimmer, grimier aspects of the subject area.

Or they present the glossier, prettier, more exciting scenes in a manner to delight the local chambers of commerce.

"Los Angeles, Portrait of an Extraordinary City" by the editors of Sunset magazine and books belongs in the second category. Its touristy view of the City of the Angels makes the Southlands metropolis look, indeed, a paradise on earth, too perfect for mere mortals. Only infrequently does a jarring note appear.

But there is really nothing wrong with this kind of a book, as long as it is understood to be so conceived and constructed. And Sunset makes no effort to mislead its readers. Even the book title indicates that the editors approach Los Angeles with considerable wonder and awe.

The purchaser, then, can sit down and enjoy the book for what it is, a portfolio of pictures that emphasize the best points of California's largest city and its inhabitants.

The collection of photos is a glorious one, using duotone and full color to fine advantage upon subjects that are literally drenched in brilliant hues. There's a brief history of the city with appropriate old prints, maps and drawings, that precedes the main pictorial section which is divided into various facets of Los Angeles culture and life. An appendix presents a great deal of information in directory form. And the whole thing has been packaged handsomely in the tradition of Sunset's Pictorial Gift Books series.

The more parochial Northern Californians may be irritated by this very unobjective picture of what they regard as a monstrosity among the metropolises of America, but then some pretty one-sided presentations of our own San Francisco have also been produced.

The thing is to enjoy the book and especially the pictures, without confusing what you see there with the real Los Angeles.

The Tiny Elements

MAGIC MINERALS: Key to Better Health, by Carlson Wade; Parker, 229 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The real key to a healthful diet, says Carlson Wade, editor of Popular Medicine Magazine, is not so much the vitamins, enzymes, protein or calories, but the trace minerals.

Nutrition, generally, has come to place increased emphasis upon these tiny elements and the foodstuffs that contain them.

But like so many people riding a procvocative idea, Wade tends to get carried away, and to credit all kinds of wonderful preventive and curative powers to the presence of these minerals.

It makes for an interesting thesis. And certainly, minerals play a role in our diet. But the reader would be wise to follow Carlson only part way, then draw back before plunging overboard, to take a more general, better balanced view of the subject of nutrition.

Sunset Offers A Popular Cook Book As Paperback

SUNSET COOK BOOK OF DESSERTS by Sunset editors; Lane, 94 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Some years back, Sunset produced a collection of its favorite dessert recipes as a glossy, hardbound gift volume. Now that popular book has been made available in a new paperback format, with 10 new desserts added.

The emphasis is upon the more glamorous desserts suited to entertaining — pancake desserts, the souffles, the tortes, fancy makes and pies, etc.—but there is also a representation of simpler, easy-to-prepare treats for family eating.

In all, there are more than 200 tested recipes, fully explained, and with a number of full-page photos pointing out the serving potential of many of the desserts. For those not owning the earlier version and not fighting calories, the book will be a must — especially if you like to entertain with a flair.

Dillies By Diller For Housewives

From "Phyllis Diller's Housekeeping Hints," now available as a 60-cent Crest paperback reprint from Fawcett.

"If your kids write their names in the dust on the furniture, don't let them put the year."

"At Christmas time silver your leftover sauerkraut and hang it on the tree."

"Don't feel you have to bathe your baby every day. He won't tell anybody."

Don't Let The Easter Lilies Die

Traditional Easter lilies abound, and brighter color is plentiful in such nice things as azaleas and chrysanthemus.

Garden Page

DESPITE A trend toward more brightly colored flowers for Easter-giving, Easter lilies are still the favorites. And it's appalling to think how many bloomed-out but still healthy Easter lilies go into the trash heap each year.

The California Association of Nurserymen estimates that many thousands of lilies that could be saved for garden use are discarded after Easter by people who think of them strictly as hothouse plants.

This year, let your lily bloom out in its pot, then transplant it to the garden border. Any well drained spot will do. It will bloom each summer, starting next year.

AZALEAS ARE probably the second most popular Easter gift plant.

Many are available in nurseries this time of year, most of them named varieties of the lovely Belgian Indica strain. These may be kept indoors until their bloom has faded, then, like Easter lilies, planted in the garden in a shaded or semi-shaded, well drained bed.

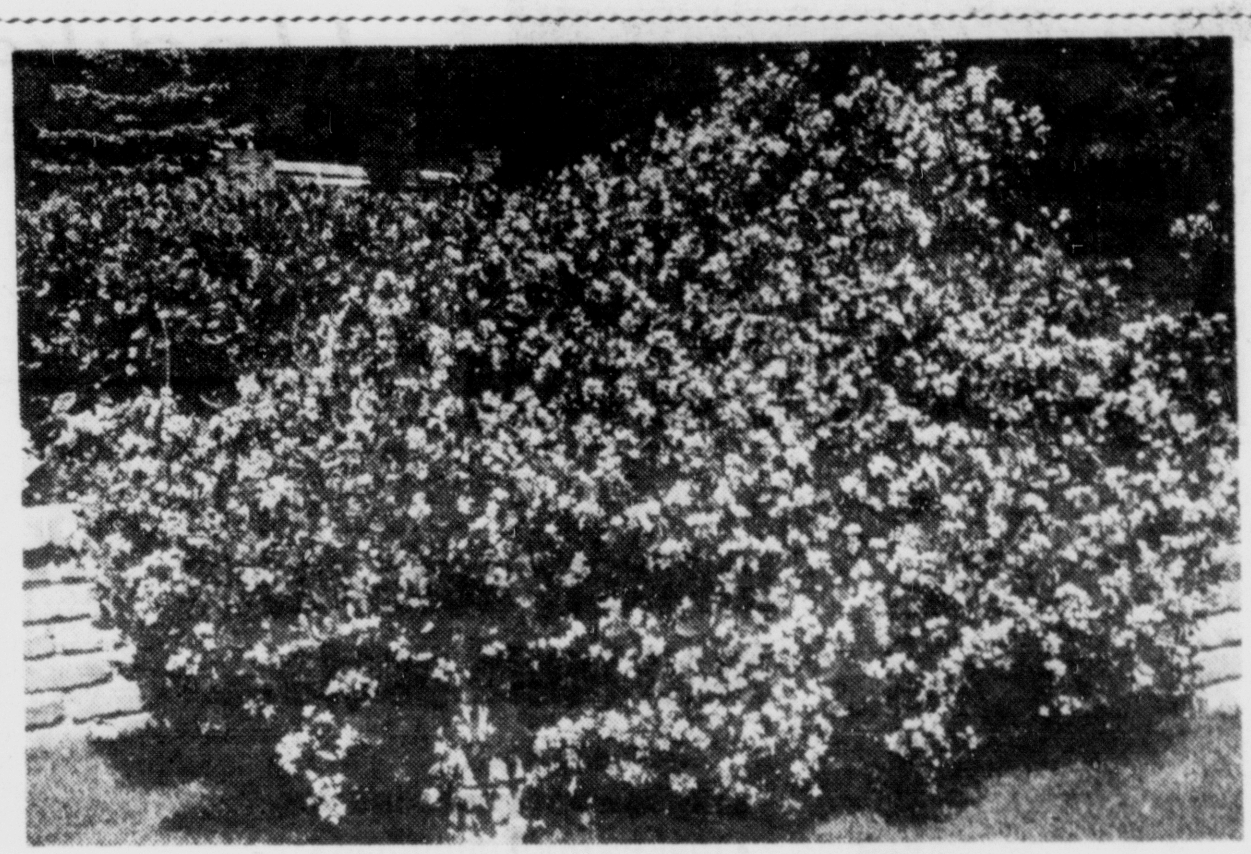
Use plenty of peat moss. Some gardeners simply leave them in their pots and sink these in the ground. During their stay indoors they should be watered regularly.

Their bloom life will be lengthened if you air them near an open window occasionally.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS are also favorites for Easter -- as they are at any time of the year. And here's a trick, which nurserymen claim will bring a second crop of bloom from mums that have been forced to early bloom this time of year.

When the current crop of flowers fades, remove the plant from its pot and replant it in a sunny garden bed. Cut the top down to four to six inches, water and feed it to a new surge of growth. The rejuvenated plant will bloom again this fall.

Other plants for Easter giving include orchids, African violets, pelargoniums and camellias. All are well worth preserving for future enjoyment.



THEY CALL it the India Hawthorn, although actually it isn't a hawthorn at all. More accurately it's known by the mouthful Raphiolepis, pronounced "Raff-ee-o-lay-puss." It's an ideal shrub for Marin growing, thriving in any soil and hardy in most temperatures. Tended or untended, it produces a lovely bloom. Two varieties of fairly recent origin, the medium-sized Springtime with its bronzy foliage and pink flowers, and the more compact Enchantress, with greener foliage and rosier flowers, are the current favorites. But there are other varieties such as Apple Blossom and Pink Cloud. (California Association of Nurserymen photo)

Vegetables You Pick Yourself

Garden-fresh produce is something everybody likes to think about and all too few actually do anything about.

The excuse is usually a lack of garden space or too little time. Nonsense, say nurserymen. There's no garden too small for at least a few good crops, and no gardener too busy to indulge himself, however briefly, in the pleasures of home-grown vegetables.

AS FOR space, how much space do a few pole beans take?

There can actually be grown against a boundary fence where little space is vailable and a few plants will supply a good number of succulent bean dishes.

Or how many square feet do two or three tomato plants require when you train them up a garage wall or on a lattice against the back fence? Practically none, yet how great the return.

Or how much room does a row of Swiss chard demand? Any garden can accommodate that.

WE COULD go on and on.

A mound or two of summer squash will provide all one family usually wants. Onions can be grown in any sunny bed — just like any bulb.

So let's be serious and admit that space need not be such a great factor in growing vegetables at home.

A large vegetable garden is nice, but it often produces far more than one family can use.

TIME WISE, the busy gardener will find that the vegetables he likes best require only a minimum of effort and time to grow. Pole beans and tomatoes require some staking and tying, but how long does that take for only a few plants? Squash almost takes care of itself; and what can you do to an onion once you've thinned it?

And when you plant onion sets, you don't even have to thin them.

For the gardener who really wants to indulge himself, nurserymen offer seedling lettuce plants, which are easily transplanted to the garden. Peppers, eggplants and tomatoes are also available as seedlings for the easiest culture. Celery, corn and beans can be planted as seeds.

YOU CAN'T really know how easy it is to grow these things until you try them, and you'll never know what you're missing until you pick your first crop of beans and eat your first vine ripened tomato. Once you know, you'll wonder why you only talked about garden-fresh produce for so many years.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Fill your summer with color by planting annual bedding plants now.
- Pinch fuchsias frequently as they grow to encourage shrubbier growth and more bloom. They flower on this season's growth.
- Many native plants are in bloom this month, including the wonderful ceanothus or "Wild Lilac." You can plant these now.
- Tuberous begonia seedlings are available for planting this month. Set them in a soil rich with leaf mold.
- Spray wisteria to stop infestation from caterpillars.

INTERIOR PAINTING

Avoid The Fads In Picking Colors

One of the most foolish practices in painting the inside of your home is to select colors that happen to be "in" at the moment.

Trends in colors change. At the very moment you are painting a room a particular shade because you have heard that it is up-to-date, somebody may be planning the introduction of a new tone intended to catch the public's fancy or, at the very least, plotting a promotion campaign to repopularize one of tthe basic colors.

YOU SHOULD choose colors you like — colors that enhance your furnishings — colors which create visual illusions.

Within the bounds of your personal preferences, these fundamentals can serve as your guidelines:

1. A small room can be made to seem larger by decorating it in light colors. Deep colors give a very large room a more intimate feeling.

2. A small room also can be made to seem larger by painting the walls and woodwork the same color.

3. A low ceiling will appear higher if it is painted a pale tint of the wall color. To make a high ceiling appear lower, use a darker color than the walls.

4. When selecting a color, remember that it seems darker on a wall than it does in a small chip sample. Therefore, when choosing from a small sample, which most paint stores carry, pick a color slightly lighter than you want it to be. Also, study the samples in both artificial and natural light.

5. GENERALLY, gloss paints withstand more washing. Flat paints reflect light evenly without glare. Hence, gloss paints are preferable in kitchens and bathrooms; flat paints are better in other rooms.

6. Very bright colors in large areas will detract from your furnishings.

7. While both warm and cool colors should be used in a room, too many accent colors will produce a hodge-podge effect.

8. When a room has a northern exposure, blues, blue-greens and blue-grays will make it seem cold.

9. When a room has a southern exposure, the extensive use of warm reds, oranges and yellows is not recommended.

10. Above all, use a good quality paint. The difference between poor quality and good quality may amount to as little as $2 or $3 a room, yet the difference in hiding power, color brilliance and wear may be very great.

MOM AND DAD deserve a "something else" room, and this one, a hobby center, was designed for Masonite Corp. A friendly partition separates dad's coin-collecting activities from mom's art studio. There's also room for board games, cards and other relaxation. Rough-textured panels at left and right complement the rough beams and provide an informal air. Shelves in the art studio are hung on wood-grained "living wall" panels that can also be used for hanging paintings.

Dad And Mom Deserves A Room Where Hobbies Can Flourish

A "something else" room is a real need in most homes today.

It might be a sewing room, a hobby center or a recreation room for the entire family. Or it might be "something else" — a husband-and-wife workshop, for instance.

THE ROOM can be a conversion of existing space — such as a garage, porch, basement or attic. Or it can be an add-on. In either case, it'll have an important role in family life.

"A 'something else' room removes the pressure of too much 'togetherness' in a family of parents and children with various and conflicting interests," suggests John Concord, home improvement consultant to Masonite Corp.

"It could give dad and mom a chance to share a home workshop and hobby center, for example, leaving the family room to the younger noisier generation."

ONE OF THE big secrets being successful "something else" rooms is today's versatile, handsome, low maintenance wall paneling, notes Concord. Several new panels have been introduced with these multi-purpose areas in mind.
